FEAR NAZI COUP IN SLOVAKIA

NAZIS, JAPS AND ITALY STRIVE TO CONTROL BRAZIL

Russia Also Spends Money but Loses.

BY CAPT. M. M. CORPENING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

RIO DE JANEIRO, March 10.—The Rome-Berlin-Tokio triumvirate is expending much effort and money trying to get political and commercial control of this great and largely undeveloped republic. All in all, however, there is no great fear of any foreign country ever dominating Brazil.

The efforts of foreign propagandists in Brazil are of particular interest because of its size, its undeveloped resources, and its hereditary influence. The centuries old Portuguese stock is predominant, but there are great and long established colonies of Italians and Germans, and in the last few years Japanese have been coming in in uncounted hordes.

Soviet Money Goes Astray.

Communist Russia also has made a play for a foothold in Brazil, but must be listed among the "also rans." Reliable sources say that considerable Moscow cash has poured across the sea during the last few years. But, instead of going its intended way—for the conversion of Brazilians to the Red faith—the custodians of the cash have diverted it to providing themselves with capitalistic country homes. One thing is certain, a few prominent Reds live in luxury, while the adherents of communism among the common people are few.

Germany's activity in Brazil is being guided by its embassy, and the embassy staf has been increased greatly in the last few years. The Nazi propaganda money is being spent in subventions to newspapers, to radio stations, in direct "by mail" literature, and in the form of personal help to Brazilians sympathizing with the Hitler cause.

Old Colonists Uninterested.

While the greatest Nazi activity is found in the southern states—Rio Grande do Sul, Santa Catharine, and Parana—where the oldest colonies of Germans and Italians are found, considerable money is being spent in cosmopolitan Sao Paulo and Rio de Janeiro.

In the southern states there are agricultural communities, towns, villages, and schools that are 100 per cent German. The majority of the settlers there are old line stock and opposed to Hitlerism. They are reluctantly falling into line, more from fear of retaliation than desire.

In Rio de Janeiro only one of what might be considered the first line newspapers is reported to be on the embassy's pay roll. Several minor publications, however, are enabled to continue circulating by means of propaganda donations. The Brazilian government apparently is aware of what is going on, but has taken little action.

Push Barter Methods.

The Nazis as a rule are not as well liked in Brazil as the Italians. The Germans drive harder than the Italians and in business activities have little tolerance for the natural lackadaisical characteristics of the Portuguese stock. Thus the Germans themselves are the greatest obstacle to the spread of Nazi propaganda.

Commercially the Nazis are forging ahead purely by their barter and exchange methods. If Brazilians can't pay for imports in three months, six is O. K. If they can't pay in cash, Germany will take trade. They want the business and are getting it.

Japanese activities differ from those of Rome and Berlin in that little money is spent by the Japanese embassy, although a few newspapers are reported to be on the Japanese pay roll. Japanese advances have been in another field.

Japanese Buy Up Land.

Japanese have been entering the country almost wholesale and acquiring land and property. The coastal state of Sao Paulo has many of them. Miles and miles of land on both sides of the railroad leading northwest from Sao Paulo to Matto Grosso has been developed by Japanese farmers. The Japanese exercise much influence through their schools and hospitals.

Japanese penetration has leaped ahead in the northern states since 1929, when the states of Para and Amazonas granted large land concessions to three Japanese syndicates.

A high official declared that Japanese are now going into the Ama-

CZECHS RUSH UP TROOPS; REVOLT STIRS PRAGUE

Hitler's Army Poised Along Frontier.

BRATISLAVA, Czecho-Slovakia, March 10.—(AP)—This capital of the autonomous province of Slovakia, was under martial law tonight without visible government. Armed Czechs and Slovaks were keeping one eye on each other and another on Nazi Germany's army across the Danube.

President Emil Hacha. [A. P. Wirephoto.]

With Slovaks demonstrating for independence from the Czecho-Slovak republic and with their armed guards pouring into the city, the whole question was: "What will Hitler do next?" The Czechs had in mind the Nazi seizure of the Czech Sudeten area last fall.

[Berlin dispatches said Hitler had summoned his foreign minister, Joachim von Ribbentrop, for a conference on the situation. One Berlin rumor said Hitler had sent an ultimatum to the Czechs. German newspaper reports of the situation resembled Nazi press reports before the seizures of Austria and Sudetenland. Details on page 4.]

Should Hitler refuse to intervene on behalf of the Slovaks there was little doubt that the Prague government could subdue them. But if he should order his troops to "restore order" it would be a far different story.

Both Sides Mark Time.

Apparently neither Slovaks nor Czechs were ready to make a serious move until they know what the Fuehrer intends to do.

The Prague government, meanwhile, had soldiers and police in force here. One child was reported killed and several persons wounded in an exchange of shots between Slovak supporters and police from Prague.

The city was comparatively quiet tonight, with an atmosphere of uncertainty. All public gathering places were closed at 9 p. m. Large forces of police guarded public buildings, electric, gas, and water plants.

Detachments of Moravian police dispatched by Prague arrived here in trucks tonight.

Slovak Premier Deposed.

Behind the situation was this picture:

Slovakia, under Premier Joseph Tiso, who was deposed today by the central government at Prague, had been moving toward a policy more independent of the central Czecho-Slovak government. He was accused of negotiating with Berlin over the republic's head. So Emil Hacha, Czecho-Slovak president, discharged him and two of his cabinet ministers and declared martial law. Slovaks declared the discharge was unconstitutional.

Tiso, who is a Roman Catholic priest, sent a note to Hitler today. What it contained was not known here.

In the background is Germany's push to the east in a drive toward the Ukraine. For her, Slovakia and Carpatho-Ukraine [Ruthenia]—the third autonomous section of the Czecho-Slovak republic—form a necessary corridor in that drive. Astute observers expressed a belief that if Hitler steps into the Czech-Slovak quarrel he will keep his own policy in view.

Prague Seeks Compromise.

In Prague the central government was seeking a compromise.

Karl Sidor, vice premier of Czecho-Slovakia and Slovak representative in the central government, refused to align himself with the separatist agitation. He said a Slovak cabinet based on the existing federal constitution would be formed by tomorrow night. Sidor himself was regarded in Prague as the possible new premier.

In a midnight radio address Sidor appealed to the Slovak people not to let themselves be led "into cheap heroism" and to the Hlinka guard to be "true to their oath of obedience."

Yankees Fight to Meet King, Britain Told

BY DAVID DARRAH.
(Picture on Back Page.)

LONDON, March 10.—British reports from Washington, D. C., state that tentative plans for the visit of King George VI. and Queen Elizabeth of Great Britain to Canada and the United States in May and June, now are complete. Dispatches also state that the "snobbish east" already is embarrassing British embassy authorities with a rush for bids to meet the royal visitors at elegant parties that will be thrown in or around the White House.

George Summerlin. [Acme Photo.]

According to British correspondents in Washington, not only did George Summerlin, chief of the state department's division of protocol, confer with British Ambassador Sir Ronald Lindsay and Alan Lascelles, assistant private secretary in the king's household, over the program for the visit, but also with President Roosevelt himself.

Fear "Untoward Incident."

Sumner Welles, undersecretary of state, reviewed all the aspects of the visit with Sir Ronald and Lascelles prior to Lascelles' departure for England to submit the program to Buckingham court potentates.

The inference is that political aspects as well as social aspects of the visit received careful presidential attention, particularly in view of the misgivings the British have that "some untoward incident" springing from informal democratic manners in America should mar the visit.

Even Presents Flow In.

The stack of visiting cards at the British embassy in Washington reached the mountain height of 2 feet 6 inches, one of the British correspondents in Washington reported today. These cards were left by callers hoping thus to get their names on the list of invitees. Telegrams, letters, and even presents are flowing in daily.

French Canadians will move en masse for a sight of the visiting sovereigns, the newspapers report. Two and one-half million medallions will be struck off to commemorate the royal tour.

TAMMANY WON'T LET HINES, CONVICTED IN RACKET TRIAL, QUIT

New York, March 10.—(AP)—James J. Hines, who was convicted two weeks ago of selling political protection to the Dutch Schultz policy racket gang, submitted his resignation as a Tammany district leader tonight, but the district committee refused to accept it.

Hines' letter of resignation was read to 750 members of the committee in the Monongahela club, headquarters of the 11th assembly district in New York's upper west side. A resolution tabled Hines' offer "indefinitly."

Democratic leader of the district for a quarter of a century, Hines was convicted on thirteen counts of an indictment charging him with participating in the policy racket and with conspiracy, making him liable to a maximum of twenty-seven years in prison. Sentencing has been set for March 23.

Although he is at liberty under bail, Hines did not attend the special meeting.

TRADES MIAJA'S SON FOR SON OF LATE DICTATOR

HENDAYE, France [at the Spanish Frontier], March 10.—(AP)—Jose Miaja, son of Gen. Jose Miaja, leader of republican Spain, was freed today after long imprisonment by the Nationalists. He came to France. Miaja was exchanged for Miguel Primo de Rivera, son of the late dictator of monarchical Spain. Primo de Rivera boarded a British destroyer at Gandia after having been freed by the republicans. He had been sentenced to 30 years' imprisonment.

4 Women on Jury Faint When Accused of Betting

Camden, N. J., March 10.—(AP)—Four women jurors fainted today when accused of placing nickel policy bets in a jury room. Frank Harding, Negro juror, had pointed them out as his customers for lottery slips in the Camden city hall Wednesday. All denied guilt. He is under arrest for placing the bets. A judge is investigating the jurors' conduct.

Gay Deceiver Finds Culture Has Its Price

It may now be told that the champagne bubbles tickled her nose. But the lady known as Jacqueline Sullivan, sitting Thursday evening in the Empire room of the Palmer House, didn't let on. She throttled her sneezes, gulped, and maintained her air of urbanity.

Dorothy Peet.

Miss Sullivan was a deceiver. Wednesday she had been Dorothy Alice Peet, 20 years old. She was a servant in the home of Arthur Davis, 5741 Kimball avenue. She was a roly-poly redhead—160 pounds on a five foot three inch frame—with a dreamy disposition.

Then she found Mr. Davis' collection of foreign currency, plus $70 of United States money. She went away with the whole sum. Downtown she got $212 from a bank in exchange for the foreign bills.

And Then Things Start.

After that she had a $25 permanent and bought $80 worth of clothes. She registered at the Palmer House as Miss Sullivan and began her social career. It was so successful, in her estimation, that yesterday she called on a girl friend and bragged about the good time she was having. She also bought a ticket for New York.

Police, however, were looking for her. They went to a hotel in which Dorothy Alice formerly lived. The girl friend was there and disclosed where Mr. Davis' ex-maid was playing her part. Policeman Herbert Krubaeck and Louis Glon of the Albany Park station arrested the masquerader, who confessed.

Dorothy's Urbanity Melts.

The police compelled her to pack her grip and accompany them. That's when the thin veneer of urbanity cracked.

As the trio marched down the stairs from the mezzanine to the hotel lobby, Dorothy Alice espied a basket of fruit on the rail. It was there for decorative purposes, but the ex-Cinderella took two oranges. And as she marched through the lobby she peeled one and tossed the peeling on the floor.

"It's pretty hard to play like you're cultured, ain't it?" she asked.

Mass Slayer on Trial; Tells of Murdering 3

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
(Pictures on page 5.)

VERSAILLES, France, March 10.—The trial of Eugene Weidmann, a German technician, 31 years old, for the murder of six persons, including Jean De Koven, a young dancer of Brooklyn, opened today.

It is being held in the courtroom where Henri Landru, French "Bluebeard," was condemned to the guillotine on Nov. 30, 1921, for murdering ten women and a boy.

Like the Landru trial, the present case represents a peak in French criminal annals and a select audience of 150 packed the small courtroom. An all-star press corps and squads of scrambling photographers completed a theatrical atmosphere.

The courtroom was thrown in an uproar when Weidmann, a commonplace man in a blue suit, was brought handcuffed into the dock by gendarmes. For five minutes the photographers blazed away while Weidmann stood woodenly with his hands behind his back and the judge rapped for order.

Admits He Killed Three.

Twelve jurors were chosen by lot and Weidmann was then questioned. In hoarse, curt replies, he soon admitted he killed Jean De Koven and two men in 1937 at his villa, "La Voulzie," in suburban St. Cloud.

Frequently Weidmann shrugged indifferently, refusing to answer questions by his own staf of four attorneys. Defense plans to try to prove insanity received a setback when he answered "no" to a question whether any of his ancestors had suffered mental ailments.

Weidmann was a disappointment to the spectators at first because he was neither defiant, nor cowed, nor dazed, nor fighting desperately for life. It was only as the trial unrolled and he became less impassive that the crowd began to realize that the man in the dock was a monster.

Weidmann's alleged pals, Roger Million, Jean Blanc, and Collette Tricot, facing various charges, were present but took little part in the proceedings.

Murder-for-Profit Ring.

Weidmann headed a murder-for-profit syndicate that adopted kidnaping, blackmail, and murder.

He met Miss De Koven, 22 years old, at a Paris tea dance and made ardent love to her, induced her to go to his villa, forced his attentions on her and the next morning strangled her with a towel, burying her body, fully clothed, under the front porch of the house. He obtained $480 in travelers checks and $20.80 in cash. He then wrote crudely written ransom notes to Miss De Koven's aunt but obtained nothing.

Weidmann next killed Joseph Coffey, a Paris taxicab driver, whose body was found in a ditch, and then a young adventurer, Roger Leblond, who had just been released from military service. Leblond's body was found in his car on a lonely street. Weidmann still wore Leblond's suspenders when he was arrested.

Kills His Prison Friend.

The fourth victim was Fritz Frommer, a German refugee and cell mate of Weidmann in a German prison. Rene Lesobre, a real estate agent, was the fifth victim. He was lured to Weidmann's villa and shot in the neck and his body was buried in the basement. A small sum was obtained in this slaying but the clews Weidmann left behind proved his downfall and brought about the arrest of his three confederates. Mrs. Janine Keller, an Alsatian, was the sixth to be slain. She was shot and her body buried in a wood near the Fontainebleau railroad station. Robbery was the motive. Mrs. Keller was lured to Paris by an ad offering a job with a rich South American woman.

ONE VICTIM STUDIED HERE.

Miss De Koven studied dancing in Chicago at the Jo Keith School of Dance, Theater and Radio arts, 14 West Lake street, for two years. She left in 1936 to make her home in Paris. She was considered a skilled artist. Born in Boston, Miss De Koven moved with her family to New York while she was a child. She was a graduate of New York university.

Fannie, Roundhouse Pet, Dies; Mother of 89 Pups

The Santa Fe roundhouse at 18th street and Wentworth avenue is without a mascot for the first time in thirteen and a half years. Fannie, canine friend of 200 yard employés, is dead. She was a fine ratter, they said, and smart and friendly. No one knew what breed she was, but each of her eighty-nine puppies found homes and was a credit to Fannie. So they gave her a funeral and buried her yesterday right behind the roundhouse. They thought she'd like that.

RENEWS DEMAND FOR 150 MILLION MORE FOR WPA

President Persists Despite Defeats.

BY CHESLY MANLY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 10.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt today antagonized congressional advocates of economy and encouragement to business. He renewed his demand for a 150 million dollar deficiency WPA relief appropriation for the remainder of the fiscal year.

The President declared at his press conference that his original deficiency relief estimate, submitted in January, still held good. Later he told a house appropriations subcommittee that he would request a deficiency appropriation of 150 million dollars to finance the WPA until July 1, in a message to congress early next week.

Second Request Ignored.

The President's original request for 875 million dollars was reduced to 725 million dollars by congress.

Immediately thereafter Mr. Roosevelt requested another appropriation of 150 million dollars, but congress has made no move to comply with this demand. As late as last Tuesday, Mr. Roosevelt described as "cock-eyed" newspaper reports that he had instructed congressional leaders, at the regular Monday White House conference of plans to request another 150 millions.

Members of the house appropriations subcommittee indicated that they would be in no hurry about considering the President's request for another 150 million dollars.

Woodrum Sticks to His Guns.

Representative Clifton A. Woodrum [D., Va.], acting chairman of the group and leader of the fight for the original 150 million dollar cut, declared after today's White House conference:

"I haven't seen or heard anything that makes me feel that I made a mistake."

Mr. Woodrum said the subcommittee would hear Col. Francis C. Harrington, WPA administrator, but other business would prevent any consideration of the additional relief request "for at least a week or ten days."

Suspect Political Move.

Conservative Democrats in the senate privately accused the President of making a political issue of the 150 million dollars in order to avenge himself for the defeat administered by congress in voting the cut. They insisted that the original WPA appropriation for the 1939 fiscal year of 1 billion 740 million dollars, plus the 725 million dollar deficiency appropriation recently passed, making a total of 2 billion 465 million dollars for the fiscal year, was enough to last if properly administered.

"The administration is determined to administer the relief situation so as to make it appear that a failure to appropriate the added sum is inhuman," one Democratic senator declared.

Adams Warns of Dangers.

"You will readily recognize that a rough road is laid out for those who seek to protect the government against waste and extravagance."

Senator Alva B. Adams [D., Colo.], chairman of the senate deficiency appropriations subcommittee, declared:

"I am convinced that unless there is some substantial reduction in the expenses of our government there is no escape from a financial catastrophe with exceeding grave possibilities of injury, if not destruction, to our present form of government.

"There is no class of people who will suffer so seriously from such a catastrophe as the workmen and the salaried people and others in the middle economic level."

Byrd Insists on Economy.

Senator Harry F. Byrd [D., Va.], declared that "any economy movement must necessarily involve a reduction in relief appropriations."

"We are spending more for relief this fiscal year than in any fiscal year since the depression, and conditions do not justify such expenditures," said Senator Byrd. He cited the official budget statement of unemployment relief expenditures, by fiscal years, as follows:

1935	2,363,000,000
1936	2,372,000,000
1937	2,572,000,000
1938	1,996,000,000
1939	2,741,000,000

These figures include all relief expenditures except under Public Works administration.

Leaders of the congressional economy movement expressed the opinion that there will be no curtailment of federal expenditures at this session of congress. They are convinced that President Roosevelt will not repudiate the spending for prosperity theory embraced in his annual message to congress and that without his cooperation appropriations cannot be cut below the budget estimates aggregating 9 billion for the 1940 fiscal year.

This will leave an estimated deficit of 3 billion 326 million dollars. For the current fiscal year, expenditures are estimated at 9½ billion dollars and the deficit at 4 billion.

Vandenberg Hits Pension Fund.

As to business recovery, about which the administration is manifesting great anxiety, Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg [R., Mich.] proposed "freezing" the old age pension pay roll taxes at their present level of 1 per cent on both employers and employés, instead of increasing them to 1½ per cent each in 1940 and progressively thereafter up to a maximum of 3 per cent each.

"I venture the hope that the administration leaders will embrace this greatest of all opportunities to make the 'busines aid' program work," said Senator Vandenberg. "There is no excuse for increased pay roll taxes under any circumstances for some time to come. There is less than no excuse if the federal government has belatedly decided to give business some encouragement to live and to provide real jobs in real employment."

Deficit Spending Device.

Senator Vandenberg said that old age pension pay roll taxes up to June 30, 1940, would amount to 1 billion 826 million dollars, while pension payments would amount to only 60 million dollars. By freezing the taxes at the present level, he explained, the so-called full reserve fund could be eliminated while still retaining a reasonable contingent pension reserve. he said he full reserve scheme represented "an enormous diversion of current income into nonproductive use."

"The 'reserve" meanwhile goes into bonds issued by the government to itself—a system of I. O. U.'s, while the cash is spent by the treasury to pay its general bills," Senator Vandenberg declared. "It is chiefly a device to make continued deficit spending a little more painless and a little less obvious."

At his press conferece, Mr. Roosevelt declared that the WPA waiting list—eligibles certified by local relief authorities—had increased from 750,000 to 850,000 since January 3. There are 3,000,000 on WPA rolls.

Harrington Backs Demands.

The President said he obtained his figures from Col. Harrington, who declared yesterday that unless congress voted the additional 151 million dollars by April 1, the WPA rolls would have to be cut drastically, perhaps down to 2,000,000 persons.

The President said that Col. Harrington, in response to congressional direction, had investigated the number of persons on the WPA rolls who are not actually in need of relief. The investigation disclosed, according to Mr. Roosevelt, that the chiselers never exceed 5 per cent of the total. He emphasized that the WPA workers were certified by local authorities, and said the 5 per cent figure indicated pretty good administration.

GARY JUDGE WINS OVER MAYOR IN NAMING OF BAILIF

Mayor Ernst Schaible of Gary, who has been engaging in a tilt with City Judge William Fletcher over the operation of gambling spots in Gary, lost a round yesterday when the Circuit court at Crown Point confirmed Judge Fletcher's appointment of a bailif for the City court.

Mayor Schaible, a Republican, was elected on his promise to clean up gambling and vice. When the police failed to obtain convictions in Judge Fletcher's court, Mayor Schaible announced the cases would be taken to Crown Point. During their quarrel, Judge Fletcher reappointed George Webb as City court bailif, and Mayor Schaible appointed William Bailey to the position.

City Attorney Floyd Draper started proceedings in Circuit court to determine which appointment was valid. Yesterday Circuit Judge T. Joseph Sullivan ruled that the judge should make such appointment, according to state law.

HUNT FOR A CAT MAKES EVANSTON CURIOUS AS ONE

Evanstonians were pussyfooting around last night trying to find out what the Young Business Men's club wants with a great big cat. President Robert Donohue said the club wants a burly animal that's looking for trouble. But he wouldn't tell why.

Humane society officers and citizens telephoned him to say he'd better not try promoting any fights between the cat and anything else he might be thinking of. He had many offers of cats with bad dispositions, mostly at $1 a cat. The owner of a 50 pound cat asked $75.

James Moring, chief engineer for the Evanston department of public works, was indignant over the club's advertisment for a cat willing to punch a sewer rat in the snoot. He said Evanston rats are small and well behaved.

Donohue said Evanston would know Monday night that the club has only one thought. And that? Civic betterment.

3 CHILDREN EAT POISON; ONE DIES; OTHERS ARE ILL

Three little children in Gary found what they thought was some candy Thursday night. But the "candy" was pills containing poison, and yesterday one of the children, Mary Ellen McNorton, 21 months old, lay dead.

Her twin sister Martha, and her brother, James, 3 years old, are critically ill.

The children found the pills, which had been compounded on a doctor's prescription, in the home of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Darell McNorton, 156 North Porter street, Gary. Mr. and Mrs. McNorton said the pills and some cake were on a table. They said they noticed the children eating the cake, and did not discover until too late that they also had eaten some of the pills.

The children were taken to Mercy hospital in Gary, where Mary Ellen died yesterday. Martha remained in the hospital, and James is at home.

AIRPLANE STRIKES WARSHIP IN DARK; 2 DEAD, 1 INJURED

[Copyright: 1939: By the New York Times.]

STOCKHOLM, March 10.—Sailors manning anti-aircraft guns on the deck of the Swedish battleship Gustaf V., steaming with lights out near the darkened naval base of Karlskrona during air raid exercises tonight, were startled to hear an airplane heading for them.

Before the order could be given to light the ship the plane crashed against the battleship's mast, spraying the decks with gasoline and debris.

Two occupants of the plane, Lieut. P. Arnesen, observer, and Stig Ekeram, newspaper reporter, were killed, and Pilot F. Anderson was gravely injured.

Spring Is Certainly Here or Should Be Soon Item

It certainly feels like spring item: Kent Tomlinson of 6954 Yale avenue announces that last night he went outdoors with a flashlight and found some angleworms. Today he is going fishing.

MILLIONS SPENT ON PLANES PERIL DEFENSE POLICY

Weakens Plan to Guard Both Americas.

BY WALTER TROHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 10.—[Special.]—The army and navy expansion programs contemplate a record peace time expenditure of 1 billion 500 million dollars in the coming fiscal year. Even so the military establishments of the United States will not be able to defend effectively the western hemisphere against aggressive dictator powers, in the opinion of military experts.

The expansion programs were launched by President Roosevelt with a redefinition of the American plan of defense. He said that the United States must, in view of shifting world conditions, turn from outmoded national defense to continental defense, embracing the new world from pole to pole.

Army Prepares Plans.

Taking these words seriously, the army high command prepared plans for expansion of its arms so that it would be able to go to the aid of any attacked American neighbor. The plans included provisions for large increases in the infantry and artillery, establishment of officers' training schools, building up an adequate reserve, and general strengthening of every branch of the service.

Detailed consideration was given to the creation of an expeditionary force which would be transported to any thratened area in the western hemisphere. The army high command considered the creation of an expeditionary force a vital part of any continental defense program because the army as it now stands is considered barely large enough to defend the nation's borders long enough to build a second line of land defense.

While the navy has always held itself in readiness to back up the Monroe Doctrin, the promulgation of the hemispherical defense theory set the navy high command to working out problems of preparing the navy for enlarged duties.

Surprised at Air Emphasis.

Both services were surprised when the emphasis in the President's program was placed on development of the air force. Because the program is that of their commander in chief, officers of both forces felt themselves bound, as though by orders, to keep their lips sealed in public. Privately, however, they make no secret of their opinion that the present program is not designed to follow through the continental defense goal set by the President.

The air expansion program is considered to be out of proportion to the nation's needs. The air corps considers a force of 3,000 planes to be sufficient to meet any emergency the army will be called upon to face. The President's program called for 5,500 planes and the senate increased that to 6,000.

Plead for Sober Consideration.

In congress a small handful of Democrats and Republicans have repeatedly pleaded for sober consideration of defense needs as against yielding to war hysteria. In the group are Senators B. C. Clark [D., Mo.], Gerald P. Nye [R., N. D.], Hiram Johnson [R., Cal.], and Alva Adams [D., Colo.], and Representatives Ross Collins [D., Miss.], and P. W. Shafer [R., Mich.].

The members of the group have insisted that the acquisition of such an air force means that the administration is equipping the army for overseas aggressive warfare. They argue that the United States is not in danger of European attack so that the program cannot be defensive.

If it were defensive, other branches of the service would be developed, as the air force is an auxiliary arm, the group contends. The members of the group have backed up their military arguments with the argument that it would be far sounder from a financial viewpoint to build the air force slowly rather than acquire almost at once a force that might be obsolete in two or three years.

There has been a growing suspicion on Capitol Hill that the administration may be building up the air force so that it can be turned over to a favored nation in the event of war in Europe. The recent French purchase of American planes designed for army use, which was facilitated by Mr. Roosevelt, has given rise to the belief that, perhaps, the American strengthening is being carried out to provide planes for the French.

Two Spies Guilty

U. S. CONVICTS 2 AS SOVIET SPIES; ACQUITS WOMAN

Russians Face 42 Year Prison Sentences.

Los Angeles, Cal., March 10.—(AP)—Hafis Salich, former United States navy intelligence operative, and Mikhail Gorin, Russian tourist agent, were convicted of violating the espionage act by a federal court jury here today. Natasha Gorin, blonde wife of Gorin, was acquitted.

Salich was convicted of having transmitted to Gorin and Gorin to his superiors in Russia data obtained by Salich concerning Japanese espionage activities and sabotage plans.

The jury, which deliberated for two and one-half hours, found the men guilty on all three counts of the indictment—conspiring to obtain, obtaining, and transmitting information vital to the national defense.

Gorin and Salich face possible maximum prison terms of 42 years each. Gorin had been at liberty on $25,000 bail, supplied through the Russian embassy, but he was remanded to custody with Salich.

Salich's Wife Collapses.

Salich's estranged wife, Mrs. Velma Salich, collapsed in the arms of her husband's girl friend, Olga Bryson, when the verdict was read. Gorin and his wife showed little emotion, but Salich clenched his fists and seemed greatly upset.

Gorin, who was Pacific coast head of Intourist, and his wife are both soviet subjects. Salich was born in Russia, but became a naturalized American citizen.

In his closing arguments United States District Attorney Ben Harrison demanded that the jury make examples of the defendants as a warning to other spies and to foreign powers that this country will not permit the machinations of alien agents within its borders.

Denies Injury to U. S.

Isaac Pacht, Gorin's lawyer, asserted that the United States was not injured because information of Japanese movements was given to Russia. He pictured the soviet as friendly to this country and declared: "She did not blow up our battleships in Chinese waters as another nation has done."

The prosecution introduced evidence to show that Salich sold to Gorin for $1,700 confidential information concerning Japan. Salich admitted this, but he contended that he did not violate the espionage laws since Japan was "a common enemy" of both Russia and the United States.

RUSSIA NO 'CAT'S PAW' FOR FRENCH, BRITISH, STALIN TELLS WORLD

MOSCOW, March 11.—[Saturday.]—(AP)—Josef Stalin, in one of his most outspoken statements, today told the world that soviet Russia would not be dragged into conflict with Germany as "a cat's paw" to pull British and French chestnuts out of the fire.

Addressing the opening session of the eighteenth all-union congress of the communist party, the soviet leader declared the failure of powerful "nonaggressor" countries like Britain and France to resist Fascist aggressors was not due entirely to the fear of revolution within their own territories.

Underlying their policy of nonintervention, he said, was a desire to embroil Italy, Japan, and Germany deeply as possible in war against the soviet union and then, when they all had become weakened by conflict, to "come on the stage with fresh forces" and dictate peace.

Germany, Italy, and Japan, however, are really attacking the interests of Britain, France, and the United States while pretending all the time to be "anti-comintern," Stalin said. He accused enemies of soviet Russia in Europe and the United States of trying to foment war between Germany and Russia.

The verdict was against the General American Tank Car corporation and the General American Transportation corporation. RAIDING SQUADS CONFISCATE 22 SLOT MACHINES Devices Vanish in Most Parts of County.

Stirred by Attorney General John E. Cassidy's reported threat to start grand jury action unless slot machines in Cook county are closed down, the county highway police started a series of raids yesterday. Last night it was reported that twenty-two machines had been seized by the police detail at Willow Springs.

In most parts of the county there was a general hiding away of the devices. This was true particularly in the southern sections. In Niles Center, to the northwest, some taverns had covered their machines or marked them "out of order." An investigator learned, however, that those in Morton Grove were being operated.

Lieut. Fred Mulhausen led the Willow Springs raiders. He found and confiscated seven machines in the Willow Springs area, eight in Cicero, and seven in Stickney.

Report Threat at Parley.

Cassidy's threat was said to have been made at a conference Thursday with Sheriff Thomas J. O'Brien, Chief Walter Williams of the state highway police and Chief Lester Laird of the county police also were at the meeting. Sheriff O'Brien denied yesterday that Cassidy had mentioned grand jury action.

"It was just a friendly visit," O'Brien said, discussing the conference. "Mr. Cassidy said that slot machines in most of the other 101 counties in the state had been pretty effectively chased out of business, but that an investigation by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE showed there were stil' a number in operation in Cook county, especially in Cicero.

"I told him that I'm elected to enforce the law and will continue to seize slot machines wherever found. No hint was made of any possible grand jury action, nor was there any offer that the state highway police would come in and assist in eliminating the machines."

Aid of State Police Offered.

When Cassidy started his campaign against the machines some weeks ago he offered the aid of the state police to the counties but indicated there would be no independent action unless the sheriffs failed in their duty.

Chief Laird said yesterday that his procedure is to write letters to police departments in incorporated suburbs wherever there is a complaint about machines.

"A few days later," Laird said, "I investigate to see if the suburban police chiefs have acted. If they haven't, my men go in and make the arrest and confiscation. In unincorporated areas my men are always on the lookout for the machines and seize them wherever found."

BLOOMER GIRL LEAVES WITH 2 OLD FRIENDS

Police arrested the bloomer girl yesterday. That's not her real name of course. Her name is Mary Ross. And police aren't so sure that's her real name either. She's used seven different names that they know of.

Detectives Jerry Looney and James Condon of the confidence detail, who seized her as she alighted from a taxicab outside the Merchandise Mart, said Mary had been arrested seventeen times for shoplifting from New York to Tulsa, Okla., and as far south as Birmingham, Ala., and had served a reformatory sentence in New York. They wanted to question her about Chicago thefts. One victim, Mrs. Bertha Bell, a loop furrier, signed a complaint charging Mary with stealing a $2,200 mink coat.

Mary's system was unusual, police said. She generally wore a full dress, the inside of which had a bloomer effect. The waistband was a wide and extremely stretchable elastic. When no one was looking, police said, Mary simply would pull out the elastic waistband, drop a fur coat into the dress with the inside bloomer effect.

Dances at Benefit

Mrs. John Lindsay, wife of Billings hospital physician, as she appeared in Spanish dance at University of Chicago settlement revue.

University of Chicago professors and boys and girls from the university's settlement were co-starred last night in the first revue ever produced by the benefit of the settlement. The revue, held in Mandel hall before an audience of more than a thousand students and faculty members, included four original skits, a hill-billy band, an accordion solo, and a Spanish dance by Mrs. John Lindsay, wife of a physician at Billings hospital. One of the smash hits was the professors' quartet, with Clifton Utley, Arthur Bovee, Norris Tibbets, and Dean Charles W. Gilkey in cutaways and top hats singing Noel Coward's "The Stately Homes of England."

SEIZE POSTOFFICE SAFE BLOWER, AN ESCAPED CONVICT

Postal inspectors seized a postoffice safe blower yesterday as he was reaching for his gun in a rooming house at 164 West Ontario street. He is Wayne Ward, 28 years old, an escaped convict from the Virginia prison at Richmond. He confessed that he looted the postoffice safe at Yale, Va., of $41,000 last March 15 after fleeing the prison. Ward had only $2 when captured. The arrest was made by Inspectors Victor Burlingame, Cecil Gant and George Reinhard and Police Detective Thomas Prindiville.

SO ENDS SPOOKY MYSTERY OF THE VANISHING UNDIES

Little People Absolved in Funny Goings-On.

Some of the tenants said it was the little people, some said it was the work of a gang of magpies, some merely shook their heads—but all agreed that it was highly unusual. Never in the years they had lived in the apartment building at 2530 North Kedzie avenue had anything like it happened before last week.

John Zajac.

The clink of the bottle could be heard as the milkman put it down, but no bottle would be found. Or a housewife would bake a meat pie and put it on the window sill to cool, then find it vanished a moment later.

The Laundry Disappears.

The climax came Thursday when Mrs. Georgia Litchke, Mrs. Elvina Anderson, and Miss Paulynne Hendrick did their washing in the apartment laundry. They went to take it off the line a few hours later and it was gone.

This time the manager took a hand. He called Detectives Walter Till and James Canning, who looked over his tenants list. Then they made an informal call on the apartment of Mr. and Mrs. John Zajac, who moved in a week ago.

At the rear door they found a long line of empty milk bottles and in the kitchen they found Mrs. Evelyn Zajac ironing. Mrs. Litchke and Mrs. Anderson and Miss Hendrick identified a number of the things Mrs. Zajac was working on, and signed complaints.

She Likes Fine Undies.

Mrs. Zajac, who is 20 years old, refused to discuss the matter yesterday. Zajac told police he was puzzled, but that he knew his wife did like beautiful undergarments.

Detective Till says Mrs. Zajac was given a year's probation on a burglary charge in 1937 and that Zajac's record includes a six months' sentence for assault, a $200 fine for disorderly conduct, a year's probation on a larceny charge, and a year's sentence to the Bridewell for theft of an auto. And the tenants who thought it was the little people, or maybe magpies, all looked surprised indeed.

PACKING COMPANY DRIVER ROBBED.

Henry Thompson, 3120 Ellis avenue, a driver for a packing company, was robbed of $150 in cash and checks yesterday in front of 4157 Indiana avenue.

DESPITE 24 RABBITS' FEET, 6 BARGAIN SEAL SKINS ARE BAD LUCK

Mrs. Anna Sirbu has twenty-four rabbits' feet, but she isn't so lucky. She paid $110 for them, and they're worth, at most, about $4.50.

Mrs. Sirbu runs a rooming house at 11 East Delaware place. A man called there yesterday and asked to see "Mr. Garnier." Mrs. Sirbu said no one of that name lived there. The caller asked her to phone a "Mr. Goldberg" to come over. Mr. Goldberg came.

The first man explained what he wanted to the second, then became terribly upset. What was he to do with these six fine baby seal skins? He'd sell them for $110, he said, although they were worth much more. Mr. Goldberg examined them.

Then he whispered to Mrs. Sirbu, telling her to buy them and he would pay her $170 for them later. She bought, but Mr. Goldberg didn't come back for them. Policeman Samuel E. Block of the confidence detail says he doesn't think Mr. Goldberg intends to.

A LONELY LITTLE LADY FINDS LIFE IS GOOD AGAIN

A little old lady from Austria tried to jump into the river Thursday night because she was penniless and alone. Last night she had found a home with new friends. She is Mrs. Anna Schmidt, 81 years old, who lived at 410 West 112th street until she lost her home through foreclosure. Her husband died fifteen years ago and her only daughter lives in Hungary.

Mrs. Schmidt was taken to Women's court yesterday. There Mrs. Helen Whitehurst, 10300 South Talman avenue, told Judge Oscar S. Caplan that she and her husband, Charles, wanted to offer the aged woman a place in their home.

"When I read a newspaper story of Mrs. Schmidt's plight," Mrs. Whitehurst said, "I immediately wanted her to take the place of my own mother who lives in Austria. They come from the same country. They are almost the same age. They even look alike."

BRITISH SUGGEST 5 YEAR PEACE TO DICTATORS

Home Secretary Asserts England Is Ready.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 10.—Another British cabinet minister took the stage tonight to sound out central Europe and the dictators on another idea of appeasement.

This time speculation was offered on how nice it would be if all would get together for a five year holiday from war and rumors of war.

The program was advanced by Home Secretary Sir Samuel Hoare closely following last night's inspired stories in the press on the possibility of a disarmament conference.

Addressing the Chelsea Conservative association, Hoare said:

"Suppose in the space of five years there were neither wars nor rumors of wars, and suppose the peoples of Europe were able to free themselves of the nightmares that haunt them and from the expenditures that beggar them? Here, indeed, is the greatest opportunity ever offered to leaders of the world."

Peace Put Up to Five Men.

Hoare said that five men of Europe—the three dictators, Hitler, Mussolini and Stalin, and Edouard Daladier, premier of France, and Neville Chamberlain, prime minister of Great Britain—might be able to transform the history of the world.

Chamberlain is ready, he said. He added that these five men working together and "blessed in their efforts by the President of the United States, might make themselves the eternal benefactors of the human race."

At the same time Secretary Hoare warned that England is undefeatable in war, long or short. He stressed the strength of the democracies, "not the least the American," and the determination of all to resist victoriously every attack.

"Never has there been so fundamental a unity or so firm a resolve in all three of the democracies [Britain, France, and the United States]," he added.

Acknowledging America wishes not to be drawn into "European entanglements," Sir Samuel said that "America will go its own way and no one here will try to deflect it."

Some View Plan as Politics.

Some diplomatic circles at once suggested the reason for Sir Samuel's peace talk might be to prepare the way for a general election designed to return the government to power on a wave of relief over the end of the war scare.

The inclusion of Russia in the plea for coöperation was in line with Britain's recently adopted policy of wooing Moscow. It also indicated that Russia is included in the lineup whereby Britain hopes to sell appeasement to the Rome-Berlin axis and eventually get the United States and other big powers into a disarmament conference.

Indications are daily increasing that the armaments race, which this year is going to cost the British 1,256,000,000 pounds sterling [$5,903,200,000], is beginning to set up an economic strain that is taxing ingenuity to keep British trade moving. No one is buying anything and unemployment figures still are maintaining the 2 million level.

This burden on business possibly explains Great Britain's suggestion for a disarmament conference.

Too Vague, Say Italians.

[Copyright: 1939: By the New York Times.]

ROME, March 10.—The British suggestion for an arms conference today brought out comment from well-informed circles that it was "so vague it is not worth considering."

It is believed the British want first to complete their armament program then suggest a conference to set a limitation at the high level reached by them.

Italy will decline to commit herself to any plan for a disarmament parley until her claim to French possessions has been clarified.

Premier Mussolini will not disclose the nature of Italy's territorial demands until the Spanish war is ended, therefore an early arms conference is viewed as impossible.

Berlin Wants Plain Offer.

BERLIN, March 10.—(AP)—Reports of British hopes for armament limitation brought the comment from the propaganda ministry spokesman today that it was up to others to make tangible proposals.

New Czech Trouble

Joseph Tiso, ousted as premier of Slovakia by Czecho-Slovak president.

Czech troops, struggling to suppress a secession movement in the autonomous province of Slovakia, were fearful last night of a new Nazi coup. German troops were seen moving across the Danube river from Bratislava (indicated by arrow), the capital of Slovakia.

REPULSE SOVIET RAID ON BORDER OF MANCHUKUO

TOKIO, March 10.—(AP)—A Domei [Japanese news agency] dispatch from Harbin, Manchukuo, today said 12 soviet Russian soldiers crossed the Argun river boundary of Manchukuo near Chilalin and attacked a border station. Casualties were not stated but Domei said the attack was repulsed.

Japan today dispatched "decisive" instructions to her Moscow ambassador in connection with the serious fishery rights dispute with the soviet union. The entire cabinet was called to hear the text of Foreign Minister Hachiro Arita's instructions to the ambassador and unanimously approved them.

Fishing grounds formerly allotted to Japan as a privilege conveyed by the treaty of Portsmouth which ended the Russo-Japanese war in 1905 will be put up for sale next Wednesday. In previous periodic auctions, while Japanese and Russian concerns bid together for some fishing lots, a certain number were sold to the Japanese exclusively.

NAZIS CRITICIZE CZECHS; UPHOLD SLOVAK 'RIGHTS'

German Attitude Recalls Previous Grabs.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, March 10.—German press reports tonight on the disturbances in Slovakia, where Nazi sympathizers are shouting "Heil Hitler," read exactly as they did before the Nazi occupation of Austria and of Sudetenland. The German reports speak of "Czech violations of Slovak rights." In the other two cases it was "violations of the rights" of Austrian Nazis and Sudeten Germans. It was pointed out here that the present crisis has arisen on the eve of the anniversary of the occupation of Austria on March 12, 1938.

Conservative Nazi circles emphasized throughout the day that Germany was not in the least interested in the Slovak crisis, that it was entirely an internal Czecho-Slovakian problem. In fact, they declared, Germany was opposed to any further dismemberment of Czecho-Slovkia because "that would be tantamount to Balkanizing a region right beside Germany."

News Service Changes Tune.

Tonight, however, the official German news service disclosed that the German government is in favor of the forces of former Premier Joseph Tiso, who was removed from office by the Czecho-Slovak president, Emil Hacha. The news service pointedly referred to "the Tiso government, which sent a note to the German government today." This, Nazis declared, was a protest against the action of the Czechs in deposing Tiso.

An official spokesman said no details of the note could be disclosed at this time. It was recalled, however, that last week, when Slovaks demanded financial assistance, a purely Slovak general staf and other concessions from Prague, they warned the Czech government that unless these demands were fulfilled they would "proclaim independence and place ourselves under a German protectorate." It is assumed in Berlin diplomatic circles that the note from Tiso contained this request for a protectorate.

Rumors persist that Reichsfuehrer Hitler has sent an ultimatum to the Czech government warning it to withdraw its soldiers from Bratislava if the Slovak government to be appointed to succeed Tiso "fails to get the people's support immediately." This was denied in Berlin and Prague.

Calls Ouster Illegal.

Ferdinand Durchansky, minister of labor in the Slovak cabinet, who also was removed from his post and who fled from Bratislava, addressed his countrymen tonight over the Vienna radio station. Durchansky declared the overthrow of the Tiso government was "unjust and illegal" and called upon the Slovak people to "fight for Slovak freedom."

"The Czech generals who occupied Slovakia should be court martialed," Durchansky declared. "Prague must realize that its day of domination is past. The Czechs have learned nothing from history. For twenty years they have put every possible difficulty in the way of Slovak freedom and they are still trying to bring Slovakia to her knees. Prague has the military power, but because of our spirit we shall win."

Durchansky was in Berlin two weeks ago.

Reports over the Berlin radio tonight complained that Czech troops had surrounded the German consulate in Bratislava and "prevented demonstrations of sympathy for Germany." The reports said M. Kramarsin, minister for the German minority in the ousted Tiso government, spoke at a public meeting, where he stressed "the close ties uniting Germany and Slovakia."

It was asserted that disturbances had broken out in a number of towns and that military authorities had to intervene.

Jews Fleeing from Italy; Tell of Exile at Gunpoint

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

NICE, France, March 10.—A new chapter in the tragedy of the Jews is being written here on the French Riviera.

Within the last ten days more than 150 Jewish exiles or refugees have crossed the French border from Italy on foot. They are of all nationalities, including Italian.

Some declared they had fled voluntarily to escape starvation and persecution in Italy. Many, however, told French border police they had been expelled at the point of guns by Italian soldiery who forced them to walk for miles through the high mountains amid snow drifts before putting them across the frontier at unguarded spots on the French side.

Children Reported in Hospital.

Some women and children among the refugees were hospitalized because of fatigue and exposure, it is reported here, but THE TRIBUNE correspondent so far has been unable to locate any of these victims. Among the refugees were said to be twelve men who walked twenty miles through snow and were so severely frostbitten that they needed medical attention.

Elena Stocki, 41 years old, a Polish woman, was caught at night trying to slip across the frontier in the mountains with two small children, aged 6 and 7. The children were sent to a hospital. The woman told French authorities she owned a small shop in Milan for several years, but was made destitute by the Italian racial legislation and, having lost her shop, was facing starvation in Italy.

Two Turkish Jews with their wives and children, caught near the village of Castellar, high in the mountains, told French authorities they lost a rug shop which they owned in Milan and then were forced across the frontier by soldiers.

French Fear Fascist Trick.

French authorities are seriously worried over this new evodus of Jewish refugees from Italy, especially since, according to some reports, Italy's anti-Semitic laws were to be applied with leniency. They are wondering, therefore, whether the government, after trying to fool the rest of the world by propaganda, decided to apply the racial laws mercilessly, or whether the refugees were victims of unauthorized local pogroms.

Fifteen men and two women who crossed the frontier illegally at Pont St. Louis are reported to have been forced by the French to return to Italy.

BATTLE RAGES; FOR HOURS; ENDS AS LOVE FEAST

Madrid Reds Surrender with Cheers for Foes.

MADRID, March 10.—(AP)—Mobile units of the Republican army rolled into Madrid from Valencia today and began blasting out communists revolting against the régime of Gen. José Miaja and his program of a "worthy peace" with Nationalist Generalissimo Franco.

Bringing into action tanks, mortars and field guns, the army broke through and surrounded communist emplacements in the neighborhood of the old bull ring.

The rebellious forces relied chiefly on hand bombs, but were unable to cope with the weapons of the forces called into action by Gen. Miaja's embattled government.

14,000 Rebels Surrender.

Estimates on the number of casualties were lacking, but an official announcement said 14,000 of the rebellious soldiers had surrendered since yesterday.

[A dispatch from Paris said two communist divisions of the Republican army had left the outer fortifications of Madrid and joined the revolt.]

The communists, who started their revolt Tuesday, had taken up positions in upper Alcala street at the edge of Manuel Becerra, a strategic square.

As soon as the troops from Valencia arrived they swung into action. A battle raged around the square for several hours before the government announced it had gained the upper hand.

Communist snipers took pot shots at the approaching loyal troops from doorways, house tops, and street corners and gave way only after their positions were made untenable.

Reds Retreat to Hills.

After being routed from the square and from Alcala street the communists put up a fight under cover of a few scattered hills beyond the bull ring. Heavy mortar fire, however, tore big gaps in their ranks, while machine gun detachments encircled them.

A few groups of communists finally surrendered and later there was a rush of their fellow revolters over to the mobile army to lay down their arms.

The erstwhile rebels joined in shouting "Long live the republic," and fraternized with the loyal forces whom they had been fighting a few minutes before.

With only a few diehards still holding out, the main body of the mobile army and the surrendered communists marched back to the center of the city as if nothing had happened. It was almost a comical end to a bitter encounter.

Three Red Strongholds Left.

With the east side communists quelled the government said only three communist strongholds were left within the city. One is the labor headquarters and another is Montana barracks.

The communists are led by Lieut. Col. Jose Barcelo, former commander of the 1st army corps, and Lieut. Col. Francisco Bueno, who formerly commanded the 2d army corps.

They were said by the government to have promised their support last Sunday after the overthrow of the régime of Premier Juan Negrin and then to have led the revolt two days later.

MISSION LOSSES MOUNT AS WAR GOES ON IN CHINA

Property Damaged and Work Delayed.

SHANGHAI, March 10.—(AP)—Severe losses suffered by American missionary institutions because of Japan's invasion of China, with resulting setbacks to their work, have been emphasized by recent Japanese air raids on Ichang, middle Yangtze river port.

A survey of the losses of just one mission group, made today as unconfirmed Chinese reports were received of a third destructive raid on Ichang this week, may be taken as fairly showing how the missions have fared.

The American Episcopal church has in China fifteen missions, 150 missionaries, and 128 organized congregations. It was damage to this mission's Ichang properties in Wednesday's raid that evoked an American protest to the Japanese.

Looting Is Charged.

Ten of this church's missions are in areas already occupied by the Japanese and the other five—at Changsha, Ichang, Shasi, Nanchang, and Kuling—are in the indicated path of projected Japanese advances and subject to bombings and other attacks.

All stations have been damaged except those at Hankow, Anking, Wusih, and Yangchow, where losses were confined to looting. Besides that done by the Ichang bombings, the damage includes burning and looting of a school at Changshu, damaging and looting of the Soochow academy, burning of a boys' school and a girls' school at Changsha, burning of the Nanking health center, and burning of the Central China college dormitory and damaging of a girls' school at Wuchang. Some of the fires were set by retreating Chinese. Both sides have been accused of looting.

In addition a large number of organized congregation buildings have been destroyed or damaged and many have been forced to close. Despite the wide-spread material harm no American missionaries of this church have been killed or injured.

Third Raid on Ichang Reported.

At Ichang, where two properties of the Episcopal mission were damaged in raids this week, twenty-seven Japanese airplanes were reported by the Chinese to have raided a third time yesterday, adding to the already heavy toll of lives and property. The Chinese reported the bodies of 300 Ichang victims had been dug from débris and that fires were continuing.

Chinese forces were reported trapped in an area sixty miles square in the northeastern corner of Kiangsu province and subjected to repeated bombing and machine-gunning by Japanese planes.

The only escape was said to be through Japanese lines or by sea.

GEN. FRANCO DEFIES BRITAIN'S STAND ON BLOCKADE OF SPAIN

BURGOS, Spain, March 10.—(AP)—British objections to the Nationalist blockade of Republican Spain's Mediterranean ports tonight brought from Nationalist sources vigorous assertions that Generalissimo Franco was within his rights in declaring it.

The Nationalists, not concealing annoyance at London's attitude, said the granting of belligerent rights was implicit in the granting of formal recognition to the Nationalists by Great Britain and France, and that, therefore, the blockade was justified.

British Ship Released.

LONDON, March 10.—(AP)—A British freighter seized in the Nationalist blockade was freed tonight after two British destroyers rushed to her aid. The admiralty announced that the freighter, the Stangate, had been liberated by Nationalist warships which took her prisoner and was being escorted to Gibraltar by the destroyer Intrepid. An admiralty spokesman said "there was no trouble in escorting the Stangate away and no shots were fired."

ENVOY BOWERS GIVES WELLES REPORT ON SPAIN

Washington, D. C., March 10.—(AP)—A report on the Spanish situation was laid today before Sumner Welles, under-secretary of state, by Ambassador Claude G. Bowers. The ambassador who was recalled from his temporary embassy in France near the Spanish border for consultation, is to see President Roosevelt tomorrow.

It was not clear whether the United States had any diplomatic relations with the new government set up by Gen. José Miaja in Madrid. Welles refused to tell newspaper men whether relations existed or not.

Officials regard the fall or surrender of Madrid and the loyalist sector of Spain as inevitable. The collapse of this sector and its unification with nationalist Spain will hasten United States' recognition of Gen. Franco, which is likewise deemed certain.

CHARGE TREASON IN G. O. P. AID TO DEMOCRAT PROBE

Moore Assails Action of Eight Representatives.

Censure of the eight Chicago Republican representatives who voted with Democrats in Springfield last Tuesday to revive a Democratic inspired inquiry, is expected to be given today by the G. O. P. city central committee.

The committee meeting was called last night by Edward F. Moore, county chairman. He charged the Republicans who switched with treason to the party and to the public.

"This demands immediate action," read the chairman's letter to committeemen. "We must determine now whether a handful of Republicans can cast doubt upon the integrity of the loyal members of our party. Other important legislation will be forthcoming, designed to curb huge Democratic appropriations and to stop waste of public funds. Similar betrayals must be prevented."

Urges Support for Green.

Moore said it is imperative "to halt the raids of the Kelly-Nash machine." He urged that all Republicans stand together behind Dwight H. Green for mayor.

Targets of Moore's censure are James J. Adduci, Arthur T. Broche, Michael A. Ruddy, William S. Finucane, Peter C. Granata, John A. Pelka, William J. Warfield, and Stanley E. Martynowski. All were elected last November on the Republican ticket.

Two of these men are Republican ward committeemen—Ruddy of the 15th and Finucane of the 11th. The eight Chicagoans were joined by a downstater, Calvin Johnson of Belleville, in voting with the Democrats.

Moore described the resolution they supported as one designed to "block an honest investigation of Democratic waste and scandal." It provides for a joint senate-house inquiry into state expenditures. Part of the Democratic plan is to discharge the Searle Republican controlled house committee and supersede it with the joint committee.

Seek to Apply Pressure.

Moore's letter is designed to put such pressure on the eight Chicagoans as to discourage them from voting to discharge the Searle committee next week.

"As chairman of the city central committee I refuse to remain silent any longer," Moore wrote. "At a time when we have the highest type of new leadership, we must stand back of that leadership to a man. The people of Chicago in this crisis must be given a militant, courageous, and honest fight behind Dwight H. Green. With courage and grim determination we can and will put our house in order and win the confidence of the electorate."

Green charged last night that the Democratic organization has increased taxes to the point where industries are being kept out of Chicago. He made a radio address and later spoke at meetings in three north side wards.

Assails Kelly Régime.

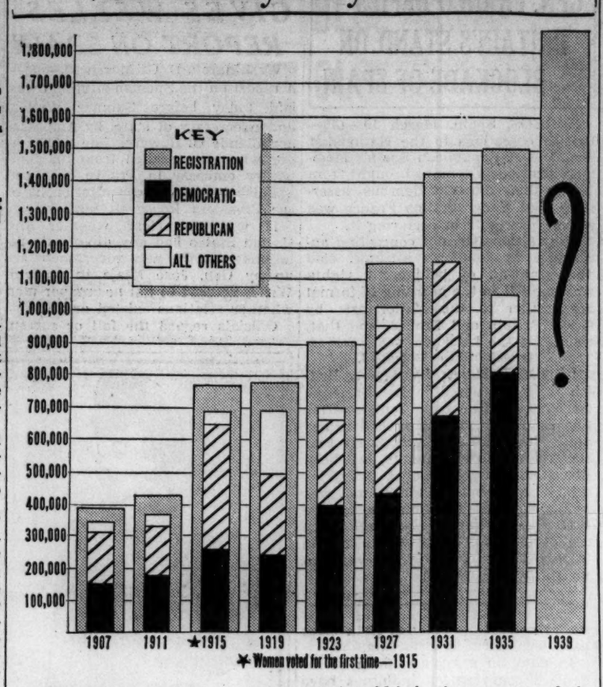
"Newspapers announced yesterday," said Green, "that Chicago Association of Commerce officials had issued a report that Chicago is lagging and that high taxes have been a blow to business. These officials, in a nonpolitical statement, reiterated every word I stated during the primary campaign—that the Kelly machine and its high tax rate are keeping industries out of Chicago.

"Another story in the papers told about a $900,000,000 industry [the Standard Gas and Electric company] announcing it will remove its main office from Chicago because of the high tax rate. Ed Kelly, you and your machine are responsible for Chicago losing that industry. You drove it out because you wasted and squandered and sent the tax rate so high the industry couldn't stand it and had to move to another city where taxes are reasonable."

POLICEMAN SUED BY WIFE.

Policeman Albert Bibby of the Lawndale station was sued for separate maintenance in Superior court yesterday by Mrs. Jane Bibby, 2102 South Central Park avenue.

Vote in Mayoralty Elections



The height of the bars and not their width is the measure of the registration and also of the total vote in Chicago elections for mayor since 1907. The vote bars also show proportion of vote cast by parties.

SEEK A LOOPHOLE TO LET ORTHODOX JEWS VOTE EARLY

Legislation to permit Orthodox Jews to cast their votes for mayor prior to the April 4 election may be introduced in Springfield next week.

Behind this contemplated action is the fact that election day falls on the first day of the Feast of the Passover, an important Jewish holiday. Orthodox Jews observe it so strictly that they refrain from voting.

Senator A. L. Marovitz, a Democrat who represents a west side district that contains a large proportion of Jewish voters, drafted a bill yesterday to permit the orthodox to vote by affidavit during an eight day period prior to the election. Unless some other way of meeting the situation is presented, he is expected to ask its immediate passage as an emergency measure.

Harry A. Lipsky, chairman of the election commissioners, said he believed that about 200,000 Jews are registered on the election rolls. Some of these follow the tenets of the reformed branch of the religion, and these, several rabbis said yesterday, would not be prohibited by Passover from voting.

WOMEN LAUNCH GREEN FOR MAYOR VOTE CAMPAIGN

Eighty-five leaders of the volunteer women's committee for Green for mayor met yesterday in their headquarters, 332 South Michigan avenue. They started their drive to bring to the polls April 4 the 600,000 Chicagoans who did not vote in the primary. These votes, Mrs. Walter B. Wolf, committee chairman, said, will overwhelmingly elect the Republican candidate, Dwight H. Green.

"In Pennsylvania the Earle administration was turned out through the work of women," Mrs. Wolf told the workers. "In New York, women are given the credit for the huge vote that Tom Dewey got for governor. They are the ones who broke the Tammany machine. Now it is the turn of the women of Chicago to rid another of America's great cities of high cost gang rule."

Bloomington, Ill., March 10.—[Special.]—Mrs. Philip Auth reported today that a thief had stolen a 200 pound concrete bird bath from the yard of her home some time during the night.

Try a Forecast

How good are you at political forecasting?

Here is the material for such a forecast.

The diagram above gives you the information on the total registered vote in Chicago qualified to vote in each of the mayoral elections since 1907, and on the total number of names now on the registration books for the election three weeks from next Tuesday. What will the total vote be in that election?

The ratio of the total vote to the total registration in the last six mayoral elections has ranged from a high of 89 per cent in 1915 to a low of 71 per cent in the 1935 election. The average for the six elections from 1915 to 1935, inclusive, was 83 per cent.

KELLY, COURTNEY WORKERS HOLD HARMONY FEST

More than 500 Kelly and Courtney workers met last night in what was described as the first harmony meeting of the two opposing factions in the Democratic mayoral primary. The meeting was held in the hall of St. John Berchman's church, 2517 Logan boulevard.

Among those present was Clayton F. Smith, president of the county board, who supported State's Attorney Courtney in his unsuccessful campaign. The workers were from the 33d ward. Several party leaders talked. They said that the bitterness of the recent primary was forgotten and urged that all work together as party Democrats for the reëlection of Mayor Kelly.

"This meeting was spontaneous and voluntary on the part of those who had been supporting Mayor Kelly and State's Attorney Courtney in the primary," said Smith. "It's a precedent in my forty years in politics. It may be that other ward organizations will follow suit."

An Office Boy Knows All About Scooter Whooping

Savannah, Ga., March 10.—(AP)—"A boy asked me to go 'scooter whooping' with him and I want to know what kind of game it is before I accept." This query, phoned by a girl, stumped a newspaper staf for a time here today. Finally the office boy said he could answer the query. He defined "scooter-whooping" as a currently popular term for going out and having a good time.

SUMMON TAVERN OWNER ON JURY FIXING CHARGE

Judge Robert Jerome Dunne, in the Criminal court, yesterday ordered Henry Anderson, owner of a tavern at 2002 West Vermont street, Blue Island, to appear in court Monday on a charge of attempted jury tampering. Judge Dunne acted on an affidavit from a juror in the trial of Louis E. Downer, who was acquitted Tuesday on a confidence game charge.

The juror was Adam Wolfrum, 1934 West Vermont street. According to his affidavit, Anderson summoned him to the tavern on Monday night, while the Downer trial was in progress and discussed the case.

Wolfrum notified Judge Dunne. The judge appointed Attorney Stephen Love as friend of the court to present a petition requiring Anderson to show in contempt. Judge Dunne also issued an order requiring Anderson to answer questions concerning his interest in the Downer case.

Judge Warns WPA Men Who Drink He'll Jail Them

New York, March 10.—[Special.]—Magistrate D. Joseph De Andrea, sitting in Brooklyn, made it plain today that WPA workers brought before him for drunkenness will receive no leniency. He sentenced Matthew Kelly, 29 years old, a Brooklyn man employed as a WPA house wrecker, to thirty days in the workhouse for creating a disturbance. "The WPA pays you to keep up your home, not to buy liquor," said the magistrate. "Every time one of you WPA men who spend money on drink gets into trouble and comes before me I am going to send you to jail."

INDICT 2 IN HUGE PLOT TO PIRATE MOVIE COMEDIES

Accused of Selling Prints to Exhibitors Abroad.

A plot to pirate motion picture comedies and short subjects costing thousands of dollars to make was disclosed in federal District court yesterday. The federal grand jury indicted two men on charges of violating the copyright laws. The two named are R. R. Gregg, 5530 Lake Park avenue, and Barney Gold, for whom no address was given.

Martin Ward, assistant United States district attorney, charged that the scheme permitted films made by Gregg at a cost of only a few dollars each to be shown in theaters of certain small European countries even before the original producer could get his own copies there.

Reproduced at Low Cost.

Gregg, according to Ward, is the owner of the Pan-American Film Laboratory at his home address. Gold may be a fictitious person. Neither is in custody and both are being sought. Gregg obtained positives, and in some cases negatives, of popular Hollywood "shorts." From these, it was charged, he made his own positives.

Negatives are the master films from the cameras which actually record the action. Positives are prints from the negatives. The positives are the films from which the picture is projected to the screen.

These positives could be produced at a price so low they could be sold for $10 or rented for $4.50 a day. Generally, they ere made for the 16 millimeter or amateur size projector.

Gregg got his original films, Ward said, by leasing positives from camera companies which legitimately rent them to private exhibitors. He also obtained them from distributors through a hidden deal with some employé.

Accused of Making 100 Copies.

With his laboratory equipment, Gregg could make his own negatives in a few hours. Then, if he used a leased film, he could return it and from then on issue positives.

In the indictment Gregg is accused of making 100 positives of a short film "The Cat's Canary" which was produced and copyrighted by the Van Buren corporation of New York and released through RKO-Radio corporation.

According to Ward, Gregg sold copies of this film to Ciné-Classic Library, Brooklyn, N. Y., and Remington Quality Pictures, Cincinnati, O.

Other films which he is charged with pirating are a short by Moran and Mack, "On the Wing"; an Andy Clyde comedy, "California Peaches"; a comedy, "The Hoosier Schoolmaster," and several Harry Langdon comedies.

An investigation of film pirating activities was started by the Copyright Protective bureau after a large number of films began to appear in European theaters, Ward said. Hollywood producers release films in Great Britain, France, and Germany at the same time they are released in the United States.

$10,000 Film Remade for $5.

However, by agreement among the producers, films are often not released in the smaller countries for long periods. It was this situation that permitted the pirates to operate successfully.

The picture "The Cat's Canary," which cost $10,000 to produce and which Gregg is alleged to have reprinted for about $5, was shown to the grand jury before the indictment was returned.

Gregg was charged with infringing on a copyright and conspiring with Gold to violate the copyright law. Federal Judge William H. Holly, before whom the indictment was returned, fixed bond at $2,500 and issued bench warants for Gregg and Gold. Conviction carries a maximum sentence of two years in jail and a $10,000 fine.

INDICT BROOKLYN PROSECUTION AID ON BRIBE CHARGE

New York, March 10.—[Special.]—Sol Ullman, who was an assistant attorney general for thirteen years until he resigned Feb. 27, was indicted today on charges that he accepted $13,000 in bribes to protect from prosecution a physician charged with agreeing to perform abortions.

The indictment was returned by one of the extraordinary grand juries investigating official corruption and law enforcement in Brooklyn on evidence presented by Special Prosecutor John Harlan Amen.

It was learned that the grand jury had questioned more than fifty physicians in an inquiry into failure to prosecute abortionists. Amen made it clear that there would be more indictments. "This is the first of several indictments which may be expected from the grand jury in its probe of the abortion racket," he said.

He was taken unconscious to the Swedish Covenant hospital, where his condition is considered grave. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Schwab.

Actress Wins Suit

VIRGINIA BRUCE.

Los Angeles, Cal., March 10.—(AP)—Virginia Bruce, film actress, contended she did not cause any unusual wear and tear on furnishings of the home she rented for two years from T. W. Morgan, successfully defended herself today in a suit for $830 brought by him.

Municipal Judge William McKay found for the actress when she testified Morgan had failed to reimburse her for repairs and replacements she had made.

Instead of frequent revels sometimes attributed to movie stars, Miss Bruce gave only one dinner party in two years and the guests left at 8:30 p. m. to go to a skating rink, her cook, Virginia Gack, testified.

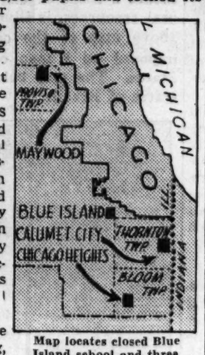
BLUE ISLAND HIGH CLOSED; 3 OTHERS CALLED IN PERIL

Decline in Tax Receipts Brings Trouble.

Blue Island Community High school sent home 1,300 pupils and locked its doors for lack of operating funds yesterday. At the same time it was disclosed that several other district high schools and elementary schools in Cook county also are facing serious financial troubles.



Map locates closed Blue Island school and three others said to be facing emergencies.

Jerome Greenberg, chief accountant for Noble J. Puffer, county superintendent of schools, said at least three high school districts soon would be facing emergencies unless tax collections improve or additional state aid is granted.

The schools he named are the Bloom Township High school in Chicago Heights, Thornton Fractional Township High school in Calumet City, and Proviso Township High school in Maywood. They have a total enrollment of more than 6,500 pupils.

Grade Schools Also in Trouble.

Greenberg said the financial woes of the high schools are paralleled in about forty-five county elementary school districts.

"Here, too," he said, "tax funds are either low or gone, and many of the schools are struggling along without any view of what the future holds. In some cases funds needed for operations are higher than the indicated tax incomes provided tax collections are 100 per cent. Actually, the county has been able to collect only from 40 to 70 per cent of the current tax bill in any fiscal year."

Greenberg said Supt. Puffer predicted the current hardships last Sept. 1, the due date for the final instalment of the 1937 county school tax. At that time Puffer attributed the schools' difficulties to the great decrease in the value of real estate, with the corresponding decrease in assessed valuations for tax purposes.

In some districts assessments have been cut in half. At the same time, high school enrollment has increased greatly, with few pupils able to leave school to go to work.

"The situation in Thornton Fractional is as bad as that in the Blue Island High school," Greenberg said. "At the end of the 1937-'38 term last June the school managed to scrape through only because it had a $37,000 balance from the previous year in the educational fund. There is little or no reserve now. The school will have hard times ahead."

In Bloom township a reserve of $64,000 in 1937 dwindled to $15,700 by 1938 and educational operating expenses were only $16,000 less than tax receipts, Greenberg said. Although the situation is not quite as bad in Proviso township, he continued, that school also may face an emergency.

H. W. Ewert, a member of the Proviso Township High school board of education, said there was no danger of the school closing or of teachers going unpaid.

"We're paying our debts, we've had no trouble in making any payments, and don't expect any," Ewert said.

E. R. Sifert, superintendent of the high school, also attacked Greenberg's statement, declaring that Proviso's financial position has improved during the last year.

Ask Boost in Tax Rate.

Blue Island school officials contend that a boost in the educational tax rate from $1 to $1.50 per $100 of assessed property valuation is necessary before the school may be reopened. The voters have rejected such a proposal three times, and are to vote on it again on April 8.

Greenberg supported the view that an increase in the tax rate is necessary.

"Assessed valuations in Worth township, in which Blue Island is situated, are expected to total $9,760,000 for 1938," Greenberg said. "If the increase in the tax rate is voted on April 8, expected revenues would be $146,000. To this may be added $28,000 in expected back taxes.

"The board spent about $172,000 for educational purposes in the 1937-'38 term. If that expenditure is continued, and even if tax collections are only about 70 per cent, the community will be able to pull out of the hole."

MICHIGAN BILL CALLS HALT ON STRIKE ABUSES

63 Amendments Offered to Stiffen It.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Lansing, Mich., March 10.—[Special.]—A labor bill backed by the Republican state administration was amended today to make it effective for curbing strike troubles in strike harassed Michigan.

The measure reached the floor of the house in the legislature with 63 stiffening amendments. The additions made by the labor committee of the house, which reported the bill, precipitated the hottest fight of the session.

The proposed law is similar to labor legislation recently enacted or pending in several other states. Oregon citizens started the trend by exercising their initiative right to pass a law restricting picketing which virtually has stopped strike disorders there. Wisconsin's house passed a comparable bill yesterday and strike restricting legislation also is pending in Minnesota.

15 Day Cooling Off Period.

In its amended form the Michigan bill provides a fifteen day "cooling off" period before strikes may be started, five days more than any other state has asked. It limits picketing strictly to striking employés of a plant, and prohibits boycotts and the use of banners bearing false and injurious statements.

An amendment also allows employers to refuse reëmployment to workers who have violated terms of the act, while a further addition places hospitals, utilities, dairies, and certain other vital industries among those in which the governor may require uninterrupted service at all times.

Gov. Frank D. Fitzgerald, the state's new Republican executive, who is sponsoring the bill, asked the public to support the measure. "The opposition which has been expressed against the proposed law," he said, "indicates that the bill is just what it was intended to be, a middle of the road measure fair to both labor and employers. It is not pro-labor nor pro-employer. It is pro-public."

Passage Appears Certain.

Representative Walter G. Herrick [R., Hubbardston], chairman of the labor committee, said he was convinced the amendments added to the bill had improved it materially. Passage of the measure is considered probable inasmuch as Republicans have a majority in both houses of the legislature.

However, an attack on the bill was led by Representative Joseph Murphy [D., Detroit], minority floor leader and a member of the labor committee. He denounced the bill in its new form as more severe than the Oregon law. He charged such a law would create industrial warfare rather than bring peace and would have an unsettling effect because every dissatisfied union would give immediate notice of intention to strike over even minor disagreements in order to be prepared for action if negotiations failed.

Aims to Reduce Disorder.

Administration supporters replied that the proposed law will do much to assure stable industrial relations and will reduce to a minimum disorders attending labor disputes. This state has been the main battleground of the C. I. O. in its prolonged series of strikes in the automobile industry. Weariness over the labor wars was attributed to Michigan citizens' repudiation of Gov. Frank Murphy's Democratic régime.

The house debate got out of hand after Representative Murphy charged that the amendments had been attached to the labor bill without his knowledge although he is a member of the committee. Other members of the committee told Murphy it was his own fault if he were uninformed because he had not attended committee meetings.

Speaker Howard Nugent [R., Bad Axe], rapped vainly for order as the argument degenerated into a name calling contest. It finally was decided the bill would be reprinted to show the sixty-three additions before it is given further consideration by the house.

NORTH CHICAGO STRIKERS ADOPT JAIL ROUTINE

Twenty-six men, sentenced to varying terms for contempt of court during C. I. O. strikes in two North Chicago industrial plants, settled into the routine of the Lake county jail at Waukegan yesterday. Five others are to start serving their sentences later.

Ten men were convicted of inciting disorders in violation of injunctions last summer while a strike was in progress against the Chicago Hardware Foundry company. Of this group, all but one have been locked up. Twenty-one were found guilty of contempt during an earlier strike in the Fansteel Metallurgical company factory. Seventeen of them are in jail, and the others are being sought.

Yesterday was visiting day at the jail. About 150 persons called on the new prisoners, most of whom surrendered Thursday.

Hearst-Guild Litigation Sent Back to State Court

Federal Judge Michael L. Igoe yesterday remanded to the Superior court litigation between the Chicago Hearst newspapers and the Chicago Newspaper Guild which the Guild sought to have removed to federal jurisdiction. The action of the guild, which is on strike against the Hearst papers; was taken after Judge Grover C. Niemeyer in Superior court issued an injunction restraining picketing of the Hearst plant.

TWO JAILED FOR BURGLARY.

Odell Sharp, 24 years old, 2817 Cermak road, was sentenced to eight months and Casimer Jendy, 17, of 2255 South Whipple street, to four months in the Bridewell by Judge Joseph B. Hermes yesterday for burglary.

Singer Wins Divorce

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Ethel Shutta Olsen, as she appeared in court yesterday.

Ethel Shutta Olsen, comedienne and singer, walked out of Judge Robert C. O'Connell's court yesterday with a divorce from George Olsen, orchestra leader. She charged desertion. Mrs. Olsen gave her address as the Seneca hotel.

Attorney Benjamin B. Davis, counsel for Olsen, who is in Hollywood, Cal., said an out of court settlement had been agreed upon. The couple will share custody of their two sons, Charles, 11 years old, and George Edward, 9. Mrs. Olsen will receive $150 a month for their support. She was represented by Attorney Albert Sabath.

The divorce was Mrs. Olsen's second. In 1926 she obtained a divorce from Walter Bachelor, scenario writer.

U. S. JURY RULES OUT LIBEL SUIT OF ALTON GIANT

Doctor Is Cleared in $100,000 Action.

St. Joseph Mo., March 10.—[Special.]—A federal court jury decided tonight that Robert Wadlow, young giant of Alton, Ill., was not libelled by a magazine article concerning him. The jury deliberated less than an hour before throwing out his suit for $100,000 damages.

Wadlow had sued Dr. Charles D. Humberd of Barnard, Mo., author of an article which appeared in the Journal of the American Medical association.

Claims Injured Spirit.

The youth contended he was injured in reputation and spirit by the publication of his case history.

The giant, who has appeared with circuses, has been termed the world's tallest man. Now 21 years old, he is 8 feet 8 inches tall, weighs 460 pounds, and wears a size 37 shoe.

Dr. Humberd, testifying in his own defense today, contended he told the truth without malice. He said he regarded Wadlow as the most extraordinary case of giantism he had ever seen.

Tells of Home Visit.

The defendant told of examining Wadlow at his home. Dr. Humberd said his presence appeared to be resented by the giant's family, but they did not directly oppose the interview. He paid Wadlow 50 cents to pose for a snapshot and offered his parents $5 if they would let him return for more examinations, but they refused.

A. F. OF L. AND C.I.O. FAIL TO AGREE ON PEACE TERMS

New York, March 11 [Saturday].—(AP)—American Federation of Labor and C. I. O. conferees ended a five-hour closed conference early today with a statement that no progress had been made toward peace between them, but that they had agreed to continue their White House inspired negotiations.

When it adjourned, Harry Bates, chairman of the A. F. of L. committee, released the following statement made jointly by the two groups:

"The joint committee discussed at length the proposals submitted by the committee for the Congress of Industrial Organizations. Representatives of the American Federation of Labor proposed that negotiations for an adjustment of pending differences proceed from the point where negotiations of December, 1937, left off. It was agreed that the proposal submitted by the American Federation of Labor and any other proposals that may be submitted will be discussed at the meeting which is to convene on Monday at 10 a. m. here."

Senators Won't Let Their Oratory Bring Down Roof

PACKAGED MILK BAN ATTACKED IN SUIT AGAINST CITY

Charge Board of Health Furthers Monopoly.

A suit seeking to compel the city to permit the use of paper containers for milk was filed in federal District court yesterday by the American Can company. Defendants are the city, the board of health, Dr. Robert A. Black, acting president of the board, and three board members, Dr. Francis A. Dulak, Harry J. Reynolds, and Dr. Lloyd Arnold.

The suit asks that the milk ordinance passed Jan. 4, 1935, be construed in a declaratory judgment stating that neither the ordinance nor the board of health rules established under the ordinance forbids the sale of milk in paper containers.

Seek $100,000 Damages.

The suit asks $100,000 damages for loss of business suffered by the company. The bill, drawn by Attorney Andrew D. Collins, asserts that the manufacturers have contracts with both the Bowman and Borden milk companies, but that the board of health refuses to permit sale of the so-called packaged milk.

The suit charges that the present requirement for the use of glass bottles tends to maintain a monopoly.

Paper containers, it contends, are now used in sixty-five large cities and are in general use in Illinois outside Chicago. Two hundred million such containers are being used annually.

The company asserts that it has $1,000,000 worth of equipment for manufacturing the paper containers in its three plants in the Chicago area.

Previous Suit Filed.

On Feb. 2, the Fieldcrest Dairies, Inc., filed suit in the same court to restrain the city from interfering with the use of paper containers.

Advocates of paper containers say they are more economical and more easily handled than bottles. They are as effective as bottles in preventing contamination, according to those who favor their use, and the public likes them.

The board of health forbids their use on the ground that paper containers have not as yet been found to meet health requirements.

MRS. VIRGINIA PATTISON.

Mrs. Virginia Brent Pattison, 23 years old, a model, filed suit for divorce in Superior court yesterday from Harry H. Pattison, a student at the University of Illinois school of pharmacy. She charged cruelty. According to the bill filed by Attorney Jerome B. Strauss, Pattison suffered jealous rages and struck his wife on several occasions. They were married June 18, 1938, at Crown Point, Ind., and separated the following December. Mrs. Pattison lives at 736 Briar place. Her husband, son of William Pattison, owner of a chain of drug stores in Indiana, resides at 1515 Monroe street.

TOLEDO CANVAS PLANT CLOSED BY C. I. O. STRIKE

Toledo, O., March 10.—[Special.]—The Hettrick Manufacturing company plant here, one of the largest canvas manufacturing firms in the United States, was closed today by a strike of 300 employés, and threats were made to close the Goshen, Ind., plant of the same firm. The strike was called by the C. I. O. Textile Workers organizing committee.

The union and the company have been negotiating a new contract for several weeks. The union is opposing the transfer of work from Toledo to the company's Goshen plant and is asking a 10 per cent wage increase and vacations with pay.

I. P. Smith, company president, said no attempt would be made to reopen the plant.

MILKMEN INSIST N.Y. DEALERS SIGN PRICE AGREEMENT

Warn They'll Stop Supply if Demand Is Refused.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Utica, N. Y., March 10.—[Special.]—Five hundred dairymen met here today and voted unanimously to withhold milk from the New York market unless dealers handling 90 per cent of the city's supply sign a price agreement by Tuesday.

The farmers are demanding that price pegging that went on during the now outlawed federal-state milk dictatorship in New York be continued voluntarily by the dealers. They have predicted that the farm price of milk will fall to about half the old pegged level unless some such agreement is made.

Scoff at Importing Milk.

Those present at the conference requested that meetings be held throughout the state to urge producers to stand fast. They scoffed at the announcement that Mayor Fiorella H. La Guardia contemplated the importation of western milk if anything like a milk strike developed in this state, and were confident that a united front would whip the city into line.

Today's action once again focused interest on the confusion that has grown out of Secretary of Agriculture Wallace's attempt to dictate the conditions under which milk for the metropolis is handled. His dictatorship began last September under two laws. One was a federal measure that permits price pegging if two-thirds of the producers in a milk shed make the request. The second was a state law dovetailing with the national act. The first controled interstate shipments, the second intrastate.

Under the dictatorship consumers complained of exorbitant prices to them. New York pays 16¾ cents for grade A milk, which sells in the free Chicago market for 12 cents. Grade B milk sells at 13¾ cents in New York. Many producers also claimed the law was being administered unfairly.

Bars Enforcement of Law.

The complaints were taken into the courts. Several weeks ago the state law was declared unconstitutional. A federal judge soon afterward held the national law had been invoked in an unconstitutional manner and ordered its enforcement discontinued.

Since that time the organized farmers have campaigned for signed price agreements. It was reported early in the week that 60 per cent of dealers had signed. This is not regarded as sufficient to prevent a wholesale price breakdown.

Fascists Seek Influence

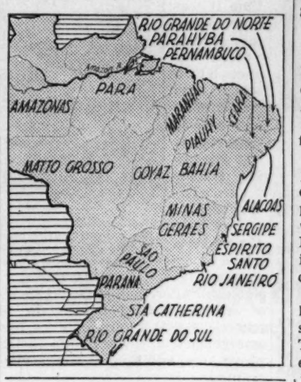
The vast area of Brazil, where Germany, Italy, and Japan are expending much effort and money to secure a share of undeveloped natural resources, is illustrated on the above map of the country superimposed on a map of the United States. The map below shows the states of Brazil.



7 Sentenced as Terrorists Shout 'God Save Ireland'

MANCHESTER, England, March 10.—(AP)—Struggling and screaming, "God Save Ireland," six Irishmen and a young woman were convicted today and sentenced to prison terms totaling 121 years for complicity in recent bomb explosions blamed on the outlawed Irish republican army. The judge, who described the explosions which killed one man as a "diabolical conspiracy," imposed sentences of twenty years each on five of the men, the other was given a fourteen year sentence and the woman seven years.

zon river basin by the thousands without official sanction. The river is so large that ships can slip in from the Atlantic without being detected. The government is investigating this illegal entry.

Italians Have Largest Colony.

The Italians form the largest and best liked group of the European colonists here. Practically all the best hotels are staffed by Italians. Many Italians are leaders in Brazilian affairs.

While Fascism, through Italian papers and radios, keeps hammering out propaganda, apparently little progress is being made. Italians here, while expressing their admiration for Mussolini and voicing their support, inwardly care nothing for their old country.

They have been here too long. They have adopted South America and consider themselves native Brazilians. They marry in Brazil, acquire property, and rear their families according to Brazilian customs.

Jungles Impede Census.

Brazil has an area of 3,275,510 square miles as compared with the 2,973,776 square miles of continental United States. The natural difficulties of Brazil's great forest and jungle hinterland prevent the taking of an accurate census, and population in 1936 was estimated at 41,560,147.

The immigration figures, however, give an indication of the size of the foreign colonies here. From 1887 to 1936 there were 1,354,000 Italian immigrants, 1,148,000 Portuguese, 577,000 Spaniards, 177,000 Japanese, 155,000 Germans, and 107,000 Russians. These were in addition to the earlier large colonies of Italians and Germans.

PLANE WITH OXYGEN FOR OCCUPANTS MAKES SPEEDY 1,100 MI. TRIP

Boston, Mass., March 10.—[Special.]—A commercial passenger plane, whose eleven occupants were equipped with recently designed oxygen masks, arrived here this afternoon after a fast flight from Minneapolis, Minn. The ship averaged 250 miles an hour on the nonstop trip of 1,100 miles.

The plane, a transport of the Northwest Airlines, made the flight to demonstrate the use of oxygen masks in passenger service on high speed substratosphere flights. One-third of the trip was made at a height of 23,000 feet. Two pilots and nine passengers were aboard the plane. One passenger was Mrs. Mal Freeburg, wife of one of the pilots, who said she was "even able to powder my face" while wearing the mask.

UNCHERISHED SHRINES

By CALEB

RECENT publication, in a national weekly, of the photographs of our Presidents' birthplaces gives rise to several interesting considerations. One—as to the truly representative character of our Chief Executives' origins. Another—as to the marked freedom from influence by such origins displayed by those who have reached the White House. And finally—as to the equally marked apathy of the American public toward preservation of these historic shrines for future generations.

Twelve states account for all of our Presidents: Virginia ranking highest, with eight out of thirty-one, and Ohio second, with seven. New York stands third, with four—Vermont, Massachusetts and North Carolina account for two each. Four-fifths of our Presidents thus hail from six states that, in location, background and history are peculiarly American. Of the entire group, Kentucky best signifies how humble can be a cradle's place—how boundless its destiny.

All the variants from stateliness to penury are also reflected in these homes. Solid and imposing Georgian brick housed the infant Washington, at Wakefield, Va.; spaciously Colonial were the James Madison and Woodrow Wilson birthplaces, also in Virginia. In startling contrast are the primitive, windowless log cabins of South Carolina, North Carolina, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Vermont and Kentucky, where Jackson, Polk, Buchanan, Garfield, Lincoln and Arthur were born. Yet few evidences of these gaps in social station later distinguished the well-born from the lowly.

In between these birth extremes of plenty and poverty, stand the middle-class frame dwellings where two out of three of our Presidents spent their childhood—a fact further representative, in its fashion, of the everyday people's type of man who has oftenest risen to the nation's highest trust. And as one scrutinizes these quiet reminders of a history shaped by truly average Americans, his pride is justified by every associated circumstance save one.

That one, alas, is disheartening: the fact that, of our greatest two Presidents' birthplaces, we possess only replicas; while of the remainder, several have been destroyed, and most of the others are left without any provision made for their preservation. It is a strange inconsistency that we would abandon to oblivion the future of our greatest American's birthplaces.

NATIONWIDE PLAN FOR DEATHPROOF ROADS DEMANDED

Congress Asked to Help End Trafic Killings.

BY HAL FOUST.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

San Francisco, Cal., March 10.—[Special.]—The American Road Builders' association petitioned congress today for prompt enactment of legislation to inaugurate a federal program of deathproof highway construction. The petition asks that the roads be built within larger cities and on the more heavily traveled routes approaching these cities.

Herbert R. Anderson, who attacked WPA.

This marks a new step in national support for better roads. For a quarter of a century the rallying cry has been: Pull the country out of the mud. Today it is: Let's pull our cities from their mire of trafic congestion and trafic massacres.

The petition was adopted in the form of a resolution inspired by Murray D. Van Wagoner, Michigan highway commissioner and president of the association. He had suggested a 1 billion dollar federal revolving fund based on an additional federal gasoline tax of 1 cent for a superhighway construction program.

Seek to Spend All on Roads.

Other significant resolutions also were adopted today as the association closed its thirty-sixth convention.

The 20,000 delegates, representing an industry that spent 2 billion dollars and employed 2 million men last year, resolved that all federal automotive taxes should be appropriated for street and road work.

Charles M. Upham, executive director of the association, said that these federal taxes, including $195,000,000 from the 1 cent gasoline excise, aggregated $400,000,000 last year, but that appropriations for highway work were only about $225,000,000.

$170,000,000 Diversion Last Year.

The convention also resolved that states should adopt constitutional amendments to prevent the spending of money from taxes on motorists for purposes not connected with streets and highways. Such diversions from road construction last year totaled $170,000,000.

Another resolution indorsed the contract system of executing construction on public works. This was inspired by a report on the WPA delivered by Herbert R. Anderson of Chicago, president of the Illinois Road Builders' association.

As chairman of an investigating committee he reported that the WPA destroyed the morale of the worker, disrupted the efficiency of his employer, and prevented the taxpayers from receiving full value from expenditures for public improvements.

Chicago is one of five cities bidding for next year's convention. W. M. Parrish of Chicago, president of the manufacturers' division of the association, said he was assured that the association will meet in Chicago if Navy pier is renovated so it can store heavy equipment.

3 TRANSFUSIONS GIVEN IN DAY TO YOUNG MOTHER

Mrs. Bernice Baranski, 21 years old, of 2617 Iowa street, was given three more blood transfusions yesterday in the County hospital in the long struggle to stop severe hemorrhages. These began Jan. 20, three weeks after the birth of her first child. She has now received thirty-four transfusions.

The blood bank at the hospital, which had been running low because of the quantity needed to help Mrs. Baranski, was augmented yesterday by volunteer donations from fifteen persons. On Thursday seven persons each gave a pint of blood.

More than eighty persons in two days have answered the hospital's plea for blood to replenish the supply. Only twenty-two of them had the so-called universal type of blood needed for Mrs. Baranski.

SMOKY JOE DIES IN CHAIR; ADMITS HE SLEW DOZEN

Tucker Prison Farm, Ark., March 10.—(AP)—Joseph B. [Smoky Joe] Anderson, 37 years old, former Indiana convict, died in the electric chair today a few minutes after he told officers he "probably had killed twelve or fifteen people."

Anderson was executed for the robbery-slaying of Eldon Cooley, 26, Hot Springs chain grocery executive, who was shot to death in the mountain area near the resort city.

Shortly before his execution, Anderson told Wayne county [Detroit] Mich., officers that he shot Robert A. Moulch, Hobart Manufacturing company salesman, last summer. The slaying of Moulch, whose body was found on the highway seventeen miles from Detroit, previously had not been solved. Moulch was shot twice through the head.

Anderson also has confessed that he killed George W. Howey of Detroit, Mich., Aug. 23, 1938, to obtain his car, and on Aug. 31 he kidnaped and killed John Colla, Gary, Ind., taxi driver. Later, he confessed the fatal shooting of Fred L. Firth, Oakland county, Mich., farmer.

STRICKEN YOUTH RALLIES; BLOOD OFFERED BY 200

Hope was expressed yesterday that the streptococcus infection which has attacked Jack Gradt, 20 years old, may not be the viridans type, which is rare and deadly, but the hemolytic type, which is common and more easily cured. Gradt was reported recovering in the Holy Cross hospital.

More than two hundred persons have volunteered blood to save the youth, and no more donors are needed at present. Blood samples from the donors are being tested to determine if they will aid Gradt. Gradt lives at 8053 South Paulina street and is a sophomore at De Pauw university at Greencastle, Ind. He contracted the infection after skinning his knee in a basketball game at the university ten days ago.

WARNS DRIVERS: NO EXCUSES, GET YOUR LICENSES

Judge Says All Must Have Them May 1.

Motorists received a stern warning yesterday that every driver must have a driver's license under the new state law effective May 1. Judge Jay A. Schiller of the Safety court, who issued the warning, said there are no loopholes for evading the law, and reminded autoists that any one lacking a license can be fined a maximum of $300.

Judge Jay A. Schiller.

"The legislature has been extremely lenient in giving advance notice that the new licenses will be required," said the judge, "and there will be no excuses for drivers brought into courts without them. There are still seven weeks in which to get licenses."

890,272 Licenses Issued.

The automobile department under Secretary of State Edward J. Hughes in Springfield reported yesterday that 890,272 drivers' licenses had been issued up to March 1. This leaves nearly 1,900,000 Illinois residents qualified to drive who have not yet applied for licenses.

Judge Schiller said the new drivers' license law is much more strict than existing statutes and that it will put teeth in many existing trafic regulations.

"Persons under 15 years old cannot touch the wheel of a car under any circumstance, even if accompanied by their parents," he said. "Youths from 15 to 18 may obtain a license for 25 cents. The price to adults is 50 cents.

Must List Physical Defects.

"Application blanks may be obtained from the secretary of state or through motor clubs and garages. A few simple questions must be answered. If any questions are answered falsely, the secretary of state may revoke the license. Any physical defects must be listed. Persons having such defects may obtain a license by demonstrating they are able to drive properly.

"The new law really has teeth in it. At present it is discretionary whether a driving privilege shall be suspended and in the Safety court about three a day are suspended. After May 1 the judge has no alternative but to suspend the driving license for certain offenses. It will not be necessary to institute contempt of court proceedings to enforce the law."

Under the new law, the judge explained, a driver's license is suspended automatically on conviction for manslaughter with a motor vehicle, driving while drunk or under the influence of drugs, any felony involving the use of a motor vehicle, or conviction on three charges of reckless driving or speeding.

FATALLY INJURED IN FALL.

Frank Jones, 74 years old, died yesterday in County hospital of injuries suffered in a fall Jan. 21 near his home at 10029 Calumet avenue.

DRIVER INJURED CRITICALLY WHEN TRAIN HITS AUTO

Thrown Clear; Car Is Demolished.

Warren Monahan, 1419 Fargo avenue, was injured critically yesterday when the Chicago bound Hiawatha, crack train of the Milwaukee railroad, crashed into his car at the railroad's County Line road crossing south of Deerfield. Monahan's car was demolished, but he was thrown clear. Monahan, who is 40 years old, was taken to the Northwestern hospital in Des Plaines. The crossing is unprotected.

Joseph Schoonjans, 47 years old, was injured critically last night when his automobile collided head-on with a street car on the west approach to the Lawrence avenue bridge. The automobile was crushed beneath the street car, and it was necessary to raise the street car to remove the wreckage. Schoonjans lives at 4780 Elston avenue.

Head-on Crash Fatal to 1.

Stephen Fogarty, 23, of 3136 Lowe avenue, a chauffeur, died in the Illinois Central hospital of injuries received several hours earlier in a head-on collision at 58th street and the Outer drive with a car driven by Michael Loomis, 5034 Fulton street, a gymnasium instructor for the park district. Loomis was injured and was taken to the Jackson Park hospital.

William Salzman, 75 years old, 1432 South Central Park avenue, died early today in Mount Sinai hospital of injuries suffered last night when he was struck by an automobile at Douglas boulevard and Central Park avenue. The driver was Arthur Paradise, 21, of 3635 Harrison street.

Injuries Fatal After Year.

Harry Mike, 26, died yesterday in County hospital of injuries suffered a year ago in an automobile accident at Mount Vernon, Ill. He formerly lived at 1933 South Kedzie avenue.

John Sanson, 7 years old, 8724 Buffalo avenue, died early today in the South Chicago hospital of injuries suffered Tuesday when he was struck by an automobile near his home. The driver was Gilbert Corbin, 34, of Indianapolis, Ind. The boy's father, Michael Sanson, is visiting in Italy.

Up to 4 p. m. yesterday 168 persons had been killed by automobiles in Cook county since Jan. 1. Of these, 134 were killed in Chicago, where 3,363 were injured in the same period.

THE HIGHER UPS AND MEN IN JAIL.

The Lake county jail in Waukegan has 26 new occupants, sit downers who are now sitting it out according to law, serving terms of various duration for contempt of court orders. They are C. I. O. organizers and union members who took part in the seizure of the Fansteel Metallurgical plant and the Chicago Hardware Foundry plant in North Chicago.

Most of the men were employés of the two companies. At the instigation of their leaders they seized the plants and held them in spite of the orders of the court. For a time they repulsed the efforts of the law officers to enforce the writs and engaged in open conflict with the law. They deprived the owners of the use of their property, stopped production, and did considerable material damage.

Meyer Adelman and his associate agitators and organizers and the workers now serving sentence are in jail, but who led them to believe they could do what they attempted? The highest officials in the federal government encouraged them to think they had a right to seize a plant and keep it until their demands were satisfied. When these sitdown seizures of industry began, two years ago, in Michigan, Ohio, and Pennsylvania, Mme. Perkins, secretary of labor, suggested that they were not illegal. Mr. Roosevelt praised Gov. Murphy of Michigan because he called out the National Guard to prevent the serving of writs against men holding automobile plants.

The federal and state governments used the state military power to restrain the police and the local law enforcers. Mr. Farley's postoffice officials made one rule against legal occupants of plants and another for persons in unlawful possession. The attorney general closed his eyes. Interstate commerce was stopped by force and the federal government did not intervene. The national labor board supported every seizure by insisting that the men were within their rights and had a claim for pay for the time they were keeping the employer from the use of his plant and causing him great losses.

The incitement to the acts for which the men are being punished by imprisonment and fine came from the highest officials in the country. Mr. Murphy's part in this did not prevent him from being made attorney general of the United States. Mme. Perkins is not officially rebuked for what she did to encourage the sitdown. The labor board is defiant and unscathed and congress has not seen fit to provide that postal regulations shall never again be as distorted as they were when the delivery of parcel post packages was refused because they were going to men besieged at their places of work.

The law could reach the little fellows in this episode but the persons in high places who were guilty of inciting them to do what they did are untouched, are not held responsible, and will not lose ten minutes worrying about it.

'ARMAMENT FOR FOREIGN WARS.

The vast project for aviation expansion cannot be sensibly accounted for except as a means of aggressive overseas warfare. If American armament is to be based upon national defense aviation is an auxiliary arm, and a program of improved national defense would include large increases in infantry and artillery, the establishment of more officer training schools, and increased provisions for the enlisting or conscription of soldiers.

There is nothing of this in the administration program, but there is concentration on a large increase in aviation, with an official campaign of alarms carried on to support it. Its excessive scale has no intelligible relation to the defensive policy which the American people approve and is explainable only on the hypothesis that the government intends to provide air force for some other army, which in view of recent revelations may be assumed to be the French army.

Not until more trustworthy information on international aviation conditions is available to the American people and the armament program generally is shown to conform to actual American needs and policy should congress accept the costly and dubious armament projects of the administration.

THE CROWN AND THE QUINTS.

Three of the four guardians of the quintuplets, including their father, are not particularly enthusiastic over the proposal that the Dionnes travel to Toronto next May to meet their king and queen. The fourth guardian, who is the official representative of the provincial government, says nothing, but it appears to be pretty generally understood that the quintuplets are going to be presented to their sovereigns whether the guardians like it or not.

This proves a number of things, including the obvious one that guardians are no great improvement on parents. The reason is that guardians are no more able than parents to resist the pressure of public opinion. Children are shown off by their parents, not, as is often supposed, because of parental pride, but only because custom demands that visitors inquire about the young and that the parents [or guardians] then produce them. It is the common lot from which there has been no escape. Every party to the business detests it, and yet it goes on, year after year and generation after generation.

There is an opportunity here for George and Elizabeth to work a great reform, but it is doubtful if they will grasp it. As king and queen they are supposed to set the style of polite behavior in the British empire. Just suppose they were to drop a hint that though their interest in the quintuplets is intense and they fully share the pride which the province of Ontario and, indeed, the entire empire, take in the children, nevertheless the youngsters are better off in their nursery.

That might help. It can be confidently predicted that the example would be followed at once by the king's colonials on Long Island. From there the light might easily reach the United States.

TAX REFORM.

So numerous and so wide have been the swings in market prices and business activity in recent years that only the expert will be able to recall readily the nature of business which prevailed in any particular year of the recent past. However, even in as rapidly a changing scene as we have had, the incidents of the last quarter of 1937 will probably be remembered by most people. Business then had made a good start toward regaining pre-depression levels. The index of manufacturing production had risen to within 4 points of the 1929 mark, having recovered 50 points. Employment had increased substantially. Building construction was doing better than at any time in six years.

The President at that juncture let it be known that he believed that prices were too high. Immediately thereafter, to implement the executive's attitude, a number of steps of a restraining effect were taken. The federal reserve board put into effect an order reducing the amounts which the banks could lend. The treasury sterilized new receipts of gold, which prevented capital flowing here from increasing our bank reserves. At the same time strikes were breaking out all over the country, disorder was being countenanced in several states, and the National Labor Relations board was fomenting industrial unrest by a series of awards which were later condemned by the Supreme court.

All of these things, in combination, were bound to have their effect and starting Sept. 1 business went into the fastest tailspin ever experienced in the United States. Once the administration awoke to the seriousness of the decline it sought counsel from its experts. Two varieties of advice were given—directly opposed to each other. According to one group a reduction of expenditures would right the situation. According to the other an increase in expenditures and more especially of the deficit was called for. The secretary of the treasury, in the belief that he had President Roosevelt's okay, told a distinguished gathering in New York that expenses were going to be cut and the budget balanced. The chief of the opposite policy, speaking, as is his practice, "off-the-record," told one group after another that the whole trouble was that the budget had been allowed to get too small. The spending more counsel prevailed and expenditures were stepped up to the highest point in our experience.

One of the presidential advisers of the bigger deficit persuasion went further than others. He reasoned as follows—if the trouble was too small a deficit, why wait for an increase in the outgo. He proposed that the deficit be immediately raised by curtailing income. His specific plan was to have the government waive the fourth installment of the income tax—the one which fell due on Dec. 15, 1937.

No doubt the excusing of one-quarter of the 1937 tax bill would have produced an immediate rise in some kinds of business. The amount which people didn't have to pay the government could have been used to buy Christmas presents, fur coats, automobiles, and other luxuries. But what of the longer term effect?

What the government spends and does not have the taxes coming in to pay for must be paid for in the future. The greater the deficit, the greater the burden later to be borne. A government which has a deficit cannot stimulate business by cutting taxes unless the tax cut is accompanied by a cut in spending large enough to bring the budget into balance.

Apply this reasoning to the recent suggestion of the secretary of the treasury that congress "take a careful look at the tax laws to see if there are any deterrents holding business men back from making future commitments." He said nothing about the deficit, which more than anything else is holding back business. True, tax laws are about the worst that can be imagined. They cry out for change. Nearly every one knows what the changes ought to be. The complete eradication of surplus earnings is called for. Pay roll taxes must be cut if the situation is going to be eased to any significant degree. And a sharp reduction in the surtaxes on larger incomes is clearly indicated. The government's own experts have repeatedly advised that taxes which exceed 50 per cent reduce income rather than add to it. And despite that fact the present rate goes up to 79 per cent. There are also some desirable changes in the method of taxing capital gains.

Such tax changes as we have suggested, or any tax reform, will be effective in stimulating long term investment in business only if at the same time the government stops piling up unpaid bills which must be paid for out of the future earnings of corporations and individuals. A deficit is a red flag which warns of the lien on future income to provide for the excessive expenditures during the great depression. The appropriations committee must reduce the liens on future incomes by eliminating wasteful expenditures, while the ways and means and finance committees are reforming the tax laws, if the impediments to long term investment and business recovery are to be removed.

WHY NOT BE HUMAN?

[Danville [Ill.] Commercial-News.]

Inferentially, Dr. Newton J. T. Bigelow gave the efficiency experts a bad time when he advised student nurses at Utica, N. Y., the other day not to take some accepted principles too seriously.

He praised such qualities as adaptability, resourcefulness, tact, sympathy, self-control, reaction to criticism, and a sense of humor. Above all he commended the last trait.

This wise doctor speaks sound sense in asking a gentle loosening of the efficiency straitjacket.

A CASTLE IN CHICAGO.

A ruined castle as a playground for a Chicago boy? Impossible, you say? Not at all, for we were the boy, and the castle was Mr. Storey's of the Times. Listen to the tale, which has not been dulled by repetition:

Wilbur F. Storey, editor and publisher of the Chicago Times and a great figure in the town between the '70s and the '80s, decided, when his reason began to totter, to build himself a castle. It was to be for his tradition what San Simeon has been for Mr. Hearst's. So he acquired a square block of woodland—43d to 44th streets, Grand boulevard [now South Park way] to Vincennes avenue—called in his architects and poured out his money. And the castle rose until its tower pierced the sky, or so it seemed to us. But before it was completed Storey cracked up and died.

* * *

Storey's Castle, as it was generally called, and its domain were the Merlin's tower and haunted forest of our early nonage. The building was walled and roofed but unfloored, and it seemed bigger than the Cathedral of Nôtre Dame. Its dismal interior echoed to the twittering of countless birds; there were bats in the belfry; there were "fly cops" around to arrest trespassers. Tramps hid themselves in its shadows for weeks at a time, and occasionally became so depressed by their Gothic environment that they committed suicide by hanging from the beams.

To climb to the top of the tower was a test of boyish hardihood, and no trivial feat. From the basement to the first floor you swarmed up a rope; after that, you went up rotting construction ladders, and if a rung broke you dropped straight to the bottom. Several boys died there from falls within a few years. We have stood on the pinnacle of Storey's Castle, and proclaimed ourself an intrepid lad, but we never offered to repeat the exploit.

* * *

The granite and marble fronts on all of the small houses now in that area came from Storey's Castle. But here's an odd thing: Very few people remember the place, and we have never seen a photograph of it.

SPRING'S OLDEST POET.

(To Geoffrey Chaucer, 1340-1400.)

When Britain's castles, still in massive stone,
With bulk unmouldered showed their turrets high;
Ere powder, coal or printing yet were known
And even love and war went leisurely;
Came Chaucer, like a breath of morning air
To fan the embers of the dying night
And save what warmth of glory hovered there
In rhythmic words exhaling fresh delight.
There is no rival for the wild rose's scent,
There is no other like the April shower;
So Chaucer's secret is a ravishment
Quite his alone, perfected by his power.
The first to rise serene, mature and strong
Lifting the heavy language into song.

Final Decision in Bitter Argument.

Regarding the pronunciation of Pall Mall: A Londoner named John Murray sends word that the cockney east enders say "Pell Mell" and the snooty west enders say "Pawl Mawl." The late Percy Hammond, drama critic in Chicago and New York, used to get around this difficulty and make himself understood by saying ostentatiously, "Pell Mawl" at one time and "Pawl Mell" at another.

Up Pops Another Palindrome.

We thought that we had closed the subject of palindromes, but Contrib Louis Newberger causes us to reopen it with this quaint bit of information:

TWO CIVILIZED PEOPLE.

Man beside me on the bus,
What is to become of us?
Sitting close, yet far apart—
Wonder what is in your heart.

Stop light turns from green to red—
Here we sit and stare ahead,
Think our thoughts in silence, yawn,
Wind our watches . . . Life goes on.

There are lots of things to say—
Have you seen the latest play?
Have you read a book this week?
Maybe you've a piece to speak.

Speak it, please! This is a bore.
I've window-gazed this route before.
Great things might be done and said
While the light turns green from red.

S'posing I should break the ice?
You would think me not quite nice.
If you'd ever be so bold,
Mister, I would cut you cold.

Dear C. C.: Back from the wilds of Guatemala to be greeted by a poem in the Line [3-6-'39] entitled "Just Another Guy," which I did not write, yet which was signed with my initials! Was some one trying to steal into the clan with my brand or are there actually two of us with the same monicker? Wouldn't mind except my friends all asked, "Are you slipping? That poem wasn't half as good as your others!"

Tell the customers, will you, please?

WHAT ARE GROWING PAINS?

THE popular use of the term "growing pains" leads to the question, "What are these manifestations and why do they occur?" That such symptoms are complained of frequently cannot be denied and many a youngster will cry out because of aching legs, arms, or back. The condition is common enough with those in the primary or grammar school grades and parents may think little about it. In fact, some physicians may pass over these episodes as inconsequential.

There are, of course, various causes for discomfort as height increases. Changes in posture—shifting of the lines of force [weight]—may bring about curvature of the spine or flattening of the longitudinal arches of the feet. But this does not mean that every child who is lengthening out rapidly is obliged to endure the least suffering, as the very onset of an ache may sound the call for supports or the correction of body balance.

A few physicians, however, regard any variety of pain during the formative years as rheumatism—an illness which may be the source of much concern later in life because of possible injury to the heart. Indeed—on the assumption that it exists—many of these little patients are put to bed under a medical régime calculated to prevent damage to the pumping organ. Is this necessary or wise in the absence of clear cut proof? Of course—under such a plan—exercise is prohibited and two or three months are taken out of the developmental period without sufficient consideration as to the origin of the twinges.

A recent study was made of over a thousand boys and girls, including some of high school age, with the object of tracing the connection if any, between rheumatism and growing pains. The inescapable conclusion was that there is none. In fact, the entire report administers a sharp rebuke to those who confuse the two.

In the first place, about one-third of all children will display these symptoms and—when carefully analyzed—it will be discovered that the seats of the difficulty lie in the muscles, particularly those on the front of the thighs, in the calves of the legs, behind the knees, and more rarely in the back, shoulders, and arms. Tenderness of the joints is not observed as in rheumatic fever. In other words, all hinged parts move freely and easily and with no indication of swelling or of inflammation. Even though a lad may assert that he has trouble in his knee, a thorough examination may disclose the fact that the areas above or below that point are really responsible. Furthermore, the nature of the soreness is quite different from that of rheumatism, inasmuch as it is severe in type and at times sufficiently agonizing to bring tears.

The treatment in most cases is rest for a moderate length of time—a few days of lessened activity or a brief vacation may banish all signs. If an examination of the blood shows anemia, if there is a rise in the number of white cells, some infectious ailment should be suspected. As a rule, few of these patients will show the slightest abnormality of any sort.

We should understand, then, that while there may be some resemblance between joint troubles [rheumatism] and the subject under discussion, the similarity is confined to one symptom only—namely, pain. This demands judicious investigation of each individual case so that the child who does not have the former shall not be punished by long confinement in bed. On the other hand, if infection is actually present—and it may be in some instances—it would be equally disastrous to fail to make an honest effort to save the heart from its after effects.

We must remember that rheumatism always involves the joints and the patient will wince on pressure and movement. In growing pains, knees, elbows, etc., are rarely if ever sensitive and the sites of trouble are the muscles, the ligaments, and the tendons. Several years ago—of more than 500 children between the ages of 4 and 14 examined in one of our large clinics—33.6 per cent were found to have been bothered by some muscular distress [growing pains]. Not a single one gave any evidence of rheumatic fever and all were restored to health under a common sense process of rest, plenty of food, sleep, warm baths, and gentle massage.

FRESH AIR AT NIGHT.

Mrs. T. writes: In very severe weather my husband thinks it is better not to open the bedroom windows. He says air seeps in through the cracks. Is he right?

REPLY.

The subject of fresh air is one which comes up for discussion frequently. We feel that as long as the air is circulating naturally, this is all that is necessary. There is no reason why it should be cold. Any room, particularly the bedroom, should not be stuffy. Neither is it sensible to cover the head during the day and expose it at night.

"SOLDIER'S HEART."

V. R. writes: What are the symptoms of the condition which used to be called cardiac asthenia? What is the treatment?

REPLY.

The term implies heart weakness of nervous origin. During the late war "soldier's heart" was a common diagnosis. The condition is characterized by rapid beat although there is no organic defect. The patient is unable to cope with the stress and strain of his environment and may seek refuge in a nervous breakdown.

NOT LIKELY.

A. M. M. writes: Once a man is sterilized by operation, can anything be done to undo the procedure?

REPLY.

Surgery may be attempted, but there is little chance that the operation will be successful.

APPLE IS NOT ROUGHAGE.

Y. N. writes: Would raw apples [peeled] be considered roughage in the diet?

REPLY.

Not if properly chewed. The quantity of cellulose in apples is not large.

NO, BUT UNDESIRABLE.

R. F. writes: Is the presence of a tapeworm unusual?

REPLY.

No. Many persons who eat raw or improperly cooked beef, ham, or fish will acquire one of these guests.

ONE WAY TO ECONOMIZE.

New London, Ia., March 4.—The plan for a 10 per cent reduction in governmental expenditures by Senator Harrison and ably supported in your editorial, "This Way to Recovery," should meet with the commendation of all men who are seriously interested in a return to financial sanity and morality.

Ultimately a halt must be called to the astronomical spendings—spendings which run the gamut of human activity from studies in how to build a chicken house to the actual building of dams and row houses and thousands of federal buildings, all in direct conflict with private industry and initiative—spendings which equal one-fourth of the earnings of every man and woman of the nation.

In the search for avenues of retrenchment perhaps it would be well to consider the possibility of revoking the silver purchase act, which so far has cost this country over one billion dollars with no appreciable result except to further upset the economic equilibrium. The record so far is as follows:

First, it caused an economic crisis in China and drove it off the silver standard. It had formerly been the world's largest buyer of silver. This market was practically destroyed and China went from prosperity into depression. The Chinese people begged help against our silver policy.

Second, it drove Mexico, the world's largest silver producer, off its silver currency on to a paper currency, although Mexico had been a signatory to the London silver agreement and had agreed not to demonetize.

Third, it resulted in the United States pegging the world price of silver in the London market in defiance of the age old law of supply and demand.

Fourth, it resulted in the United States acquiring annually a total number of ounces greater than the world's new production, and yet the United States treasury is no nearer its goal than when it started in 1934.

The crowning act of this folly is to continue buying silver at a fancy, uneconomical price in defiance of economic laws and then bury it in a beautiful mausoleum at West Point and get it out of sight. ALEXANDER R. PORTEOUS.

THE LONGER SCHOOL TERM.

Chicago, March 6.—I just finished reading of the plan for restoration of the ten month school term. It is true it will increase the pay of school employés, which will be very nice for them, but what of the children's side of it?

For a growing child nothing can be gained by an additional two weeks spent in a schoolroom during our hot Chicago weather. Having been a teacher I know that the children are restless and inattentive even during the last warm days of the usual nine month term. Being a mother I know that for their physical development and welfare they need every day of their present vacation. S. C. K.

REALPOLITIK.

Chicago, March 5.—The alleged Nazi military thrust into central Europe and the Balkans or toward the east can be frustrated if the Rumanians and Serbians will realize how infamous and criminal was their robbery of territory from Hungary after the war and will now express a desire to return it. Otherwise it would not be possible for Hungary to have any special liking for either of these states. With Poland and Hungary allied in a common budding friendship the addition of Rumania and Yugo-Slavia and others down the line to the Ægean, Black, and Ionian seas would prove a formidable array of forces. HUNGARIAN.

PERFIDIOUS.

Gary, Ind., March 3.—When the history of the last few years is written the record of the English government will condemn it to all men. It is a record of betrayals and hypocritical dealings.

The British government sabotaged the disarmament conference, then winked at German rearmament, and even furthered it with the Anglo-German naval agreement. It allowed the reoccupation of the Rhineland and the conquest of Austria, and actively assisted in the dismemberment of Czecho-Slovakia. It has cloaked and actively aided the foreign invasion of Spain.

To Fascist Italy these gentlemen have been as helpful as Nazi Germany. They helped Mussolini in his conquest of Ethiopia by withholding arms from the Abyssinians and selling them to the Italians, while at the same time slobbering over the fate of small nations. The sanctions they proposed were a solemn farce for home consumption. When the use of poison gas by the Italian army was proven by records of foreign correspondents and records of the Suez canal, the British government still shielded the criminals by pleading they had no information.

It is this government that is regarded by Mr. Roosevelt as a fellow democracy and ally. W. J. VALENTINE.

THE ROLE OF DEBT.

Chicago, March 3.—Yesterday's TRIBUNE contained a graph showing comparative federal public debt since the world war. The lowest period was 1929 to 1931. If, as you contend, the present debt is restraining prosperity and economic improvement, how can you explain the fact that during the period of low debt there occurred the most severe economic disturbance in the history of our country? W. P. QUINN.

MODEL YOUNG MAN.

Chicago, March 5.—Cecil Smith remarks, "There is nothing quite like a Nelson Eddy recital," and notes the great preponderance of young women in the audience.

I wish men in general would solemnly regard the warning there. Evidently those young women find few men in sight who win feminine admiration, else enthusiasm wouldn't run so emphatic for one man. To voice, charm, looks, and industry [what a worker Nelson Eddy is] this one adds commendable character.

Would that more men strove as well to improve all attributes. Point that out next time, will you, Cecil Smith? So many men content themselves with ridiculing the ladies instead of finding the beam in their own eyes. LYN BRUCE.

SCHOOL EXPENSES.

Chicago, March 4.—In the article about the board of education's wanting the legislature to provide an increase of $2,775,000 in the school revenue I notice that the object of the increase is to lengthen the school term and restore the pay to pre-depression levels.

On the financial page of this morning's paper you publish a chart which shows that living costs are only 82.7 per cent of pre-depression levels.

In view of this fact I cannot follow the reasoning of the financial wizards of the school board. Perhaps they think that the poor harassed property owner is receiving greater rents from the employés of the school system. A TAXPAYER.

SALE OF ASSETS.

Rockford, Ill., March 1.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—My husband passed away last December. At the time of death he owned and operated a barber shop. However, he did not own the building where the shop was located. I have sold the shop and furnished the buyer with a bill of sale. There are no outstanding bills against the business or estate, all bills having been paid. My husband's will left everything to me, naming me executrix.

1. Is it necessary that this be advertised in the paper [2] in regard to any bills against the estate before it can be closed?
3. How soon can a case of this kind be closed?
4. Does it have to wait a year? H. M.

1. No.
2. Under the bulk sales law it would have been wise for the purchaser to have insisted on an affidavit as to creditors, and on the statutory notice to any creditors listed, but on your facts we see no reason why you should worry about it.
3. It is not clear what "case" you mean. As we understand it, you intend to dispense with probate.
4. The antecedent of this pronoun is not clear. No necessity for probate appears from the bare facts that you state, if that is what you mean to ask.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

REAL ESTATE PURCHASE.

Chicago, March 2.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. I am about to purchase a vacant lot, expecting to close the deal within a week or so.

2. Who pays the 1938 taxes?
3. I claim inasmuch as I did not own it during 1938 I should not pay taxes on something I did not own.
4. He claims because the tax bill has not been issued as yet I am to pay. This transaction was first considered last August. That is, we decided to buy it in August, but on account of straightening out back taxes the deal could not be closed until now.
5. Would this make me liable for taxes from August, 1938? E. E.

1. It is nearly always advisable for a purchaser of real estate to employ an attorney throughout, and we advise you to employ one now.
2. Ordinarily the contract provides that the seller pays all taxes for previous years and that the taxes for the year in which the deal is handled is prorated between the two.
3. You are right.
4. This is not the usual procedure. The important point is the year which the taxes cover rather than the time when the bill is received.
5. If you mean that a contract was entered into last year, your rights would depend on the wording of that contract.

SATURDAY NEWS OF NEW BOOKS

T. E. Lawrence Letters Shed No Light on Riddle

BY EDITH WEIGLE.

"The Letters of T. E. Lawrence," edited by David Garnett. [Doubleday-Doran, $5.] Published yesterday.

The 873 pages of letters in this volume do not shed a ray of new light on that strange and spectacular man, Lawrence of Arabia. Like most letters, they were written to impart news of the moment, and therefore are not concerned with beauty of style. Reading a number of them at a time is like listening to a trip-hammer. The sentences lack cadence and grace of rhythm.

David Garnett.

On the other hand, in the long screeds Lawrence sent his mother when, as a student, he was taking hiking trips through France and Syria, and a little later, when he was doing archæological work at Carchemish, there is a wealth of description, much of it beautifully done. All the letters stubbornly refuse to reveal the writer's emotions, however. Even his closest friends never got behind the barrier of his brilliant, sharp edged intellect, never seemed really to touch his heart.

During his comparatively short life he was archæologist, military leader, statesman, aircraft rooky, army recruit, and mechanic. Because he felt England had betrayed the Arabs at the peace conference after the world war he refused to benefit in any way from what he had done in Arabia. He even changed his name, becoming John Hume Ross and T. E. Shaw.

His last years were spent in constant association with raw recruits in the army, men mentally his inferiors, and in living a life distasteful to him in almost every way. "This place hurts me, body and soul," he wrote. A giant chained to Lilliputians, he refused to give himself freedom.

Readers of "Seven Pillars of Wisdom" will want to peruse these letters. But if they seek in them a solution of the riddle that was T. E. Lawrence they are going to be disappointed.

Story of Quest for Love

"Doctor Addams," by Irving Fineman. [Random House, $2.50.] Published Tuesday.

Irving Fineman spent four years in the preparation of this intricate study of a modern scientist in search of an ideal love. Alex Addams is that strange anachronism, a scientist who knows a great deal about the problems of marriage, yet nothing about them. His studies of the subject as a biophysicist do not aid him in any practical way.

His own marriage is a failure, and when he discovers that at last he has found his ideal woman it is only to learn from her lips that he has not been able to hold her and that she is going to marry one of his brilliant young assistants.

The story is at times difficult to follow, for the author frequently interlards conversations with long passages in smaller type describing the speakers' thoughts, memories, and emotions. Modern problems of marriage and the emancipation of the sexes are discussed from all possible angles. The scientific approach through the latest discoveries of medical science, with all its highly technical terms, is apt to puzzle the layman who will, however, read on because of his interest in Dr. Addams, in Irene, Louise, Mac, Jon, Hans, and the other people in the story.

"Doctor Addams" is an amazing book, completely out spoken, yet not, apparently, intentionally sensational. It is intended, of course, for adult readers.

Prairie Wife's Struggles

"Hope of Living," by J. Hyatt Downing. [Putnam's, $2.50.] Published yesterday.

Only thirty-five years ago vast sweeps of prairie land in South Dakota were still cattle country, and pioneer farmers were only beginning their long, wearisome trek in covered wagons to claim government acres for their own.

In "Hope of Living" one wagon out of the big parade is singled out and the reader follows the fortunes of young Anna Walrod, a bride, and her husband, Jake. Anna is an intelligent, sensitive girl and her nature soon rebels against the coarseness and brutishness of her husband. She had married him only because life at home was intolerable and her mother goaded her into it.

She soon finds that Jake will always be satisfied to work as hired hand for some one else, instead of accumulating land and wealth for himself. Through the love of Michael Shea, a disillusioned young doctor who has come out to the prairies to fight tuberculosis, she finds herself and new horizons are opened to her.

She loses him and the great love of her life, but she goes on determined to make something of herself. Through the kindly help of the small town banker and a German neighbor, Gus Schultze, Anna buys cattle and raises them for the market. In twenty years she owns two ranches, thousands of head of steers, and is well to do, and independent. It is then that the greatest blow falls in the failure of her son to develop intellectually, as she had hoped. He is his father all over again. But as the story closes, Anna is giving herself a respite to find "new strength to go on with her life."

This novel is written simply, sincerely and with great appeal. It has a beauty of its own that casts a quiet glow over its pages.

In Defense of Maids

"A Good Home with Nice People," by Josephine Lawrence. [Little-Brown, $2.50.]

The author of "If I had Four Apples" takes up the cause of the cook in her latest book. By showing the home life of two typical, if decidedly disagreeable, small town families, she presents the case of the maid of all work, whose troubles are many. She works for too little money, she has no privacy and is not permitted to have much pride; even her free time is often at the whim of her employer's wife, and her hours are too long. She must stand all sorts of petty indignities, put up with the temperament of every member of the family, and adapt herself always to their way of living.

Josephine Lawrence.

The maids concerned in the story are Clara, Bessie, and Opal and they are seen against the backgrounds of two women ridden households. In one the mother is a tyrant and an eternal chatterbox; in the other she is highly efficient and practical, but heartless.

Not a pleasant tale, but if it helps the lot of the gal in the kitchen, O. K.

Three Volumes Weigh World's War Prospects

BY SEYMOUR KORMAN.

In this troubled world, is there a real hope for peace? Will the totalitarian states ultimately plunge all peoples into a war more terrible than all past conflicts? In three books published recently authoritative writers seek to interpret present conditions and compound a prophecy.

Post Munich Picture

"Survey After Munich," by Graham Hutton. [Little Brown, $2.50.]

"The real danger to Europe," writes Graham Hutton, "is not so much an immediate war as a continuation of the kind of thing which has been called peace these last five years."

Mr. Hutton, an extensive traveler and contributor to magazines, has talked with many world figures in the last few years. He reviews the situation since the Munich peace and draws the following conclusions:

The western European powers have resources to rearm as effectively as Germany and Italy, perhaps more so. They have the economic advantage, but they lack either the will or ability to meet their responsibilities.

Democracies can be as effective as dictatorships only if they have voluntary and democratic totalitarianism, which would include a complete nationalistic foreign policy and defense system.

Neither the political nor economic diplomacy of the totalitarian states is really efficient. It is cumbersome, costly, overcomplicated. A firmly executed diplomacy by the western powers could effectively combat it.

A Premise for Peace

"The Clue to History," by John Macmurray. [Harper, $2.50.]

John Macmurray develops his book on the premise that the crisis of our civilization is linked up with the understanding of Christianity. He discusses Christianity in the light of the Hebrew consciousness and the teachings of Jesus.

The will to power is its own frustration, he believes, and the meek will eventually inherit the earth.

"It is not civilization that is being destroyed," he writes, "but only the modern form of western society and its dualist consciousness. For fascism is a purely negative will, and its power to act negatively and destructively is borrowed from the very positive forces which it negates. It cannot triumph. It can only destroy itself and create its opposite."

A Plea to Americans

"The New Western Front," by Stuart Chase. [Harcourt Brace, $1.50.]

This book is a plea to the American people to be calm in the face of the European crisis—to realize that this country need not necessarily be drawn into a war overseas again. From an economic viewpoint, Stuart Chase says, we can afford to do what no other nation can: We can exert mighty pressure toward peace.

'American Saga' Presents History of Nation in Contemporary Words

"American Saga," by Marjorie Barstow Greenbie. [Whittlesey House, $4.]

From the pilgrim fathers to the pages of today's newspaper the record of America has been one of the seeking for a better life. Mrs. Greenbie, with patience, wit, and an excellent sense of what is quotable, has gathered together the records of those dreams and achievements which are the stuff of which America is made.

What she has accomplished is an informal history of the nation, from the founding efforts of William Penn, Gen. Oglethorpe, and their peers, through the stirring birth pains which carried Washington and Franklin to heroism; into the fertile valleys of the west, where Johnny Appleseed and Peter Cartright were the evangels, Daniel Boone and Davy Crockett the mighty hunters, and Cincinnati the Athens of the frontier. In their footsteps, pressing west, came Kit Carson, Henry Sibley, J. C. Fremont, Mark Twain, and others, and after them the company whose names have scarcely yet been inscribed in history.

Letters, travelers' accounts, and popular literature have been her sources, cemented with an unobtrusive narrative which joins together what she has brought from the past to tell its story to the present. The story becomes thrilling when retold in contemporary words. It has the color, the urgency, the immediate vigor of what was then the present.

Lore of the Theater

"The Theory of the Theater," by Clayton Hamilton. [Holt, $3.50.]

For thirty years Clayton Hamilton has been associated with the theater—as student, teacher, critic, and producer. He has seen thousands of plays and known thousands of actors. And he has fused the lore and fascination of the theater into this volume. It contains sections from his earlier books, but the material has been elaborated and brought up to date. There are numerous anecdotes and quotations to illustrate his points. One set of chapters is devoted to problems of the playwright and analyzes the technique which results in successful drama and the shortcomings which doom other plays.

Civil War Battles Studied

"Lee, Grant and Sherman," by Col. Alfred H. Burne. [Scribners, $3.]

Military men the world over are students of the American civil war because it still stands as one of the world's most brilliantly fought conflicts. Col. Alfred H. Burne of the British army concerns himself here with the leadership of both sides during the final phase—1864-'65.

Lee is seen in the Battle of the Wilderness, at Cold Harbor, and in the Spottsylvania campaign, opposed to Grant whose thrusts at the confederate supply trains finally dislodged the southern army from its entrenchments and started it on the road to Appomattox. Sherman's crushing campaign against Johnston and Hood is evaluated comprehensively and impartially, as is Sheridan's devastating raid through the Shenandoah valley.

This book is intended for the military student rather than the casual reader and is a valuable contribution to civil war literature. Maps make clear the daily operations of the armies and there is an interpretive introduction by Douglas Southall Freeman, author of the great biography, "R. E. Lee."

Amusing Little Fantasy

"Such Ways Are Dangerous," by Constance Wilcox Pignatelli. [McBride, $2.]

This gay, fantastic little tale is about a New England spinster who inherits a fortune and a house on the East river in New York from a previously unknown aunt, without even the grief of attending her funeral. Her next door neighbors, who share Great-Aunt Elizabeth's gardens, are a crew as unscrupulous as they are sophisticated—and in sophistication they are ultra-ultra.

Constance Pignatelli.

Mouselike Caroline is taken for a fantastic ride for her money. They all "make hay" while her fortune shines. An Italian count woos her. An interior decorator hires fifty workmen and does over Aunt Elizabeth's comfortable Victorian house with black monkeys and white unicorns and trick mirrors on the walls and floors as a surprise for Caroline while she is away for ten days. The fantastic bubble blows itself up, like the frog in the fable. In fact, the whole spirit of the tale is grownup fantasy. Amusing, but as factual as a fairy tale.

Bizarre Background

"The Age of the Fish," by Odon von Horvath. [Dial, $2.]

Murder in a boys' camp against a bizarre background of distorted personalities and warped emotions is the meat of this book by an author hailed in Europe, says his publisher, as one of the greats of modern letters. Von Horvath was killed in an extraordinary accident; a tree fell upon him as he was strolling in a Paris street. Von Horvath was a German, and the action of his story is in a totalitarian state, presumably his own country. It is told in a mystical atmosphere, and well told, although the story of childish murder plotting might, it seemed to this reviewer, have been even more interestingly written if freed from the weight of political feeling in which the author wrapped it.

Bertram Gives a New View of Today's China

BY WILL DAVIDSON.

"Unconquered," by James Bertram. [John Day, $3.]

Almost two years ago James Bertram published the year's most entertaining book on the Chinese situation. "First Act in China" revealed how the kidnaping of Chiang Kai-shek by the Red army served to show the generalissimo that if he wanted to defeat Japan he should stop chasing the Red army as he had been for years.

Later Mr. Bertram was in Japan when the shots at Marco Polo bridge started the present Sino-Japanese conflict. He left a peaceful, proud Japan and returned to a China not only united in political beliefs but also aroused and unified as a race. China will never be another Czecho-Slovakia, Mr. Bertram says. The terror of the invasion and the concomitant birth of a nationalistic spirit have taught the Chinese what it is they are fighting for. "When a whole people are aroused to arms as the Chinese people are today," he writes, "they may lose every battle but the last."

In contrast, Mr. Bertram returned to Japan, after a year, to find a people saddened and stupefied by a war they could not understand. The embarrassment of the Japanese propagandists was that they had no real war to publicize—no danger to the fatherland, no way to explain the prolongation of hostilities and the resultant economic stringencies.

Perhaps Mr. Bertram is too entertaining to be taken seriously by the historical minded. Yet his very ability to entertain makes him one of the very few important writers now viewing the situation in the orient.

Visit to Soviet China

"Inside Red China," by Nym Wales. [Doubleday-Doran, $3.]

Nym Wales, wife of Edgar Snow, went along when the author of "Red Star Over China" made his visit to soviet China. Being a woman, she noticed things he passed over. During four months she formed a picture of the Chinese communists. She lived their lives, met their leaders, saw their government surrender its individuality the better to repel Japan. The result of these observations, plus her distinctive and entertaining style, is a clear, sometimes amazing, picture of a section of China.

By Mae Tinée.

Good Morning!

Lovers of opera should mosey over to the World Playhouse and observe the screen adaptation of "Pagliacci."

Some liberties have been taken with the story, but they are unobjectionable ones, and I think you'll enjoy both the hearing and the seeing of the piece, featuring, as it does Richard Tauber, an artist of highest standing [so Mr. Barry tells me]. His rich voice, powerful, but mellow as a sun warmed peach, is bulwarked by an ingratiating personality, and he injects force, feeling, and intelligence into his acting. An able cast supports him. Steffi Duna is lovely!

The picture form follows the opera as to prelude, play, and play within a play.

There is some charming scenery, effectively photographed.

Many have been the wailers at the gates of Moviedom—wailers with varied grievances. I hope those who have torn their hair because of a lack of screened operas will rally round "Pagliacci" and thus provide producers with incentive to go ahead and make some more.

See you tomorrow.

Looking at Hollywood
By Ed Sullivan

[Movie notables are contributing columns while Ed Sullivan is on vacation]

Forget-Me-Nots.

BY DIRECTOR CLARENCE BROWN.

Hollywood, Cal., March 10.—Does your memory go back to the prison scene in "The Great Redeemer," in which the vision of Christ on the cross comes to life in the prison cell for House Peters? That scene, I believe, was inspired. It has remained outstanding for me, probably because that was the first picture I directed. Ever since I have tried to select my scripts at M.-G.-M. because of one outstanding scene in them.

Do you remember the runaway train in "The Signal Tower," with Rockcliffe Fellows, as the tower operator, frantically trying to derail the runaway freight to prevent its crashing into the Limited while the heavy Wallace Beery is at Fellows' home attempting to seduce his wife, Virginia Valli, and Fellows cannot leave his post? Pictures could do with spine tingling scenes today instead of their tendency to talk, talk, talk.

The birthday party scene in "Smoldering Fires." Malcolm MacGregor, as Pauline Frederick's young lover, laughingly blowing up toy balloons with Pauline's young sister, Laura LaPlante. On the balloon is the face of a beautiful woman and, as the air escapes from the sphere, the face becomes old and wrinkled, and Pauline, watching, realizes that she is losing her lover to a younger, more attractive rival.

Jack Pickford being given the third degree in "The Goose Woman" after his mother, Louise Dresser, has unconsciously put the noose around his neck by the lies she told in her craving for the limelight.

The theater scene in "Kiki," with Norma Talmadge and Ronald Colman, the forerunner of dozens of similar comedy scenes since. . . . Norma as the street gamin who has "fudged" her way into the chorus—every one is out of step but her—finally she falls into the bass drum. . . . All the love scenes in "Flesh and the Devil," the first meeting between Garbo and John Gilbert . . . the duel scenes in the same picture. . . . The trek over Chilkoot pass and the ride down the rapids in "The Trail of '98" with Ralph Forbes and Dolores Del Rio.

The death of Doug Fairbanks Jr. in "A Woman of Affairs," when Lewis Stone, as the doctor, receiving no answer from the staring face opposite him, passes his hands across young Fairbanks' eyes and realizes he is talking to a dead man.

The suicide of Karen Morley in "Inspiration." Again Lewis Stone, as the older lover who wishes to go on to new fields. As he climbs the three flights of stairs to her apartment he tells her of his decision, hands her the key to her room from his keyring, then goes blithely down again, twirling his cane. And, as he opens the front door, her body is on the sidewalk in front of him.

The party scene in "Possession," where Frank Conroy, as Gable's friend, brings in a girl of the streets and immediately places her on the same level as Crawford. . . . Lionel Barrymore winning his case in the trial scene of "A Free Soul," and dropping dead. That was the academy award scene of that year. . . . The death of the two aviators, Gable and Leslie Fenton, in "Night Flight." The scene between the father and the son, Lionel Barrymore and Eric Linden, in "Ah, Wilderness." The death of Garbo in "Anna Karenina."

"Anna Christie"—the barroom scene, where Marie Dressler, who has been kicked out by George Marion because his daughter, Greta Garbo, is visiting him, realizes that the daughter is plying her age-old trade. . . .

"Emma"—the hilarious slapstick railroad station episode between Dressler and Jean Hersholt, when the alarm clock goes off in the baggage. . . . "The Gorgeous Hussy"—the death of Beulah Bondi as Mrs. Andrew Jackson. . . . "Of Human Hearts"—Lincoln, played by John Carradine, denouncing the ingratitude of the boy, James Stewart.

"Conquest"—the first love scene between Garbo and Charles Boyer. . . . And the scene in "Idiot's Delight," where Gable recognizes Shearer, the phony Russian countess. To say nothing of Gable's dancing with "Les Blondes."

That brings it up to date, Ed.

If your telephone is in a dark corner, or if you jump up to answer it at night, you'll be interested in a clever new memorandum pad that is illuminated simply by pulling out a pencil. Take your notes, push the pencil back in place, and the light is shut off.

The tiny bulb in the top of this pad-device is fed by a small battery. The same type as that found in pocket flash lights is used. The price of this telephone convenience is not at all high and it makes an attractive gift or bridge prize.

Young Artists Paint Chicago as They See It

The first showing of the rejuvenated art being taught in Chicago public high schools opens next Monday morning in the north corridors of the Chicago Public library. The exhibit gives meaning to Supt. William H. Johnson's often quoted words, "a program of developing the individual." Such was the reaction to the preview yesterday.

Two years ago the formal and uninspiring methods of teaching art in high schools were abandoned. Then a teacher placed a pot of flowers before her class and gave up, said Miss Elizabeth Wells Robertson. Miss Robertson was appointed the first director of art two years ago. Then for the first time high school children were allowed to continue the creative art which already had been taught in grade schools. The concept that they were adults and divorced from childhood was abandoned. The pupils were encouraged to express the experience of childhood freely and vividly.

The results are exciting. Unemployed men drifting through the corridors stopped, compelled, before the childish drawings. Loop employed girls rushing in for a book at the noon hour stopped and teetered on their high heels, sighing, "I'd like to learn to paint."

It is a city wide exhibit, and breathes the life of varied neighborhoods. Librarian Carl Roden's favorite is a group of girls and mother, their backs to the observer, seated in the prow of a boat, the figures familiar as only excellent drawing can make them. This was by L. Schneider, of Tuley High school.

Neighborhoods where the lake is forgotten are represented by other scenes. South Chicago pupils of Bowen school, children of mill workers, have shown molten steel in all its fierce beauty; the yawning craw of the crucible, and before it shadowy figures of steel workers, and the swinging crane.

"Some of our most remarkable work has been done by Negro children," said Miss Robertson. "They have that dramatic ability to tell a valid story."

From Wendell Phillips school come the spirited and gay illustrations of Negro spirituals, taken by the children from their own picturings of the songs they've heard since childhood. Hosie Mae Miller, a pupil here, shows in crayon a colored angel playing a large harp on a cloud, with flowers springing up here and there.

John Daus, colored pupil of DuSable, picked as his theme a junkman arriving home with his hand drawn cart, but it is not a dejected scene. Vitality is crammed into the moving muscles of the junkman and the leaning houses in the background. He made them lean because in his neighborhood they do lean, he told his teacher.

Tenderly, yet with lively color and a free, massive technique, Theodore Jenkins of DuSable school, shows the colored mother stooping to scoop up coal for her stove. A line of washing hangs stiffly overhead.

Familiar scenes the children chose. Mary Bedel of Waller High school puts rhythm and buoyant color in her grocery scene, where men are unloading apples. Choirs, altars, dances, skating scenes, city streets, all are included. A quilt showing the community mailman, fireman, a fisherman, garbage collector, street sweeper, steel worker, and milkman, made by boys and girls from the far south side, hangs at one end of the exhibit.

French Visitor Being Feted at Many Parties

BY JUDITH CASS.

An attractive Frenchman with an American heritage of red hair who has been taking the town by storm is Jehan de Nouë, representative of the Guardians of French Art. He will speak before the Alliance Française at 11:30 o'clock this morning. Through their great-grandfather, Gen. William Harney of civil war fame, M. de Nouë and F. Harney Bassett are cousins.

Mrs. Bassett, who has given several small parties for her husband's kinsman, is entertaining for him at luncheon today, after which M. de Nouë will leave for St. Louis. A guest at the luncheon, if business affairs permit, will be Mrs. Bassett's sister, Mrs. Rinaldo Arese [Jane Scriven Finlay], who has been spending this week with the Bassetts. Since her visit here is on business matters, Mrs. Arese hasn't had time for parties, but her friends will be able to entertain for her and her husband when they come west in May. The Areses have moved from New Hampshire into New York, where he is completing a book.

Mrs. John Crerar entertained at dinner last night for M. de Nouë and the John L. Cochrans entertained at cocktails yesterday. There will be dozens of parties for him in St. Louis, the home of Mr. Bassett's family. While he was in New York the visitor was a guest of Mrs. Frederick T. Haskell at Hampshire house.

M. de Nouë, who is in his early thirties and unmarried, is the owner of a charming and historic château near Paris. He usually lectures on old châteaux. His subject this morning in the library of the Alliance will be "Old Traditions of France."

Mrs. Arese is returning to New York on Sunday.

Rosary Alumnae Will Sponsor Curie Lecture.

A French woman who will be welcomed in Chicago late this month is Mlle. Eve Curie, daughter of one of the world's most distinguished women and author of her mother's biography, "Madame Curie." Mlle. Curie is coming to lecture at 8:30 o'clock the night of March 29 at Orchestra hall. "The Magic of Radium" will be her subject.

The Chicago chapter of the Rosary College Alumnæ association is sponsoring Mlle. Curie's lecture. René Weiller, French consul general, will introduce the speaker.

M. and Mme. Weiller will be among those at the speaker's table at a luncheon meeting of the Chicago Council on Foreign Relations at 12:30 o'clock today at the Palmer House. Andre Philip, member of the French chamber of deputies, will speak on "France in Northern Africa." The meeting probably will be the council's last for this season.

The ceremony is to take place in the home of Miss Gladwin's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harold S. Gladwin. It was while the Gladwins were visiting Mr. and Mrs. Jones at Christmas time that the engagement of Miss Gladwin to the nephew of the late Kellogg Fairbank was announced.

Mr. Fairbank, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Fairbank of Cold Spring Harbor, N. Y., and his bride will make their home near Boston.

Miss Veronese Beatty Will Be Bride Today.

An out of town man invited twenty-four guests to the Golden Gloves fights and instructed his secretary to purchase the tickets. This she did, purchasing $2.20 seats.

When the boss learned that $3.30 seats were the best he was afraid he would give the impression of not being able to afford more expensive ones. So he has decided to give a quart of champagne to each of the twenty-four guests.

Overheard

(at the registration desk of a hospital, where a nervous husband waited to register his wife for immediate entrance to the maternity floor):

"Darling, are you sure you want to go through with this?"

In the Morning Mail.

From this vantage point in the heart of Hoosierdom we have followed your descriptions of unusual Chicago dining spots. On one of our trips to the city we dropped in at Julius Rikk's Budapest Casino, fell in love with it, and now rarely eat (or drink) anywhere else when we are in Chicago. . . . We thought you might be as interested as we were to find an oil painting of Mr. Rikk's establishment hanging in the current show of paintings by artists of Chicago and its vicinity at the Art institute.

The painting is No. 19, listed merely as "Cafe Scene, Chicago." We were able, through the good offices of the gentleman who handles the catalogs, to track down the artist, Stanley Bielecky of East Chicago. He assures us that it is indeed the Budapest Casino. The green gold wine which highlights the composition is Riesling, chilled just so, says Mr. Bielecky.

Movie Hazard.

A tall, thin, elderly woman who lives in a hotel in Aurora went to the movies the other night and seated herself in the dark theater, writes Auroran William H. Morris. She was astonished a few moments later to hear the woman beside her say to her, "May I have my little boy?" "Why, where is he?" inquired the other. "You are sitting on him," explained the first woman.

SYNOPSIS.

Ross Craddock's father, now dead, turned Craddock House into flats, and had installed his old maid cousins, Mary and Lucy Craddock, in a flat apiece, on either side of the one occupied by Ross. After Mary's death Lucy prepares to leave for a change of scene. Their cousin, Peter Renshaw, is staying in Mary's flat while he settles her estate. A cruel note from Ross orders Lucy to vacate her flat. Confronting Ross she learns it is because she objects to his attentions to her foolish young niece, Mavis Gray. Lucy tells Peter she wishes Ross were dead. He advises her to take the trip she'd planned. Just as she is leaving Lucy gets a phone call from her cousin, Lee Fenton. Lee, who is in love with Peter, has just escaped an unpleasant experience with a married man. Lucy gives Lee the keys to use her flat while she is away. Rush, the porter, admits Lee. He mutters belligerently against Ross. After Rush, Lee has a time dismissing Mrs. Green, the charwoman, who says she is ill and needs a drink of brandy. That evening Peter prevents Bobby Foster, Mavis' suitor, from making a scene in a cabaret where Mavis is with Ross. Peter is awakened in the night by a crash. He sees Mavis running from Ross' flat and Ross cut and bleeding. Mavis had thrown a decanter at him. Peter lets Mavis stay the rest of the night and he sleeps on a couch. Later he is again awakened and sees Mavis again coming from Ross' flat. She says she went to retrieve her purse. Lee awakens from a nightmare to find her nightgown and foot covered with blood. Her bloody footprints lead from Ross' door. Lee knows she walks in her sleep. In terror she washes away the blood stains and goes to tell Peter. Ross' valet arrives and finds Ross has been shot and killed. Bloody footprints inside the door have been wiped away before the police arrive.

INSTALMENT XII.

POLICE INTERROGATION.

The inspector said sharply to Peterson. "Would you swear you saw those footprints the first time you came up?"

"Yes, sir, I would. It's the truth, sir."

"Would you swear you didn't touch them?"

"I don't say I mightn't have stepped on one of them accidental when I ran down for Mr. Rush. But stepping on a dry stain wouldn't smear it like those footprints was smeared."

"No," said the inspector. "And now—just how long were you away?" "It very hard to say when you've had that kind of a shock. I couldn't get down quick enough. But Mr. Rush he wasn't in the hall. He was downstairs making his wife a cup of tea. I had to go down after him."

"Ah!" said the inspector. "Mrs. Rush is bedridden, so I'm told."

"Yes, sir."

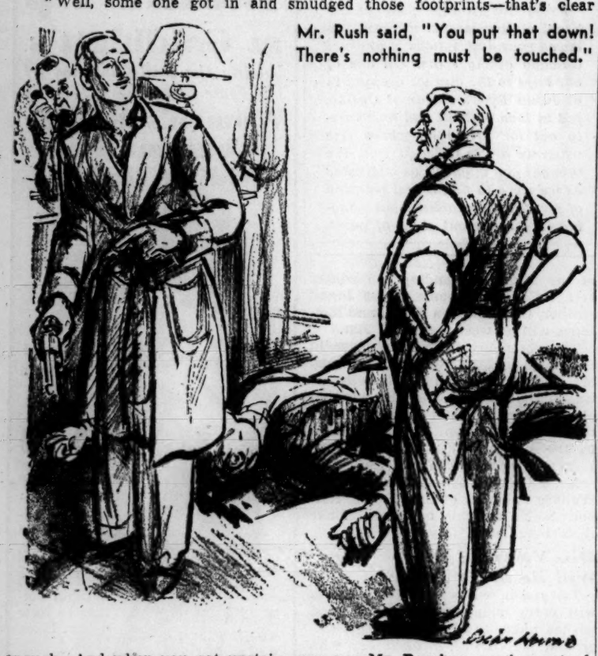
"Ever known her to be out of her bed?"

"Not the six years I've been coming here."

"Well, you went down and told Rush Mr. Craddock was dead, and the pair of you came up together. It wouldn't be less than two minutes you were away, I take it, and it might be as much as three. And the flat door standing open all the time?"

"Yes, sir."

"Well, some one got in and smudged those footprints—that's clear enough. And when you got upstairs you saw Mr. Renshaw coming out of number nine, and Miss Bingham half way down the stairs?"



Mr. Rush said, "You put that down! There's nothing must be touched."

Peterson said "Yes" again.

In answer to questions about the revolver, he said it was Mr. Craddock's own revolver. Mr. Craddock kept it in the second drawer of his writing table—"That one on the left, sir." No, the drawer wasn't kept locked—never had been so far as he knew. Mr. Craddock told him once that the revolver was loaded. That would be about six months ago. Asked whether he had ever handled the weapon, he replied, "Oh, no, sir—certainly not, sir."

"Did you see any one else handle it this morning?"

Peterson coughed.

"I beg your pardon, sir."

"Out with it, man!"

"It was Mr. Renshaw, sir. He came in as it were right behind us—behind Mr. Rush and me—"

"Yes—go on."

"Well, sir, we looked at Mr. Craddock and he was dead all right. And Mr. Renshaw he says 'Good God!' and goes down on his knees and takes hold of his wrist. And Mr. Rush says, 'He's gone! Look at the hole in his head!' And then he says to me to look lively and ring up for the police, so I went over to the table and took up the receiver off the telephone. And then I saw Mr. Renshaw had got up. He went across to where the revolver was and he picked it up. And Mr. Rush said very sharp, 'You put that down, Mr. Peter! There's nothing must be touched.' Mr. Renshaw he had the revolver by the handle." That concluded the examination of Peterson, and he was allowed to depart.

"Now what did he do that for?" said the inspector. "A gentleman like Mr. Renshaw—army officer, isn't he?—he knows as well as you and I do that he oughtn't to have touched that revolver. Now, if it had been Peterson, that doesn't know the muzzle from the butt—him and his handles!"—here the inspector snorted—"you'd say he'd lost his head—and not a lot of it to lose either! But Mr. Renshaw, he knows as well as you and me that that weapon would have to be examined for fingerprints, and when he goes plastering his hands all over it—well, Abbott, what do you make of it?"

"It looks as if he wanted to make sure that there wouldn't be any fingerprints except those Rush and Peterson had seen him make after Craddock was dead."

The inspector nodded.

"Mean he knew something about the fingerprints that were there, and meant to cover them up—his own likely enough. A bold, impudent trick that, and no mistake."

Young Abbott shook his head.

"I shouldn't think they'd be his own. If he'd shot the man he'd have wiped the revolver and left it in Craddock's hand. He's too cool a card to have left the place shouting murder when there was quite a decent chance of staging a suicide."

"Bright ideas you have—don't you, Abbott? Makes me wonder where you get 'em from. What do you know about Mr. Renshaw that makes you say he's a cool card? Ever come across him before?" "Yes, sir. I was wondering whether I'd better tell you."

"Well, you'd better tell me now."

"Well, sir, we were at school together for a bit. He's older of course. I—well as a matter of fact, I fagged for him." "Well, remember you're not fagging for him now. Lord—it's hot!" He wiped his brow. "Better have the porter next," he said, and settled back into his chair.

The curtains had been drawn, and the sun shone bright outside. Rush came stumping into the room, his face very red and his back very stiff. He refused to sit down, and delivered all his answers to a point about a foot over the inspector's head. His name was Albert Edward Rush, his age was sixty-four years, and he had been porter at Craddock House for thirty of them, leaving out the four years he was away at the war.

The inspector sat up and took notice.

"Served in the war, did you?"

"August nineteen-fourteen to December nineteen-eighteen."

Rush had no sirs up his sleeve for policemen. His war record was dragged from him a word or two at a time. Royal Fusiliers. Three times wounded. Finished up a sergeant. Glad enough to be back at his job. Yes, of course he knew how to fire a revolver. "What d'you take me for—a blinking fool?"

Inspector Lamb laughed.

"No, sergeant. Well now—did you know Mr. Craddock had a revolver?"

"I suppose I did," he said in his surliest voice.

"Did you know where he kept it?"

Rush let out his breath with a snort.

"What are you a-hinting at? Every one knew where he kep' it. He'd leave the drawer open—any one could see what was inside."

"Did you ever handle it?"

Rush's eyes were hot and angry. His voice rasped.

"What'd I handle it for? Had enough of the mucky things in the war without wanting to handle them now! What are you getting at?"

Detective Abbott's colorless eyebrows rose a little, but the inspector refused to take offense.

"Well, well, you didn't handle it. But you saw Mr. Renshaw handle it, didn't you?"

Rush stood there stiff and scowling. He snapped out,

"He picked it up. I told him he hadn't oughter."

"How did he pick it up?"

"Butt end first, and when I told him off he caught hold of the muzzle and dropped it down where it come from."

Most Children Have an Innate Spiritual Force

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

[Copyright: 1939: By The Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Syndicate, Inc.]

Off and on for years letters have come to me from parents on the subject of religious training for their children.

Naturally these letters have not come from persons whose association with the church of their faith has been close and unbroken all their lives, since their only course with their children is to provide them with the same opportunity and training they have had themselves: In Sunday school and church attendance, their own expression of their faith, and any other special provisions made for learning and devotions.

The letters have come, rather, from men and women whose approach to religion is different, but who have, nevertheless, a profound yerning for a satisfying faith themselves, and who wish to inculcate such in their children. They ask: "What shall I tell my child about religion?"

I have said before that we can really give our children only what we believe. For many parents this belief may range from a deep and abiding faith in a personal and omniscient God, to a sure but vague feeling that there is a force, an order, a law in our universe that is fundamentally beneficent. It usually is our own belief that we pass on.

A most important phase of this subject of religion for our children we sometimes forget, and that is that there are stirrings or emotions in the child himself which, properly nourished, will be the religion for him. Any one who has been near the heart of a very little child [before he may have had the concepts of others imposed on him] has often marveled at and been deeply touched by their imaginative and deeply spiritual quality of thought. Too often we neglect to nurture this intuitive knowledge and searching of children. Their spiritual life receives too little attention.

A great altruist, who recently died in New York, was interested in the "sublime possibilities that dwell in the individual and in the bosom of mankind." He felt that in every human being there is a "vital spiritual force." The best that we, as parents, can do is to give it a fruitful soil to develop in, to see that our child's vital spiritual forces are liberated. How they will be set free is an individual matter. The truth can take many outward forms.

Like all generalizations, this is not as helpful as more specific instructions would be. But with anything so big, so full of personal implications as the subject of religion must be, only basic thoughts can be suggested. The working out of this problem by each parent for his or her own children must be an individual concern. I have yet to see any writer attempt to do this successfully for a wide circle of readers of all faiths and all denominations.

I have ready a list of references to books of stories based on the Bible and religion, graded for various ages.

Spreading Hips Chief Problem of Modern Girl

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

[Copyright: 1939: By The Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Syndicate, Inc.]

Reading a report the other day on silhouette changes throughout the last few decades, we ran into the fact that "hips" have ever been the great bugaboo of our sex, and that latter day occupations in which our sex is engaged had added to the problem of how to keep hips from spreading.

Our experience is that there are three points of silhouette concern affecting the largest body of our women—hips, waist, and abdomen. Somehow, we cannot separate hips from the triumvirate. They do not spread alone.

It was said in the report that hip spreading, bulging and thickening, as women know them today, are due to their constant sitting—in automobiles or public street conveyances, at desks, at bridge tables and in easy chairs when they have the time. For the identical reason, we have the waist spread and abdomen protuberance that mar many a silhouette.

We point out this fact because we want women to know that if they set their mind on hip-reduction they are sure to remodel the other two named silhouette features. We know of no single exercise for hips but what will, at the same time, glorify the waist and tummy line.

It happens at the moment, that the streamlined hip is badly needed for fashionable dress, likewise a neat waistline and a flattened abdomen. The popular full, short swing skirt you see on the tailleurs now especially needs a sleek hipline, or one may look like a tub a-walking.

There's an exercise that permits you to think you are doing a neat job of tidying up the room while you tidy up the hipline. Stand at a spot in the room; throw a pack of cards around, bend from the waistline and pick each card up separately.

Then, there's that old-timer, a better one than which we have not yet found for hipline streamlining along with waist reducing and abdomen flattening: Lie on back on floor, arms wide stretched. Keep head and shoulders on floor. Swing one leg over, stretch from hip joint to toe in effort to reach outstretched hand on opposite side. Reverse leg overswing. A month of this, twenty times night and morning, and you'll be wearing the most trying frock with elegant assurance.

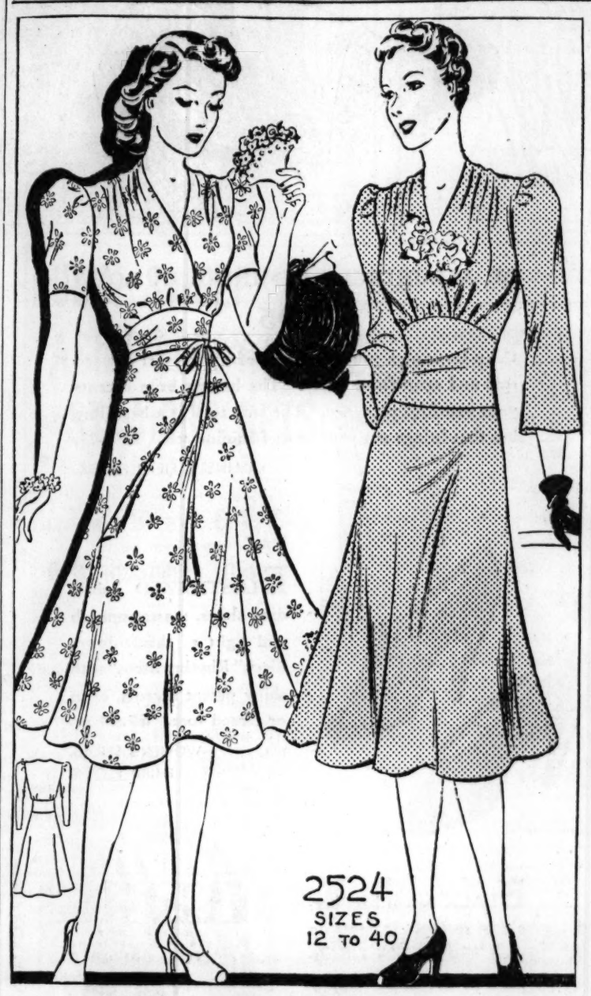
Waistline Focus of Fashion



WOMAN'S AND MISS' DRESS.

The waistline is one of the focal points of the current fashions. The dressmakers are calling attention to it in a wide variety of ways, one of which is the corselet girdle effect. The designer has given this frock an especially smooth and sleekly fitted version of this waistline treatment and one that is flattering to a wide variety of figures.

There is plenty of drapery in the bodice, and splendid flare in the skirt. The sleeves may be short and puffed, or squared at the shoulders and bracelet length, allowed to hang full.

Both printed and plain materials make up well in this pattern, which is essentially feminine. For spring you might use a colorful silk, either patterned or in one color. If you're taking a belated southern trip or are planning your summer wardrobe wisely ahead of time, be certain to pick a gayly colored cotton, linen, or washable silk.

Style No. 2524 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, and 20, and 30, 32, 34, 36, 38, and 40 inches bust measurement. Size 16 requires three yards of 39 inch material for the version with short sleeves.

Address orders for Clotilde patterns to Chicago Tribune, P. O. Box 537, Grand Central Station, NEW YORK CITY, inclosing ten cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred—wrap it carefully) for each pattern ordered. IMPORTANT! Be certain to state clearly the number of the pattern and the size desired, and write your name and address plainly.

There seems to be a constant stream of cookbooks issuing from publishing houses. The latest to come to this desk looks like a grade A number.

"Good Food and How to Cook It" is the name. The author is Phyllis Krafft Newill, and the publisher D. Appleton-Century Company, Inc., New York. Two-fifty is the price.

The recipes are written step-by-step fashion, so that they'll be easy to follow. They are practical and complete. I wouldn't hesitate a minute to recommend this book to the beginner at cooking. The more experienced cook will find it a fine supplement to her cookery library.

NEW NOTE IN VEGETABLE COOKERY: Add two or three tablespoons of salad oil to cooking vegetables. Cook away most of the water, add seasonings, and serve. The flavor is said to be better this way.

TRY THIS BREAKFAST DRINK: Combine equal parts grape juice and grapefruit juice, pouring the grape juice on top. No mixing with a spoon, please. It's prettier without.

TOPPING FOR APPLE PIE: Salt whipped cream slightly, and fold grated American cheese into it. Spread over one-crust apple pie. Good also with peach, apricot, rhubarb, and cherry pies.

Premature old age often is caused by a diet lacking in minerals, say nutritionists. Failure to drink milk, or enough of it, is a factor which contributes to premature old age. Milk with its generous supplies of calcium and phosphorus is indispensable to the healthy adult as well as to the child, a fact which is not recognized or is ignored too often today, declare the health experts. So it seems that if you want to stay young, drink milk!

Macaroni originated in China, not in Italy, although Italians are famous for it and for other similar products. It is said that long ago a Chinese woman was preparing bread dough under a tree and that leaves and other foreign matter were blown into the mixture. So, to get them out, she put the dough through a strainer. Seeing it come out in long strands, she thought it would be fun to leave it that way. And she dried the strands in the sun to make the first macaroni—or spaghetti.

Macaroni making began in this country about eighty years ago. Today America exports more macaroni than it imports.

Want an unusual kind of house paint? Save grapefruit seeds, soak them over night in water, and then plant, not too deeply, in a pot, circular fashion, with one seed in the center. Within a few weeks, with ordinary care, there will be flourishing leaves.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

Our notion of one of the most exciting beauty bargains to be found is a new package of bath luxuries. Not new luxuries, you understand, but a trio ensemble of lovely old friends in special sizes that makes their ownership a bit more feasible for the woman who can't just order up any exquisite bath glorifier she wants. If you bought the regular sizes you'd be spending quite a bit of money at a wallop; you can get three elegant preparations now in one package at a price that's most attractive to us wage earners.

Bath oil, a body friction lotion and toilet water come in a simple but distinguished green box. They're famous products and we can't be too emphatic about their quality. The woman who makes them knows all there is to know about capturing wonderful fragrances.

She is particularly famous for her faithful translation of the most difficult scent of gardenia. At least gardenia lovers—and they're legion—swear by her preparations in that fragrance. Her other florals are just as true and her recent experiments at blends have been completely successful.

In the new little ensemble you may make your choice of the three lovely preparations in gardenia, carnation, a lush white lilac, and a blend that came out not so long ago and is rapidly becoming a best seller.

The bath oil is divine; a few whiffs of it in any of the scents will make starting your day a perfect festival. The friction lotion is one of the best in the wide world—a clever blend of oils and astringents that stimulates and soothes at the same time. And how is scents the skin! The toilet water needs nothing to make it more marvelous. It's refreshing, of course, and the perfume of it in any of the four fragrances is simply exquisite.

You'll love the contents of this box—and the low cost of it.

In Love? Keep Other Friends 'Just in Case'

BY DORIS BLAKE.

[Copyright: 1939: By The Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Syndicate, Inc.]

How can you tell if you're in love? That's a question frequently asked of this department. And with girls who are just awakening to love's grand thrill it's a problem which interferes with their school work, their appetites, and their sleep. So it's to the rescue we'd like to go today!

Betty Jane is just 18. She writes that she's met a boy, 21, who's asked her to go "steady." She finds, poor darling, that in loving him so she's victim of all love's ailments mentioned above. "I don't want to see any one else but him, Miss Blake. I've dropped all my old friends for him. He's done the same for me. My parents tell me it's just 'puppy love,' and that a year from now I'll probably meet some one else, or if I don't, I'll not have any friends left."

In the first place, Betty Jane, your boy friend hasn't asked you to marry him, has he? Being so young, he probably isn't in a position to do so, is he? Then if I were you I'd get hold of myself and not see him to the exclusion of your other friends and interests. Being young and inexperienced, you may not know that it is disastrous to do so. Because you have a constant suitor you've turned your back on all else. You are most certain to regret such a mode of conduct.

When you feel yourself drawn to a man you need all the diversions at your command to keep your emotion from getting beyond control. Seeing you engrossed with people and things to his exclusion will stimulate him to fresh effort to win you. And if the affair falls through how much lighter those pangs will be if you have kept your old friends to fall back on!

When a woman gives up all other companionship she robs herself of all glamor which being desired by others would impart. How many times I have heard women moan: "I was so faithful to him, so good to him. I gave up all my friends for his sake. And now he is gone."

Therefore, even though you may feel sure you're in love, be wise, and have a few reservations. Give yourself another year or so to make up your mind that you "can't live without him." You're young, and there's real romance ahead for you, with the right man!

You Get Both Fun and Color in New Accents

BY RHEA SEEGER.

A passing test of a good lively imagination is provided in what you clip to your suit lapel, what you pin on your chest, or what you choose to accent a neckline or cuff. Witty new arrivals come in shining metal and effective pastel enamels.

Costume jewelry, designed especially for spring fashions, includes gadgets that every one notices. Schiaparelli, for instance, designed the day and night watchman in gold metal, a most obliging robot, in squared off outline, about three inches high. It's a clip-pin ornament for chest with a round watch for a head, oblong cut sapphires, rubies [simulated] and other colored stones for feet and hands.

Intriguing new pins for a spring suit lapel are amusing trifles . . . look for the rather large piece in gold metal, a pod of peas complete with leaves curling, tendrils and a long golden pod, with a snugly packed row of coral peas for contrast. A pair of gold metal skates hung together with a link chain come in both a clip or a pin arrangement. A most dramatic clip is the large head of a clown with a shining black enamel mask over the eyes, a white ruff around the neckline and colored eyes. Other new metal pieces are the half walnut shell complete to all the wrinkles and a lovely fluted cockle shell in dull gold. The head of a chanticleer in gold and red enamel and some exceptionally realistic flowers also come in combinations of color enamel and metal.

Spring poetry in color has been captured in exquisitely beautiful bracelets, clips, short necklaces, and ear rings, all matched and ready for contrast duty on any of the new outfits. Chartreuse green enamel dramatizes tiny flowerets in twinkling rhinestones, the chartreuse used for the graceful leaves and stems. The same idea comes in lapis blue and pastel pinks . . . these last finds are colorfully right accents for the very different feminine fashions now in the spotlight.

According to CULBERTSON

[Copyright: 1939: By Ely Culbertson.]

It is quite a pleasure to defend against some declarers. Their play is so revealing that, along about the fifth or sixth trick, the defenders have what amounts to a blue print of the situation. From that point their defense can be conducted along double-dummy lines.

In the following simple hand note that declarer can "reveal all," or can make the issue at least faintly obscure, depending on his sequence of plays.

South, dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.
Match-point duplicate.

NORTH
♠ Q 6
♥ K 9 6 3
♦ 9 8 6 2
♣ A Q 3

WEST
♠ J 8 5 4 2
♥ 8 7

♣ J 7 6 4

EAST

♦ Q 5 4 3
♣ 9 8

SOUTH
♠ A 7
♥ A Q 10 2
♦ A 10 7
♣ K 10 5 2

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 heart	Pass	2 hearts	Pass
2 no trump	Pass	4 hearts	Pass
Pass	Pass

North's first response was an underbid; hence, when South rebid two no trump, North did not equivocate further. He properly jumped to game.

West did not like to lead away from his jacks in spades or clubs and, of course, a diamond lead from the K-J looked pretty bad, hence he elected to open a trump. Declarer took out three rounds, on the third of which West discarded a spade, then hopefully tried to run four club tricks. Unfortunately West had the suit stopped and, instead of being able to discard a losing spade from dummy on the fourth club, declarer had to ruff. This left him with two diamonds and one spade loser and any chance for an extra trick went out the window.

A shrewder declarer at another table, playing the same contract and receiving the same opening lead, took a different view of the situation. He drew three rounds of trumps, ending in dummy, but then he saw no hurry about testing the club situation. Instead he led the deuce of diamonds and, when East followed with the three spot, put in his own ten. West won with the jack and did exactly what declarer had hoped he would do. Actually, as may be seen, West was somewhat on the spot. He could not know that his partner had the K-10 of spades, hence could not safely return a spade. For example, declarer might have had the A-10 instead of the A-7. Nor could West count on his own partner holding the diamond queen. For all he could tell, the return of the singleton diamond king might be fatal. I do not think that any criticism can be attached to West's actual selection of a low club at this point, but the fact remains that it was quite a boon to the declarer. The lead was allowed to run to the closed hand and was won with the ten spot. Now the ace and queen of clubs were cashed and declarer returned to his own hand with a spade in order to discard dummy's last spade on the club king. Finally another diamond trick was graciously conceded to the defenders. The extra trick gave this particular North-South team a very good match-point score on the board.

Compare the two methods of play. In the first case it will be noted that the declarer risked everything on a 3-3 break of the clubs or the drop of the jack. In the second case the declarer did not give up this opportunity, but he did make a preliminary play that might [and did] relieve the situation if the desired club break failed to materialize. It is an extremely simple example of conserving one's chances without leaving everything to fate.

San Carlans Present 'Rigoletto'; MacKenzie Makes Chicago Debut

The San Carlo Opera company presented Verdi's "Rigoletto" last night as the second performance of an eleven day stand at the Auditorium theater. The evening saw the local operatic debut of Tandy MacKenzie, tenor, in the rôle of the Duke of Mantua.

Mr. MacKenzie, born in Hawaii and long active in various departments of music [in record making, for instance], turns out to be a singer with a rather good basic voice quality and some deftness at coloring his tones. His general manner is marred by a certain lack of feeling for the Italian style and by the frequently disconnected and consonantal quality which results from such a deficiency.

The performance as a whole was hardly calculated to sweep anybody off his feet. The usual San Carlo ping was missing and the various singers did not get themselves worked up to the point where they could fuse their personalities in the music and the story.

The title rôle went to Mostyn Thomas, that of Gilda to Lucille Meusel. Harold Kravitt and Natale Cervi sang Sparafucile and Monterone respectively. Carlo Peroni conducted.

Because of Aroldo Lindi's illness the part of Rhadames in tonight's "Aïda" will be sung by Sidney Rayner, an American tenor whose experience has included assignments with the Metropolitan and Chicago opera companies.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

How does a social service worker look at Lent? The question was asked of the Rev. Walter K. Morley, head of the social service department of the Episcopal diocese of Chicago. He answered that Lent inquires whether man is to be victor or victim of society.

"Such things as hate, jealousy, greed, suspicion and lust for power are weapons of unredeemed society against man," he said. "The martyr is one who resists society; if he persists, society will kill him. People with martyr complexes are in every group.

"But Lent points out the 'way of the cross' as God's attack on society. Jesus was not a martyr; He ushered in a new kingdom which changed man from victim to victor. God's attack was for the purpose of redeeming society—not destroying it. Jesus met hate with love, jealousy with humility, greed with charity, lust for power with prayer, suspicion with understanding.

"Society needs fewer martyrs and more saints. A good Lent will commit us to the positive way of life which brings man to eternal life which begins here and now."

Michigan served notice that it is prepared to claim its sixth straight Big Ten indoor track title tonight by placing nine men in the four events for which trials were held last night in the University of Chicago fieldhouse. The Wolverines qualified two in the 60 yard dash, three each in the 70 yard high hurdles and the [illegible] mile run, and one in the 440 yard dash.

Wisconsin, Indiana, and Iowa qualified five men apiece; Ohio State placed four; Minnesota, three, and Illinois, Chicago, Northwestern, and Purdue, two each.

Tonight Michigan is expected to do as well in the finals of ten events as it did last night in the preliminaries of four.

Five Records in Danger.

Half the ten standing marks are in danger, including those in the field events, the pole vault, shot put, and high jump.

Harley Howells of Ohio State, winner of the outdoor quarter mile last year, survived after a special ruling was made in his favor in the event last night. In the first quarter final Howell, Balyeat of Michigan and McCowan of Illinois jammed up, the first two falling and McCowan qualifying. Dr. W. J. Monilaw, referee, ruled that Howells and Balyeat be permitted to run in the semi-finals and Howells qualified by running a close second to Carl Teufel of Iowa, 1938 indoor champion. Qualifiers:

Two Rookies Hit Homers in Cubs' Opener

BY EDWARD BURNS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Avalon, Cal., March 10.—The Cubs' Yannigans this afternon conquered the Regulars, 7 to 5, in the first of four intraclub games scheduled for the training camp. The regulars started as though they planned great accomplishments but faded after a first inning splurge against Bill Lee, the National league's leading pitcher.

Steve Mesner, Jim Gleeson, and Ed Carnett of the Yannigans showed their more glamorous foes several things about the fine art of hitting. Little Steve hit a homer and two singles in three times at bat, while Gleeson had a homer and a single. Carnett had a double and two singles. Hank Leiber, with a first inning triple, hit the only long one for the Regulars.

The Regulars touched up Lee for three runs in the first inning, the main damage being done by Leiber's enormous sock to center, a shot which would have come close to the base of the scoreboard in Wrigley field.

Hack Opens with Single.

Hack opened his season with a single to center and went to third on Herman's single to right. Galan popped to Zydowski; then came the Leiber triple, which scored Hack and Herman. Leiber scored on Marty's sacrifice fly to Reynolds, and, under a new scoring rule, Joe was not charged with a time at bat. Collins beat out a tap in front of the plate, but Zydowski threw out Garbark to end the inning.

Lillard retired the first four men who faced him, but with one out in the second inning Mesner banged a homer over the right field fence.

Higbe became the Regulars' pitcher at the start of the fourth and promptly waded into difficulty. Gleeson opened with a homer. After Reynolds had flied out the bases were loaded on singles by G. Russell and Mesner and a pass to Zydowski. G. Russell scored on Baker's sacrifice fly, Mesner scored on Carnett's single, and the Yannigans took a 5 to 4 lead when Zydowski came home on a balk.

French was the second Yannigan pitcher and in the fourth allowed the regulars to tie the score at 5 to 5 on singles by Higbe, Herman, and Galan.

Charley Grimm a Visitor.

The Yannigans got their victory margin in the sixth and final, winning on G. Russell's second single, Mesner's third hit, an error by Marty, and Carnett's third hit.

Charley Grimm, who participated in fourteen spring training seasons here, a half dozen of which he directed as Cub manager, arrived on the island this noon, just in time to see the game. Charley announced he would remain several days in his rôle of radio commentator.

In his visits to other camps Charley has worked out at first base, and indeed he might have gone right into action at his old position on the regulars if he had been invited by Manager Hartnett.

Phil Cavarretta, who was slated to play the position, became ill this morning and was placed under the care of a physician. Remembering, perhaps, last fall's unpleasantness when the Cubs voted against giving Charley a cut of the world series dough, Gabby decided it would be just as well to let the visitor remain in his rôle of microphone spieler.

BUDGE SWEEPS ASIDE PERRY IN STRAIGHT SETS

Crushes Briton, 6-1, 6-3, 6-0, in Series Opener.

New York, March 10.—[Special.]—Any lingering doubts as to Donald Budge's world supremacy on the tennis courts were set at rest tonight. The giant Californian administered the most crushing defeat suffered by Fred Perry since the former world's amateur champion from Great Britain came into international prominence.

On the same court in Madison Square Garden where he made his professional debut against Ellsworth Vines with a decisive 6-3, 6-3, 6-2 victory in January, Budge buried Perry under an avalanche of drives and volleys to win, 6-1, 6-3, 6-0, in the first match of their series.

It took Budge exactly 49 minutes to whip the player who defeated him in four out of six amateur meetings.

A crowd of 8,000, approximately half the number who attended the opening Budge-Vines match, looked on as Perry was run mercilessly from corner to corner. Budge smashed overhead with ruthless finality, in contrast with his difficulty with this stroke in his opener against Vines, and was complete master throughout.

Chicago Just Won't Yield on Service Game

Washington, D. C., March 10.—(AP)—Illinois congressmen disclosed today they planned to ask President Roosevelt and the city of Philadelphia to help them take the 1939 Army-Navy football game to Chicago, in the home state of both service teams' captains.

Under a contract between Philadelphia and the Army and Navy athletic associations the game is scheduled to be played at the Philadelphia municipal stadium Dec. 2 and each year thereafter through 1942.

Representative Ralph Church [R., Ill.], an attorney in private life, examined a copy of the contract and expressed the opinion there was no way it could be changed without Philadelphia's consent.

The Illinoisans hope to obtain this consent, however, because Capts. Allen Bergner of the Navy and Harry Stella of the Army played together on the Kankakee, Ill., High school team.

Church's opinion confirmed a statement by Rear Admiral Wilson Brown, superintendent of the Naval academy, that it would be "quite impossible" to play the game in Chicago in view of the contract. Admiral Brown added that in addition to the contract there were "serious obstacles of time and distance."

Gen. Robert E. Wood of Chicago, head of one group of Chicagoans anxious to have this year's game played there, probably will confer with members of the Illinois delegation next week to discuss an appeal to President Roosevelt and to Philadelphia.

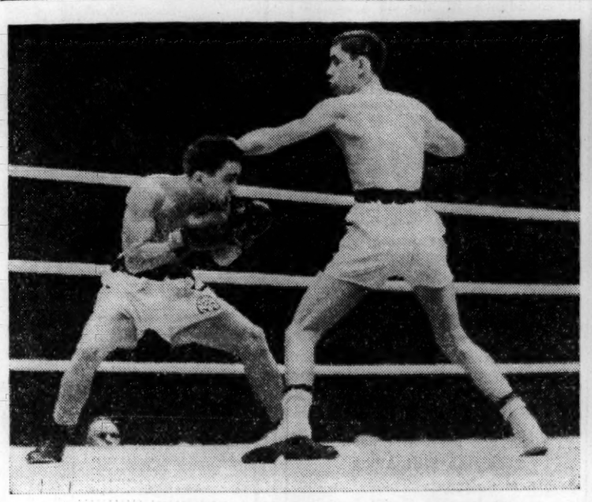
SUFFOLK TRACK GRANTED 18 MORE DAYS OF RACING

Boston, Mass., March 10.—(AP)—The Massachusetts racing commission today granted eighteen additional racing dates to Suffolk Downs track, but failed to act on the petition of Outdoor Amusements, Inc., for a license to run a thirty-seven day meet in Westport.

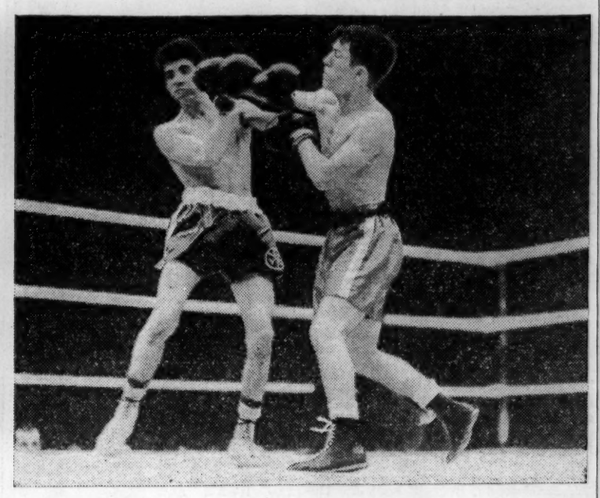
Suffolk Downs already had been granted forty-two racing days, from May 15 to July 1. The new days are from July 3 to July 22, giving the track sixty weekday racing dates.

The Westport track had asked for dates between July 3 and Aug. 14. A previous license granted in that town was revoked after Gov. Leverett Saltonstall forced the resignation of two members of the former commission and appointed others.

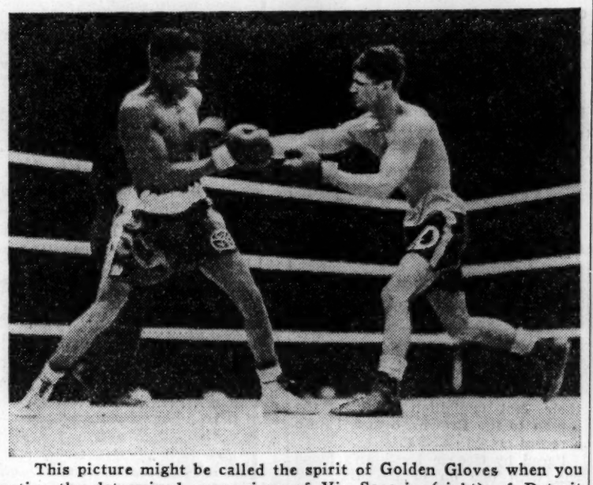
Inscribing New Names on Roll of Golden Gloves Champions



The C. Y. O.'s Al Noto (right) missed this left jab to Billy Sitzman's head in a 112 pound semi-final bout, but piled up enough points to defeat the Sioux City (Ia.) boy. Then Noto lost to Vic Saccoia of Detroit in the title match.



Earl Reid (right) of Michigan City lands a hard right to the jaw in his 118 pound semi-final bout against Frank Bausone of the C. Y. O. Reid went on to win the decision, but was defeated in the finals.



This picture might be called the spirit of Golden Gloves when you notice the determined expressions of Vic Saccoia (right) of Detroit and William Moon, C. Y. O., in a 112 pound semi-final bout. Saccoia is throwing a right to the body. [TRIBUNE Photos.]

N. B. A. LIFTS BAN ON PASTOR; MAY BOX IN STADIUM

Bob Pastor, New York heavyweight, has been reinstated by the National Boxing association, James D. Norris, Chicago Stadium vice president and secretary, said last night upon his return from New York. The N. B. A.'s action is expected to clear the way for Pastor's proposed ten round bout with Maurice Strickland of New Zealand in the stadium on March 31.

Chairman Joe Triner and Sheldon Clark of the Illinois boxing commission rejected Pastor as a foe for Strickland last Monday because of the ban.

DePauw Swimming Team Again Defeats Armour Tech

DePauw's swimming team beat Armour Tech, 39 to 36, last night in Bartlett pool. DePauw led from the start. It was Armour Tech's second defeat by DePauw this year.

Fight Decisions

At New York—Pedro Montanez knocked out Jackie [Kid] Berg [5].
At Boston—Bob Pastor beat Al McCoy [10].
At West Palm Beach, Fla.—Al Manfredo knocked out Johnny Burso [8].
At Los Angeles, Cal.—Buddy Baer knocked out Chuck Crowell [1].

PEDRO MONTANEZ KNOCKS OUT BERG IN FIFTH ROUND

New York, March 10.—(AP)—Pedro Montanez took a long stride toward a welterweight championship fight with Henry Armstrong tonight by knocking out the British veteran, Jackie [Kid] Berg, in five rounds of a ten round bout at the Hippodrome.

After being given a tough, close battle for four rounds, the 142½ pound Porto Rican hit his 33 year old rival with a right hook early in the fifth. Berg, who scaled 146½, dropped as though a tree had fallen on him.

They'll Fight Again

Many Golden Glove fans failed to get tickets to the finals before the sellout. Now they have another chance to see those great fighters in action. Chicago's Golden Gloves team will battle New York's on March 29 in the Stadium and only one price class is sold out so far. There's still time to get seats.

Tickets on sale in Tribune Public Service Offices, 1 South Dearborn Street and Tribune Tower lobby. Mail orders may be addressed to Golden Gloves Ticket Manager, Tribune Tower, Chicago, making checks or money orders payable to Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc.

PRICES ARE:

In the Wake of the News

LEADERS of the sports, theatrical, radio, business, religious, political, industrial, and professional world filled the ringside sections long before the first of the eight championship matches was held in THE TRIBUNE'S Golden Gloves tournament in Chicago Stadium last night. . . . It was a typical Golden Gloves gathering. . . . The Most Rev. Bernard J. Sheil and his secretaries, William Larkin and the Rev. Peter Meegan, were seated in the first row in the Madison street section. . . . Right behind them sat Gen. John V. Clinnin. . . . James C. Petrillo, president of the Chicago Federation of Musicians, was on the opposite side of the big red arena. . . .

The Big Ten was represented by Wendell [Weenie] Wilson, athletic director at Illinois; Kenneth L. [Tug] Wilson, sports head at Northwestern; Noble Kizer, athletic director, and his assistant at Purdue, Dutch Fehring; Fritz Crisler, football coach, and Fielding H. Yost, sports boss at Michigan; Frank McCormick, Minnesota athletic director; Pop Schroeder, athletic ruler, and Eddie Anderson, football coach at Iowa. . . . George Halas and Luke Johnsos of the Chicago Bears and Charles Bidwill of the Cardinals were professional football's color bearers. . . . Wesley Ramey, professional lightweight challenger, seconded Tom Moyer, Grand Rapids, Mich., Press lightweight, in his semi-final victory over Roy Lewis, Muncie, Ind., Star southpaw. . . .

Oliver Thomas, serving his second year as coach of New York's fighters, was at the ringside scouting the Chicago boxers for the annual intercity clash in the Stadium March 29. . . . Johnny Behr, director of Chicago's representatives, sat in the working press section taking notes on prospective members of Chicago's team. . . . Dr. Joseph Reilly, the old football coach at Georgetown university and present sports director of the Kansas City Athletic club, came from a health resort in Colorado to see the bouts. . . . Chairman Joe Triner of the Illinois boxing commission arrived during the Frank Bausone-Earl Reid bantamweight semi-final, shortly after Commissioner Sheldon Clark took possession of his front row chair.

Mary and Anthony Bausone, sister and brother of Frankie, waited in line for more than an hour for their general admission tickets. . . . They were heart-broken when Frankie lost a hard fight with Earl Reid of the Michigan City News-Dispatch team. . . . Bobbie Breen, juvenile radio, screen, and stage star, sneaked over the west side arena between shows in a loop theater to watch a couple of fights. . . . James Norris, the grain broker, who seldom misses a Golden Gloves show, looked on from first row seats on the east side. . . . Norris' party included Carl Mitchell, chief insurance executive of Cincinnati; Carl Schiffner, official of the First National bank; William Ehrat, vice president of a real estate firm, and Porter Fox, head of an investment banking concern. . . .

PLEASANT WINS TO GIVE CHICAGO ITS LONE TITLE

Thrilling Bouts Mark Finals in Stadium.

BY HOWARD BARRY.

Eight fighters won Golden Gloves championships last night. Eight succeeded in a quest on which 23,000 others failed. For weeks the struggle had been going on in remote towns and in large cities. Last night it flared to its climax and ended before 22,132 spectators who filled every seat and all available standing room in the Chicago Stadium, world's biggest indoor arena.

Punctuating every round with tumultuous cheers, this great throng watched the semi-finals and finals of the twelfth annual tournament sponsored by the Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., and when the last blow had fallen the thousands rose for a last thunderous tribute to these champions:

112 pounds—Vic Saccoia, Detroit.

118 pounds—Chester Ellis, Kansas City.

126 pounds—Tony Ancona, Detroit.

135 pounds—John Pleasant, Savoy A. C., Chicago.

147 pounds—Milton Jones, St. Louis.

160 pounds—Ezzard Charles, Cincinnati.

175 pounds—Jimmy Reeves, Cleveland.

Heavyweight—Tony Novak, Kansas City.

At exactly 8 o'clock Al Noto of Chicago and Billy Sitzman of Sioux City, Ia., a pair of flyweights, climbed through the ropes. The bell clanged and the show was on. Shortly after 10 o'clock, as the last of the semi-finals ended, the vast arena was plunged suddenly into darkness save for two spotlights which came to focus on a huge American flag that rose slowly from the ringside toward the roof. In the semi-darkness only upturned faces were visible as the throng stood and sang the "Star Spangled Banner." Then the championship bouts began.

Canadeo, Zampini Win Trophies.

Earlier on the program Savior Canadeo of the Green Bay team and Mike Zampini of Cleveland had received the Barney Ross and the Joe Louis trophies, respectively. Each year these prizes are donated by the two famous fighters who once were Golden Gloves champions themselves. The award is based on sportsmanship displayed by contestants.

The eight champions were assured of places on the intercity Golden Gloves team which will fight New York in the Stadium on March 29. The other members of the squad were selected by the coaches after last night's bouts.

Saccoia Shades Noto.

In the first of the championship bouts the above mentioned Noto, who had survived his semi-final with Sitzman, went up against Vic Saccoia of Detroit. Through three rounds of terrific action they stood and slugged, usually on even terms. At the finish a close decision went to Saccoia.

Then came one of the most spectacular fights of the tournament—Earl Reid of the Michigan City team against Chester Ellis, an Indian boy from Kansas City. Both were aggressive, both apparently tireless. Reid punched hard and straight; Ellis punched hard from all angles. They jarred each other furiously and returned to slug again. At the finish the decision and the bantamweight championship went to Ellis.

Detroit Boy Wins.

Tony Ancona of Detroit and Joe Dupont of Chicago kept up the pace set by their predecessors. They fought on even terms until the last round when Ancona landed a heavy right to the jaw that sent Dupont to his knee. That blow was one of the deciding factors, and the featherweight championship went to Ancona.

Johnny Pleasant of Chicago, clever on defense and powerful on offense, then won a decision over Tom Moyer of Grand Rapids for the lightweight title. Moyer, who was fast, shifty, and a clean cut hitter, gave Pleasant three busy rounds, but the Savoy A. C. star was not to be turned back.

Pleasant was the only Chicago boy able to break into the new list of Golden Gloves champions.

St. Louis Gets a Title.

Milton Jones, a slugging welterweight from St. Louis, pounded out a decision over Vernell Williams of the Gary, Ind., team to take the title in his division. Ezzard Charles of Cincinnati followed up with a victory over Pete Hantz of Davenport in the middleweight final.

Then Jimmy Reeves of Cleveland weathered a storm of punches and finished strong to beat Shelton Bell of Dayton for the light heavyweight championship. Bell's chopping rights to the jaw had Reeves in distress during the first round. Reeves boxed cautiously during the second and turned on the power in the third to run up enough points to earn the decision.

The battle for the heavyweight title brought out two of the most popular fighters of the tournament—Tony Novak of Kansas City and Mike Zampini of Cleveland. Novak was the aggressor throughout, forcing the issue at every exchange. In the third round he chased the weary Zampini to the ropes and then sent him to the floor with a right to the jaw. Zampini was counted out.

Only two other bouts—both semi-finals—failed to go to a finish.

Team Trophy to Detroit.

The team trophy was awarded to Detroit, which scored 11 points to Kansas City's 10. Cleveland and the C. Y. O. had 9 points each. The scoring was based on 5 points for a champion, 3 for a runnerup, and 1 for each of the other two boxers in each weight division in the semi-finals.

The table of points:

Detroit	11	Grd. Rapids, Mich.	4
Kansas City	10	Davenport, Ia.	4

Vic Saccoia.

At the start of the second round Noto rushed several times, swinging lefts to the body while Saccoia scored at long range with rights to the head. They were in a furious rally at the end of the round.

Shortly after the third round opened Ellis connected with a long overhand right to the chin and Reid's knees buckled. After long range sniping on both sides, Ellis once more counted with his right and again had Reid in distress. At the final bell they were standing toe to toe and slugging.

126 POUNDS

Tony Ancona, Detroit, beat Joe Dupont, C. Y. O., Chicago [3].

MR. DYKES BARES EVIL INTENTIONS AGAINST CUBS

He'll Use Full Strength in Spring Series.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Pasadena, Cal., March 10.—There's still plenty of time for him to change his mind, a privilege he always reserves because so many things happen to his boys, but right now James Dykes, the White Sox manager, has his pitching plans all set for the opening game a week hence in the spring series with the Cubs.

Today while admiring with one eye the snow which had landed on the nearby mountains during the night and with the other on his squad, the Sox boss declared he had an idea that it might be well to greet the Cubs in Los Angeles next Friday with Vic Frasier, Johnny Rigney, and possibly Thornton Lee.

Dykes has heard that Gabby Hartnett, the Cub leader, had expressed an ambition to stop the long standing custom of Cub teams losing to their south side rivals.

Dykes High on Frasier.

Including Frasier in his plans to open the wounds inflicted on the Cubs in their unhappy world series meeting with the Yanks last October, is an indication that Dykes has a lot of confidence in the 32 year old rookie whom the Sox owned for the first time back in 1929 and who won 17 games for St. Paul last season.

The cripples, Jack Hayes excepted, were almost back to normal today. John Whitehead, who had been taking it easy because of a left knee bruised by a batted ball pitched in hitting practice, said the soreness is gone. Lee's twisted right ankle is down to normal size.

Outfielder Gerald Walker, who had been delayed by a case of influenza, arrived this morning, one week behind schedule but his robust physical setup made the manager suspicious. Instead of being sympathetic, Dykes wisecracked about players who dodge training camps. Walker is a fairly talented wise cracker himself but limited his reply to a declaration that he really had been in a horizontal position for a week at Hot Springs, Ark., where he was acting as an instructor in Rogers Hornsby's baseball school.

Thompson Still Ailing.

Outfielder Rupert Thompson, out last season because of an appendix removal, and who several days ago developed spine trouble which a doctor said might disappear if he exercised, has had his teeth photographed.

George Gick, a pitcher started by the Sox in the first exhibition with the Cubs last spring and who developed arm trouble after being farmed out to Shreveport, is showing improvement. Dykes, although admitting the Fowler, Ind., boy has big league possibilities, isn't enthusiastic. He fears the arm ailment is one of those things that can be corrected only by a year of inactivity.

Phillies Lose First Game to Browns, 6 to 5

New Braunfels, Tex., March 10.—(AP)—A big eighth inning rally fell one run shy today as the Phillies lost their first exhibition game of the season to the Browns, 6 to 5, before a record crowd of 3,000.

Paced by George McQuinn's home run with one on in the first, the Browns built up a 6 to 0 lead before the Phils batted around in the eighth to score five runs on four hits and two errors. The tying run was on third when Ed Feinberg ended the rally by grounding out.

WHITEHEAD REPORTS.

Baton Rouge, La., March 10.—(AP)—Burgess Whitehead, the Giants' second baseman, turned up at the training base today.

Whitehead arrived with his bride and it didn't take Bill Terry long to learn he was not in condition. The manager batted half a dozen grounders at him and found out.

GREENBERG HITS HOMER.

Lakeland, Fla., March 10.—(AP)—Hank Greenberg started again at the point where he left off at the close of the 1938 season when he hit a home run today in the first intra-squad game of the year at the Tigers' training camp. Greenberg, who hit fifty-eight homers last year, helped a team composed mostly of Tiger regulars down a squad of recruits, 6 to 1.

ROOKIE LEADS ATTACK.

Sarasota, Fla., March 10.—(AP)—Rookie Jim Tabor, scheduled to open the season as the Red Sox's regular third baseman, today led the first stringers to a 4 to 2 victory over the Yannigans by getting four hits in five times at bat, including a pair of two baggers, in a nine inning intra-squad game. Manager Joe Cronin got three hits, including a triple out of four tries. Woody Rich, a rookie right-hander, opened for the regulars and held the scrubs hitless during the first three innings.

REDS BEAT YANNIGANS.

Tampa, Fla., March 10.—(AP)—The Reds' pitchers continue to lord it over the batters today as the regulars beat the Yannigans, 2 to 0.

PITT STUDENTS STRIKE; PROTEST SCHOOL POLICY

Pittsburgh, Pa., March 10.—[Special.]—A wild student demonstration against losing Dr. John B. Sutherland as football coach today turned the University of Pittsburgh campus into a turmoil. Undergraduates walked in and out of the class rooms, interrupted professors and called on other students to join the protest.

A crowd of 500 invaded the commons room and sang "Hail to Pitt" and gave out sporadic cheers. Somewhere a bugle kept blowing "taps" as the funeral knell of bigtime football.

Fist fights broke out in halls and class rooms between what seemed to be two student factions—those trying to stage a general strike and those opposed to the demonstrations.

Dr. James C. Charlesworth, instructor in political science, battled with a group who invaded his lecture hall and, aided by his students, barricaded the doors.

Professor Pushes Boy.

Dr. Charlesworth said he pushed one of the boys, but denied any one had struck him. "They beat each other on the heads with their signs," he said. Doors were pulled off hinges in several of the melées

Some teachers continued their classes despite the din, while others suspended classes as soon as the paraders entered.

Adding to the tense feeling was the campus report that last night fraternity houses were called and members warned to take no part in today's demonstration. Sources of the alleged warning was not revealed.

The protest, aimed at Chancellor John G. Bowman and Business Manager John Weber for what the Pitt News called their bungling of the school's athletic situation, started when students in the dental and engineering schools began a march and appealed to others to leave classes.

Dr. Bowman Absent.

Dr. Bowman was not on hand to witness the demonstration as he was in New Brunswick, N. J., to address a Rutgers University dinner. Dr. Sutherland also was out of the city. The former coach, who quit after 15 years at Pitt because he said conditions had become intolerable, was in New York where he spoke to Pitt alumni.

Kokomo Sue.

Sue was hired as a maid
And was generously paid,
Though she didn't have to do fatiguing chores;
'Twas her task to serve the guests,
Most of whom were social pests,
And between times she must answer all the doors.

Since she packed a ready smile
Every one approved her style,
And she thought that earthly happiness was nigh;
But her mistress bade her say
She was not at home one day,
And Sue said to her: "I cannot tell a lie."

She was chucked out on her head
And she lost her board and bed,
And she didn't get the balance of her pay;
She had heard that honesty
Was the only policy,
But the proverbs weren't clicking well that day.

As she walked along the street
Looking for a place to eat
And believing she might some day have to beg
A big mastiff in the dark
Gave a terrifying bark
And he took a bite right out of Susie's leg.

As they bundled her to bed
Susie sorrowfully said:
"People told me barking dogs would never bite."
Then she sighed: "In Kokomo
No dog ever fell so low
As to bite a girl for doing what was right." —T. E. B.

Manley, by defeating Hirsch, 36 to 26, yesterday in the Englewood gym, qualified to meet Von Steuben for the junior basketball championship of the Chicago Public High School league.

Frieden and Stein played the leading rôles in the Manley triumph yesterday, accounting for 22 points between them. Manley outscored Hirsch in all but the second quarter, leading 16 to 13 at the half. Canna, with five baskets, was Hirsch's leading scorer.

The Weber juniors assured themselves of at least a tie for the north section title in the Catholic league by beating St. Philip, 27 to 23. St. George, which meets Loyola tomorrow, must win or drop to second place.

In the south section's senior division Mount Carmel clinched an undisputed title, defeating De La Salle, 47 to 34.

Lane Tech of the north division and Hirsch of the south will meet tonight in the Loyola gymnasium, Sheridan road and Loyola avenue, for the senior championship of the city league.

350,000 TO SEE CROWN PLACED ON POPE'S HEAD

Vatican Is Prepared for Ceremony Tomorrow.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VATICAN CITY, March 10.—Final preparations were made today, just a month after the death of Pope Pius XI., for the coronation Sunday of his successor, Pope Pius XII.

Joseph P. Kennedy.

Inside St. Peter's, where the coronation mass will be said, workmen were busy putting up the crimson damask drapes which will form a colorful part of the basilica's decorations. Outside, in vast St. Peter's square, where the actual crowning will take place, others were busy perfecting a loud speaker system over which those who fail to gain entrance to the basilica will be able to hear the coronation mass.

Forty-five thousand persons may sit or stand inside the church during the coronation mass, which will last five hours. Outside, in the square, 350,000 will witness the crowning of the pope, which will take place on the balcony of St. Peter's church.

Special Throne Built.

For this ceremony, the pope will be seated on an especially constructed throne which, combined with the elevation of the balcony, will place him sixty feet above the vast throng. The throne will have a special iron railing as a safety precaution.

It will be the first time in nearly 100 years that a pope has been crowned outside St. Peter's. Pope Pius XI. was crowned inside the Basilica but, after the Lateran accord by which Italy and the church reconciled their differences, he made his first appearance on the balcony in 1929.

The American ambassador to Great Britain, Joseph P. Kennedy, who officially will represent President Roosevelt at the coronation, left London today, accompanied by his son, John. They probably will arrive in Rome tomorrow. Another son, Joseph Jr., is in Madrid. The seven other Kennedy children left London Wednesday to join Mrs. Kennedy, who already is in Rome.

Pray at Tomb of Late Pope.

Ambassador Kennedy will be the first person ever to represent officially a President of the United States at a papal coronation.

As preparations for the coronation were completed today hundreds of Roman Catholics gathered near the tomb of Pope Pius XI. in the grottoes of St. Peter's to say masses for the late pontiff. Many of the worshipers left flowers at the tomb.

Pope Pius XII. attended a lenten sermon in the throne room. It was delivered by the apostolic preacher, Vigilio da Valstagna. Pope Pius was secluded from the scores of church dignitaries attending the service by a tapestry.

The coronation mass and ceremony will be broadcast on a world-wide basis for the first time.

GET COMFORTING RELIEF FROM Vicks Vaporub HEAD COLD

DO THIS: Put some Vicks VapoRub up each nostril and sniff well back. You'll feel better right away. Next, melt a spoonful of VapoRub in a bowl of boiling water; then breathe in the steaming medicated vapors for several minutes. This loosens phlegm and further clears the air-passages. At bedtime, rub VapoRub on throat, chest, and back so that its long-continued double action can relieve the misery of the cold while you sleep. VapoRub acts direct through the skin like a poultice; at the same time its medicated vapors, breathed in direct, bring comfort to the irritated air-passages. Try it. VICKS VAPORUB

WRIGLEY PROFIT RISES IN FINAL 1938 QUARTER

Earnings for Full Year Are Lower.

Philip K. Wrigley.

The William Wrigley Jr. company, world's largest manufacturer of chewing gum, issued its annual report to stockholders yesterday, revealing more profitable operations in the final quarter of 1938, but lower net earnings for the full year.

Net income for the December quarter was $2,189,296, against $2,003,053 in the final three months of 1937, representing $1.10 and $1.01 a share in the respective periods.

For the full year, net profits were $7,653,780, equal to $3.82 a share, compared with 1937 net profits of $8,743,591, or $4.43 a share.

Increase Sales Activities.

Philip K. Wrigley, president, told stockholders:

"Sales activities for the year were increased with a resulting increase in selling expense, but also with a satisfactory increase in business, and results for 1939 so far also justify and warant the additional sales activity shown last year."

The company increased its earned surplus to $36,638,934 as of Dec. 31, 1938, from $36,172,050 at the beginning of the year. This was after restoring $1,773,643 no longer needed as a reserve against redemption of coupons, and after deducting $1,271,285 to reduce investments to market values.

The Union Tank Car company, which operates and leases railway freight cars, reported 1938 net income of $1,364,714, equal to $1.15 a share. This compared with $2,016,412, or $1.68 a share, in 1937.

McKeesport Company Has Loss.

The McKeesport Tin Plate corporation report for 1938 showed a net loss of $679,238, compared with net profit in 1937 of $915,777, or $1.26 a share.

Net income of $1,873,219 was reported for 1938 by the Northern Indiana Public Service company. This was equal to 27 cents on the common stock, after preferred dividends, and compared with 1937 net income of $2,187,251, or 44 cents a share.

The Foster-Wheeler corporation, manufacturing steam plant and petroleum refinery equipment, reported net income for 1938 of $162,447, equal to 17 cents a share on common stock, against a net loss of $101,499 in 1937.

"The Interpretation of Financial Statements," by Benjamin Graham and Spencer B. Meredith. [Harper & Bros., New York City. Price, $1.]

Material used in courses in security analysis given by the New York Stock Exchange institute makes up the bulk of this elementary volume. The first part is a simple explanation of various terms used in financial statements. Ratio analyses and tables of average ratios follow. More than 200 definitions of the most frequently used financial terms occupy the remaining part of the book's 130 pages. It is prepared chiefly for beginners in the investment field.

Brazil's Bonds Soar in Wake of Trade Pact

New York, March 10.—[Special.]—A spectacular rush for Brazilian bonds developed today in the wake of the trade and credit agreements announced between that country and the United States yesterday.

The bonds, long selling on a basis of 12 to around 20 cents on the dollar, registered advances ranging from 15 to as much as 30 per cent. Buying assumed large proportions in all sections of the Brazilian list.

The trade and credit agreement worked out with the United States, designed to checkmate inroads of totalitarian nations in South America, embraced among other things the promise of early resumption of service by Brazil on its dollar debts.

Various Brazilian Issues Climb.

Direct obligations of the Brazilian government scored advances ranging from 5 to 7⅜ points. These advances are the more spectacular when it is realized that the bonds involved had been selling at prices ranging from around 15 to 19.

Brazilian 8s of 1941 scored the widest upturn, advancing 7⅜ points to 26½, and the 6½s of 1926-'57 mounted 6¼ points to 22¼.

City of Sao Paulo obligations ran up with equal vigor in heavy volume. The 8s of 1952 rose to 13 for a gain of 4 points, and the 6½s of 1957 rose to 13¾, up 5 points. The 8s of 1936 moved up to 17½ for a gain of 5 points and the 7s of 1940 rose 5 points to 31½.

Most of the issues in the group slipped from the day's high levels in the afternoon, but net advances on the day remained substantial.

Sharp Advance This Week.

Closing prices of some of the bonds today compared with last Saturday's close as follows:

	Today.	Sat. close.	Net chge.
Brazil 8s of '41.....	26½	16⅛	+10⅜
Do 6¼s of '26-'57.....	22¼	13¾	+ 8½
Minas Geraes 6½s of '58..	15	9	+ 6
Pernambuco 7s of '47.....	12	6¾	+ 5¼
Rio de Janeiro 6⅜s of '53.	12½	7⅝	+ 4⅞
Rio Grande do Sul 8s of '46.	15	9⅛	+ 5⅞
Sao Paulo City 6½s of '57.	13¾	7½	+ 6¼
Do State 7s of '40.....	32½	22¼	+10¼

United States government bonds made further sharp advances. Most of the treasury list pushed ahead to new record highs. Both institutions and dealers were represented on the buying side.

Activity in railroad liens subsided somewhat, reducing the pace of trading in the corporate bond market. Price ranges were narrow and there was slight irregularity. Utility and industrial bonds were steady and quiet.

REFEREE TO RULE ON EVIDENCE IN CARGILL DISPUTE

Federal Referee S. Abbot Maginnis indicated yesterday he would rule Monday on the admissability of disputed testimony which Cargill, Inc., seeks to introduce in its case against the Chicago Board of Trade.

Counsel for the grain company sought to present testimony which would show the "short position" in the market of the customers of Board of Trade officials. The company's Illinois subsidiary and its officers were expelled from the exchange on charges of attempting to corner the September, 1937, corn futures.

Attorneys for the firm are now attempting to show that members of the business conduct committee, which voted the expulsion, and their customers had a short interest in the corn market. Counsel for the exchange opposed the introduction of such evidence, asserting it has no bearing on the case.

COTTON GOODS BUYING EXPANDS AS PRICES RISE

New York, March 10.—(AP)—Buying of cotton goods, on the upgrade since early in the week, reached a crest today with the placing of orders for an estimated 25,000,000 yards of print cloths.

Mill brokers said it was the busiest day for Worth street, the textile trading center, in two or three months. The orders were placed on a rising market with some lines booked at ⅝ cent a yard above the low prices which ruled at the close of last week.

With the bulk of the trade done in the two or three days the week's volume in print cloths was estimated around 60,000,000 yards, which represents two and one-half to three weeks of mill production at the current rate.

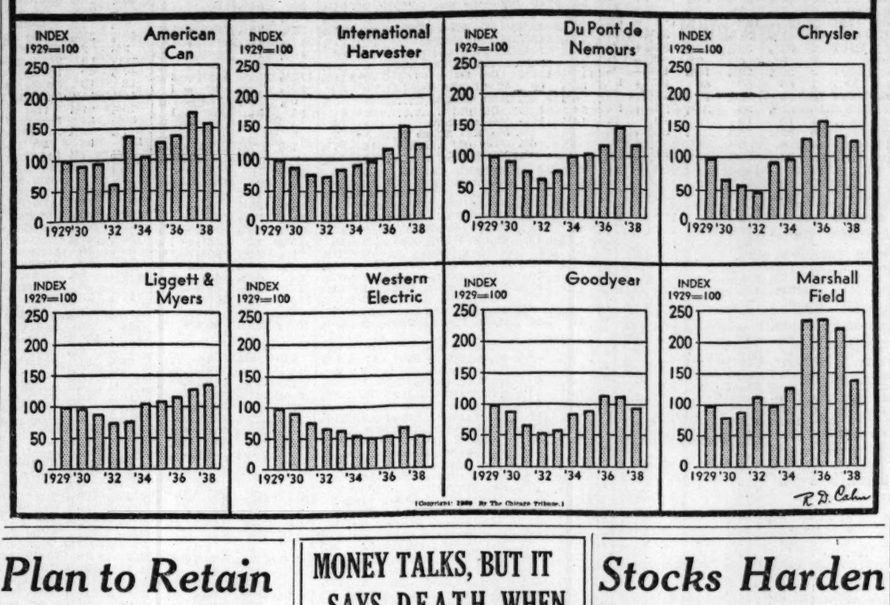
Inventories of Eight Leading Companies at the End of Each Year



Plan to Retain Firms in State by Tax Change

The possibility of bringing back to Chicago the headquarters of the $916,000,000 Standard Gas and Electric company after the announcement of its removal to New York was seen last night. The big utility holding company disclosed on Thursday that it was moving to New York, effective April 1, because of Illinois' personal property tax law.

Edward J. McCabe plans tax law revision.

Bernard W. Lynch, president of Standard Gas and Electric, on his return to Chicago from New York yesterday morning said the personal property tax situation was the only reason for the move and that if the situation were corrected the company would move back to Chicago.

Plans Amendment to Law.

Late yesterday Edward J. McCabe, chief deputy tax assessor, said he will introduce a bill in the state legislature next week amending the personal property tax laws which would ease the tax load on companies incorporated in other states. McCabe, a Democrat, is a representative for the 21st district [Chicago].

Lynch indicated a change in personal property taxation must become effective before he would consider moving back to Chicago.

McCabe explained that his bill, which is to be introduced in the house, would amend provisions of the personal property tax law which cover intangibles of outside companies doing business in Illinois. Standard Gas and Electric was incorporated in Delaware in 1910.

Plans to Modify Taxation.

His amendment, Lynch continued, provides that only those intangibles of a foreign company which are used in doing business in Illinois would be taxed. This would reduce the tax load on securities held in the portfolios of holding companies, such as the Standard Gas and Electric company.

McCabe said assessments of securities held by Standard Gas and other holding companies were made in conformance with the law as it now stands and with the advice of the state's attorney.

"We do not like to leave Chicago," Lynch explained. "Our interests are in the middle west. If the tax situation were corrected we would move the headquarters back to Chicago.

Atlas Cement to Move.

The Universal Atlas Cement company is taking steps to move its headquarters from Chicago to New York on May 1. About 50 of its Chicago staf of 175 will go to New York. Chicago will continue to have a regional office of the company, which is a subsidiary of the United States Steel Corporation of New Jersey. The plan to move to New York was first disclosed in the newspapers last fall. The move is being made in the "interest of economy and efficiency."

U. S. JOBS TOTAL 43 MILLION AT END OF JANUARY

New York, March 10.—[Special.]—The number of employed in this country at the end of January was estimated at 43,667,000 and the unemployed at 10,645,000 by the national industrial conference board in a report made public today. It reported an increase of 7.4 per cent in unemployment in the month.

Rails Rehire 12,209.

Washington, D .C., March 10.—[Special.]—The interstate commerce commission reported today that 12,209 railroad workers were reëmployed in February and that its seasonally adjusted index of railroad employment stood at the highest point since January, 1938. A total of 941,979 persons was employed in all branches of the industry during the month, the commission said, placing the index at 54.8 per cent of the 1923-'25 average. This marked the first time since October, 1937, that the index was higher than for the same month in the previous year.

MONEY TALKS, BUT IT SAYS DEATH WHEN CHINESE HAVE SOME

PEIPING, March 12.—[Special.]—The Japanese drive to replace the currency in use in the interior of North China with new money of the Japanese sponsored provisional government has placed Chinese residents in an unfortunate position.

It was reported today that the Japanese army may apply the death penalty to peasants found with old money in their possession. Chinese guerrillas are reported to be summarily shooting as traitors all Chinese who are found to be carrying the new currency.

Chinese dollars were quoted today at a rate of about 6.20 to the American dollar. Bankers reported that there was no rush to convert the old dollars despite the Japanese order which becomes effective tonight outlawing the currency. Two days ago the currency was quoted at 6.50 to the American dollar.

British banks this week made available a credit of £5,000,000 [about $25,000,000] to aid in the stabilization of the Chinese currency.

PULLMAN SHOWS $1,411,045 DEFICIT FOR DECEMBER

The Pullman company, sleeping car affiliate of Pullman, Inc., yesterday reported that in December it had a deficit of $1,411,045 after taxes compared with a net profit of $810,275 in December, 1937. December gross revenues were $2,806,979, against $4,997,897 in December, 1937.

For the twelve months ended Dec. 31, net profit was $1,502,997, compared with $4,219,117 in 1937. Gross revenues were $56,962,550, against $62,112,273.

The Norfolk & Western railroad disclosed that it was one of the few roads to increase its profit and loss surplus in 1938. Its surplus rose from $147,780,541 in 1937 to $151,694,535 in 1938.

Three railroads reported that they had net losses in January which were smaller than in January, 1938. These were Rock Island, $909,720 net loss, compared with $1,299,957; Colorado and Southern, $157,558 and $170,591, and Minneapolis and St. Louis, $211,063 and $247,651.

BIG NORTH SIDE APARTMENT TO BE REMODELED

Contracts have been let with the A. L. Jackson company and work will start next Monday on remodeling the twelve story 1200 Lake Shore drive building at the northwest corner of Division street. The present ten big apartments, sixteen rooms to a floor, will be rebuilt into sixty-six suites of three, four, five, and six rooms at a reported cost of $300,000. Benjamin Marshall, who designed the original building, built in 1914 at a reported cost of $700,000, is architect for the rebuilding program.

Mrs. Robert B. Honeyman Jr., daughter of the late John K. Stewart, president of the Stewart-Warner corporation, owner of the property, conveyed title yesterday to 1200 Lake Shore Drive, Inc., of which she is the owner. Dwight S. Bobb of Bobb, Spoerri, Bourland & Harris, is president of the new corporation.

Ward's said that sales reports from key sections of the country are optimistic.

Stocks Harden on Favorable Business News

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 10.—Hardening in late trading, the stock market today closed irregularly higher. Of 818 issues traded, 403 advanced, 212 declined, and 203 closed unchanged.

Opening firm, the list moved higher to show gains running from fractions to 2 points at one time. It then encountered resistance, and many issues dipped below previous finals. The late support brought prices to around the best levels of the day.

A background of encouraging business news strengthened sentiment. A report, confirmed after the close of the market, that the Securities and Exchange commission was ready to announce a change in the short selling rules, also was regarded as bullish.

Copper Stocks Weaken, Then React.

Continued liquidation in Anaconda and Kennecott depressed copper issues for a time. Anaconda slipped 2 points, then cut that loss in half at the close. Kennecott forged ahead after early weakness to add 1 point.

Steels closed mixed in a narrow range. On the up side were Bethlehem and Youngstown. Lower were United States Steel and Republic. Leading motors, notably Chrysler and General Motors, closed fractionally higher. General Tire and Rubber featured its group with a rise of 1⅛ points. Goodyear and Goodrich also worked higher, but United States Rubber eased.

Aviation issues were mostly lower. Douglas dropped 1½ points. United Aircraft and Glenn Martin lost 1 point each. Curtiss-Wright, Sperry, Consolidated Aircraft, and Bendix slipped fractionally. Sears-Roebuck was a standout in the merchandising group, rising 1⅝ points.

Some Utilities Advance.

Some power and light shares profited from good buying. Narrow price changes ruled in the carrier section. Oils continued to attract attention. Standard Oil of New Jersey, Texas corporation, and Socony-Vacuum led the group into fractionally higher ground. In the building stocks, both United States Gypsum and Johns-Manville advanced more than 1 point. Electric equipments showed gains running to 1¾ points in Westinghouse.

American Telephone was a standout in the communications, climbing 1⅜ points to another new 1939 high. Caterpillar Tractor featured the farm implement group, adding 1¼ points.

DATO, ONCE ASSOCIATE OF EDITH M'CORMICK, ADJUDGED BANKRUPT

Edward A. Dato, one time business associate of the late Edith Rockefeller McCormick, was adjudged bankrupt yesterday by Federal Judge William H. Holly. The involuntary bankruptcy proceedings were started in 1934.

Edward A. Dato.

Dato listed liabilities of $1,352,342, including defaulted mortgages, unfulfilled contracts, notes, guarantees, and other obligations incurred by him personally and in real estate transactions. His assets were listed as wearing apparel, two watches, and a library, all valued at $275.

In 1935 Dato proposed a seven year plan to repay his creditors, contemplating an increase in real estate values which did not materialize. The majority of the creditors never approved the plan. Judge Holly referred the bankruptcy estate to Referee Wallace Streeter, who will call a creditors' meeting to discuss liquidation of the properties securing the obligations. These properties are not listed as assets.

Dato and Edwin D. Krenn were associated with Mrs. McCormick in large real estate operations during the boom era. Dato and Kreen are still partners in a construction company and a real estate enterprise.

RETAIL BUTTER PRICES FALL AS U. S. PULLS 'PEG'

Quotation Dips to 5 Year Low Mark.

Retail butter prices fell 1½ to 2 cents a pound yesterday as a direct result of the federal government's decision to discontinue "pegging" the wholesale market.

Consumers are scheduled to benefit further today and Monday through additional reductions in prices resulting from another sharp drop in wholesale quotations. Yesterday's cut in retail prices, which brought the best grade of butter down from 27 to 25½ cents in most of the chain stores and big independent outlets, resulted from Thursday's sharp reaction in the wholesale markets.

From the "pegged" wholesale price of 25½ cents for 92 score butter maintained by the government for many months, the quotation had fallen yesterday to 22¼ cents. This was the lowest level since April, 1934.

Decline Is 3½ Cents.

Yesterday's decline widened to 3¼ cents the loss marked up since the Federal Surplus Commodities corporation announced, after the close of the market Wednesday, that it had discontinued "for the time being" its support of prices.

Some grades of butter declined as much as 1¾ cents at wholesale yesterday, and the 92 score variety fell 1½ cents. Competitive conditions forced nearly all of the big retail outlets to mark prices down, and most of the organizations had a loss on the day's business in butter.

When they sold butter at 25½ cents which had cost them an identical amount under the government's program of artificial market stimulation, they were forced to absorb costs of storage, handling, and selling. Many outlets featured butter in their weekend bargain advertisments and consumers were quick to take advantage of the sales. The stores will not realize their normal margin between cost and selling prices until their present supplies have been exhausted.

29½ Cents Year Ago.

At this time last year, 92 score butter commanded 29½ cents at wholesale, against 22¼ cents yesterday. In New York extras sold at 23¼ cents.

Offers on the Chicago Mercantile exchange's call were not particularly pressing, and only a small volume of business resulted on the decline. Chicago receipts continued large, reflecting the heavy production which has been encouraged by the government's efforts to boost prices.

Prices were ¼ to 2 cents lower in the futures market. The March storage standards recorded the largest loss in a belated adjustment to the sharp two-day decline in the cash market. They sold at 22 cents, lowest in five years.

Egg futures held within a narrow range in light trading, closing unchanged to ⅛ cent higher.

U. S. STEEL SHIPS LOWER TONNAGE IN LAST MONTH

United States Steel corporation subsidiaries shipped 677,994 tons of finished steel products in February, it was reported yesterday. This was a decline of 111,311 tons from 789,305 in January, but an increase of 203,271 over 474,723 in February, 1938.

The drop in shipments was explained partly by the fewer number of days last month. January shipments were abnormally large, being the highest for any month since October, 1937, when they totaled 792,310. Thus the slump in February appeared sharper in comparison.

In February, 1937, the corporation's operating subsidiaries moved 1,133,724 tons and in February, 1936, 676,315 tons.

In the first two months this year, shipments were 1,467,299 tons, compared with 993,045 in January and February, 1938.

REQUEST $2,000,000 FUND TO CARRY ON MONOPOLY PROBE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

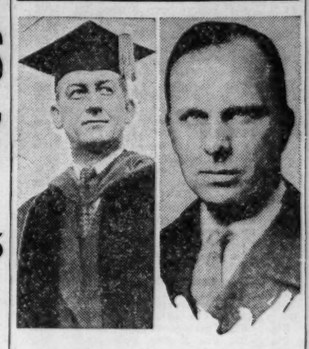
Washington, D. C., March 10.—Senator Joseph C. O'Mahoney [D., Wyo.], chairman of the monopoly investigating committee, announced at the White House today that congress would be asked to authorize an appropriation of $2,000,000 to carry on the work of the committee until 1940. The committee was launched with a $500,000 appropriation at the last session of congress. It asked an immediate appropriation of $600,000.

"The original resolution creating the committee," said O'Mahoney, "required the committee to make its final report at the end of two years. However, the various executive branches of the government have submitted estimates, which are now under consideration, to carry on the work of the committee through until 1940."

Mexican President and Oil Firms' Counsel Confer Again

MEXICO CITY, March 10.—(AP)—President Lazaro Cardenas conferred for the third time tonight with Donald Richberg, counsel for major expropriated American oil companies, on issues arising from the government's seizure of the companies' properties last March 18. An aid of Richberg said there would be no announcement until tomorow on the results of their latest meeting. One informed source said it appeared that any settlement would have to incorporate some form of management program for the companies.

College Wins Them



Dr. Robert Gordon Sproul (left) and Dr. Benjamin M. Anderson.

A $13,500 a year university president yesterday turned down a $50,000 bank president's job, and one of the country's most widely known economists announced he was leaving his bank post to become a university professor.

Dr. Robert Gordon Sproul, president of the University of California, announced at Berkley that he had declined an offer to head the Anglo California National bank at San Francisco. Dr. Benjamin M. Anderson announced at New York that he was leaving the Chase National bank in September to become an economics professor at the same university's Los Angeles division.

Before 9,000 students who had gathered to pursuade him to stay, Dr. Sproul said: "I do not want to leave the university and the satisfaction it offers in the way of high endeavor and important public service."

As the Chase National's economist, Dr. Anderson has written extensively on financial subjects and has testified frequently before congressional committees at Washington.

BIG EQUIPMENT ORDERS GIVEN BY RAILWAY LINES

Track, Locomotives, Cars Bought.

A substantial upturn in the equipment industry was indicated yesterday. The New York Central, Rock Island, and Union Pacific have let substantial orders. The Detroit City railway will advertise for bids shortly for 500 buses.

The New York Central placed contracts for 56,000 tons of new rail, together with the necessary track accessories, which will cost about $4,000,000. The contracts were divided among the Bethlehem Steel company, Carnegie Illinois Steel corporation, Inland Steel company, and the Algoma Steel corporation.

Rock Island Awards Contracts.

The Rock Island announced that it has let contracts for equipment for its two Colorado Rockets — new streamlined trains that will link Chicago with Denver and Colorado Springs.

The Edward G. Budd Manufacturing company was given the contract for ten stainless steel coaches, diners, and head-end cars. The Pullman-Standard Car Manufacturing company will build six sleepers, including combination lounge drawing room cars. The Electro-Motive corporation is building the Diesel electric locomotives that will pull the trains. The two complete trains will cost about $1,200,000.

Orders High Speed Engines.

Fifteen high speed locomotives for both passenger and freight service have been ordered by the Union Pacific railway from the American Locomotive company, William M. Jeffers, president of the Union Pacific announced. The locomotive will cost $2,366,000.

Chicago Packing Company Buys Concern in Ottawa

The Drovers Packing company, 3946 South Normal avenue, has purchased the Ottawa Packing company, Ottawa, Ill., it was learned yesterday. Purchase of the downstate company was decided upon, a representative of the Drovers company said, because there is less labor trouble in Ottawa and labor is cheaper there. The new arrangement will also give the company a more suitable location for stock buying on the Chicago and St. Louis markets.

SHORT SELLING RULES EASED TO THAW TRADING

Stock May Be Sold at 'Previous Price.'

Washington, D. C., March 10.—(AP)—The securities commission took a hand in the administration's new business encouragement drive today by relaxing its rules to give "shorts" more freedom of action on national securities exchanges. Traders were told they could make a short sale at the same price as the preceding sale of a security "provided the last sale price was higher than the last different price which preceded it." Heretofore a security could be sold short only at a price above the last sale price.

A "short" is one who sells a stock not owned by him. He borrows the stock and sells it at the current market price, hoping to be able to buy it back later at a lower price. The difference between the two prices represents the trader's profit or loss.

Change Is Explained.

Under the amended rules, if transactions in a security have been effected at 49⅞, 50 and 50, a short sale may be effected at 50 and additional short sales may also be made at 50.

Under the original rules, if transactions in a security had been effected at 49⅞, 50 and 50, a short sale could have been effected only at 50⅛, and additional short sales could have been effected only at successively higher prices.

The commission said that when stocks are declining, the effect of the amended rule will be to restrict short sales. For example, if transactions in a security have been effected at 50, 49⅞ and 49⅞, a short sale can be effected, not at 49⅞, but only at 50 or above.

Much significance was attached to the fact that today's modifications were adopted at the recommendation of the New York Stock exchange.

Freer Trading Sought.

The SEC's announcement said: "It was the view of the exchange officials that the modifications would provide greater freedom of market action in accumulating short positions while retaining effective restraints on short selling." For some months, the old rules had caused dissatisfaction in stock exchange circles.

The commission also relaxed its regulations on certain short sales made in the course of international arbitrage. An arbitrage transaction takes place when, for instance, a stock is selling at $9 on the New York Stock exchange and $10 on the London exchange. In such a case traders buy the stock at the lower price in New York and sell it at a $1 profit in London.

Brokers Are Pleased.

New York, March 10.—(AP)—Wall street brokers, who have been experiencing hard times during quiet markets in recent weeks, today greeted the announcement of the modification in federal short-selling rules as a welcome easing of supposed brakes on stock exchange trading.

Exchange members were unanimous in approval. Most of them said it was significant chiefly as a "gesture" from Washington, indicating a desire to heed complaints from the financial district against certain aspects of federal regulations.

The move raised hope for further changes in SEC laws and rules to improve market mechanics along lines desired in stock exchange circles. A nation-wide meeting of security exchanges is scheduled to be held in Washington next Monday and Tuesday to draft recommendations for the SEC for changes to make federal control "more workable."

STORES' SALES RISE 7 PER CENT ABOVE YEAR AGO

Sales of department stores of the nation in the week ended March 4 were 7 per cent above those in the same 1938 week, the federal reserve board reported yesterday. In the preceding week turnover fell 5 per cent below the 1938 volume.

Stores in the seventh federal reserve district [Chicago area] reported a 5.1 per cent gain in sales over 1938. Sales in this area averaged 3 per cent below 1938 levels in January and February according to reports from eighty-eight stores in twenty-eight cities.

In Chicago proper, department store turnover increased only 0.4 per cent in the latest week. Detroit sales rose 5.4 per cent; Indianapolis, 10.9, and Milwaukee, 32.1.

Boston and San Francisco area sales increased 17 per cent.

CHICAGO LIVE STOCK

The general market for hogs yesterday sank to the lowest price levels in more than a month when medium and weighty butchers sold weak to 15 cents lower, more than offsetting the strength in a few top light weights. The average declined 5 cents to $7.60, the lowest since Feb. 7.

Lamb prices fell 15 to 25 cents under pressure of excessive Friday receipts. The meager run of 1,000 cattle in the pens yesterday brought about steady average prices.

CRANE COMPANY PLANS CHANGES IN DIRECTORATE

Slate Four New Members and Replace Two.

Proxy solicitations issued to stockholders yesterday by the Crane company, Chicago plumbing and heating concern, showed the management intends to elect four new directors and drop two present board members at the annual meeting March 28.

Charles B. Nolte, president, was the highest paid officer of the company last year, receiving $80,550 in salary. He owned 2,500 shares of the company's common stock, 100 shares of preferred, and held an option to purchase 23,000 additional common shares.

Charles B. Nolte.

Nominees and Holdings Listed.

Nominees for new board posts, and their stock holdings, were listed as follow: Sydney G. McAllister, president of the International Harvester company, 100 shares of Crane common; William R. Odell, 75 shares of preferred held directely and 116,632 shares of common as trustee of the estate of R. T. Crane Jr.; J. H. Collier, 1,638 common and 675 preferred shares, and P. R. Mork, 116 common shares. The last two named are vice presidents of the company.

Cornelius Crane and J. L. Palmer, members of the 1938 board, are not slated for reëlection, and the 1939 directorate will not include any one bearing the family name Crane if the management's candidates are all named.

Other Stock Holdings Shown.

John B. Berryman, chairman of the company, received $36,500 compensation last year and owns 4,000 shares of common and 3,046 of preferred stock. Mork was paid $20,000.

These changes would increase the number of directors to eleven, from nine last year.

New York Clearing House Will Report on Fridays

New York, March 10.—(AP)—The New York Clearing house this week began issuing its weekly statement on Friday, rather than on Saturday as heretofore. Because of the change the report covers only five banking days this week. Beginning with next Friday's report, operations of six days will be shown as previously. The statement showed: Total surplus and undivided profits unchanged at $918,-899,900. Total net demand deposits [average] increased $93,298,000. Time deposits [average] increased $6,185,-000. Clearings for the week ended today were $3,016,095,334. Clearings for the week ended March 4 were $3,646,489,444.

THE "BIG THREE."

Investors' Guide: I should be very interested in a comparison of the business done last year by each of the "Big Three" cigaret makers, and also in their profits. Also, how do the sales of these companies compare with those for Lorillard and Philip Morris?
—M. H.

Answer: Here is a comparison of the sales and profits of the tobacco companies for the year ended Dec. 31, 1938, together with the percentage increase or decrease in net income, compared with 1937 results:

	1938 Sales	1938 Net income	Per cent decrease.
	(in thousands).
Raynolds Tob.	$282,265	$23,734	14.0%
American Tob.	253,036	25,436	2.9%
Liggett & Myers.	237,764	20,561	3.8%
Lorillard	73,884	4,013	*76.2%
Philip Morris.	.....	†5,685	*13.5%

*Increase. †Year ended Sept. 30.

Based on 1938 sales volume the business done by the five companies was divided as follows: Reynolds, 31.3 per cent; American, 28 per cent; Liggett & Myers, 26.3 per cent; Lorillard, 8.2 per cent, and Philip Morris, 6.2 per cent. [Philip Morris sales are for the year to March 31, 1938, latest available.]

CAN'T DEDUCT COMMISSIONS.

Investors' Guide: I did quite a little buying and selling of stocks in a small way last year and my brokerage commissions amounted to quite a sum. May I deduct these commissions paid from my income in making my federal income tax return?—R. T.

Answer: No, brokerage commissions are not deductible. They do, however, constitute an addition to the cost price on your purchases and a deduction from the selling price on your sales. This will help you in reducing your capital gains or in increasing your capital losses reported for income tax purposes.

The Supreme court has held that commissions on securities transactions are not deductible as a business expense, even for those in the business of buying and selling securities.

FOHS OIL.

Investors' Guide: I saw in the paper that a company called Fohs Oil made a profit of $778,000 last year. Where is this company and what is its business?—J. H. W.

Answer: The Fohs Oil company has its main office in Houston, Tex., and operates largely in Texas and Louisiana. It develops and operates oil leases and purchases oil royalties. It was founded in November, 1932.
